FIFI STILLMAN IS BRIDE AGAIN

...EANT DEATH IN ...KLAND CASE, ...JURORS SAY

Mistake in Verdict Is Disclosed.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Valparaiso, Ind., June 5.—[Special.]—One of the twelve jurors in the Paul Kirkland murder case today added to the startling revelation that he had returned by mistake the verdict upon which the Gary youth was sentenced to one to ten years' imprisonment for the rape and murder of 8 year old Arlene Draves.

The men stated unanimously that they had believed they were imposing the death penalty upon the young defendant when they found him guilty of assault and battery with intent to rape. They were astounded, they said, when Judge Grant Crumpacker sentenced Kirkland to the penitentiary at Pendleton, Ind.

Fight Heavier Penalty.

The sentence has been set aside and the state at a hearing on Tuesday will ask that Kirkland be given the heavier sentence of five to twenty-one years in prison which, it is contended, is the proper penalty under the law.

Even this sentence, the ten jurors contend, is far less severe than the one intended by most of them.

The remaining two jurors refused to join with their companions in the statement. One, Robert Brady, said he had not believed the verdict carried the death penalty, but admitted that he had thought it carried a sentence of only years in the penitentiary. The remaining juror, Marion Brownfield, curtly refused to discuss the case.

"Miscarriage of Justice."

The jurors who deplored what they termed a miscarriage of justice, were J. W. Fleming, Norman Ashton, Harry McVicker, John Bell, Andrew Jones, Harry Casbon, U. H. Morrow, William Nelson, Herbert Davidson and Charles Walters. All said they had hoped to be called by the state's attorney to explain what happened in the jury room. All expressed a wish to make their statements under oath.

They revealed that they had sent a note of their number, whose name was not disclosed, to Judge Crumpacker. "I think the jury thought they were giving Kirkland the electric chair," the note told the court, according to the jurors' stories. "They want to correct their mistake."

One juror, Jensen, was so disturbed by the result of the trial that he became ill and took to his bed. Some jurors declared they had been pressured to leave their homes because of their sense of self-reproach.

"If ever a man breathed God's good air who deserved the electric chair, it was Kirkland," declared Juror Walker. "Why, we would never have left the jury room if we hadn't thought we were giving him the death penalty."

One Juror's Explanation.

The clearest explanation of what appeared in the jury room that led to the mistake of the jurors was given by Juror Morrow, a man in his sixties. "When we were qualified as jurors," he said, "we were all given to understand there would be two possible verdicts. One would be 'guilty of rape or attempted rape' and would carry a sentence of death. The other verdict would be 'not guilty.'

"All through the trial this point was emphasized until it was clearly fixed in the minds of the jurymen. Even the instructions of the court. They lasted more than an hour. They were read rapidly and in a voice that most of us could not hear. But the judge seemed to be repeating that fact that we already come to believe: That it was either the electric chair or freedom for Kirkland.

Gave Eight Possible Verdicts.

"These instructions were not sent out to the jury room so that we could study them and get their real meaning. Instead, eight possible verdicts were given us.

"It was the first time we knew there could be more than two verdicts. There was much confusion. After some deliberation we decided it was up to us to pick the one which seemed closest to fit the crime. We decided that assault and battery with intent to rape was a lesser verdict so long as it carried the death penalty.

"It was then there was some debate. We wanted to make sure it was the electric chair. I suggested that we ask the judge, but the foreman, John Jensen, finally took the responsibility upon himself. He had been in former murder trials and was supposed to have experience and knowledge. He asserted to us that the verdict meant

Capone Indicted by U. S.; Surrenders

GANGSTER GIVES $50,000 BOND IN TAX FRAUD CASE

Accused of Evading $215,080 Levy.

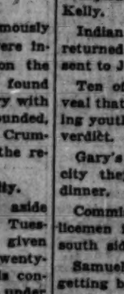
A day of reckoning arrived yesterday for Scarface Alphonse Capone, public enemy No. 1. He surrendered to the government after having been named in an indictment returned early in the afternoon which accused him of evasion of income taxes amounting to $215,080. United State Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, who has won a conviction against every gangster he has tried for income tax frauds, announced he was ready for the supreme test against Capone, the chief of gang chiefs.



JUDGE BARNES. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Capone, on learning that the indictment had been returned, went directly to the office of United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer, accompanied by his attorneys, Capt. William F. Waugh and John J. Goshkin. His bail had been fixed at $50,000. A surety bond had preceded him and it had been examined and approved in the district attorney's office. Deputy Marshal Joseph O'Neill, as soon as Capone appeared, served him with a bench warrant issued by Federal Judge John P. Barnes, before whom the indictment was returned.

Freed Until Arraignment.

Capone was taken to the court clerk's office, where he signed the bond, and then before Judge Barnes, who attached his signature, and Capone was free so far as the income tax case is concerned until the day of his arraignment. But Capone is under $5,000 bonds on an appeal from a six months' jail sentence for contempt of court imposed by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson for malingering when summoned before the federal grand jury more than a year ago. Federal prosecutors said the contempt appeal probably would be decided soon and there is a probability that Capone would be in jail before the income tax indictment is tried.

The indictment, which was handed to Judge Barnes' clerk by J. Milton Trainer, real estate man and foreman of the grand jury which had spent three months on the Capone investigation, contained five felony and two misdemeanor counts. Another indictment, returned on March 13 and suppressed, contained one felony count relating to Capone's income in 1924. The possible maximum penalty on the six felony and two misdemeanor counts is thirty-two years' imprisonment and a fine of $80,000.

The government alleged that Capone owes taxes of $215,080 on a net income of $1,038,654 for the years 1924 to 1929, inclusive. The government does not say that this was the total of Capone's income of those six years, but it represents the amount the government expects to be able to prove that the chief gangster pocketed.

The statement was made that during those six years Capone filed no income tax return, although it was known that he received a vast income, due to his monopoly of the booze, alky, and beer business of the Chicago territory, his control of the gambling rackets and his profits from his string of brothels. Capone had boasted that he was too smart for the government, that he put no money in banks and no money could be traced to him.

Gang Power Weakening.

But, according to government officials, $1,038,654 was traced directly to Capone and therein, it is said, lies a story indicative of the disintegration of the great organization that had its connections and agencies all over the country and was part of a huge international syndicate that has enabled millions of Americans to flout the prohibition laws for twelve years.

"Capone's gang lieutenants have talked to save themselves," government agents stated. "Capone has been pushed around so much his power has waned."

United States Attorney Johnson's strategy was said to have been exhibited in proceedings against Capone's

FESS' SON IN COURT FOR CELEBRATING AN ADDITION TO FAMILY

New York, June 5.—[Special.]—"Ain't it funny what a difference just a few hours make?" Raymond Hitchcock used to sing, and Lowell Fess, the 35 year old son of United States Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, leader in the Anti-Saloon league, illustrated the truth of the comedian's plaint when he was arraigned in Yorkville court today charged with disorderly conduct. He also was charged with fighting a policeman.

Eight hours before, in East 51st street police station, Fess vociferously proclaimed that he was going to have Patrolman Broderick, who had arrested him, and Lieut. Joseph Ryan, on the desk, "burned" for locking him up.

When he appeared in court, hiding his face with his straw hat, he was repentant. He pleaded guilty and apologized to the court and to Patrolman Broderick. Magistrate Walsh fined him $10, which was paid by a friend.

Fess explained to the court that he had been celebrating for several days because his wife had presented a new baby to him.

Fess was arrested about 1 a. m. outside the Surf club, a night resort, after trying vainly to urge a policeman to help him force his way into the place.

TRIES 34 YEARS TO WIN BACK WIFE; IS GIVEN DIVORCE

Oliver E. Bon Durant tried for thirty-four years to effect a reconciliation with his wife, Frances, before he finally applied for a divorce, he told Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday in Superior court. He was granted a decree.

Bon Durant, who is 65 years old and lives at 3555 Jackson boulevard, was married in 1885, he testified. His wife divorced him in 1894, but they were remarried a month later, only to part again.

"I made repeated efforts to induce her to return to me," he said. "I lost track of her fifteen years ago, but recently I learned that she was living in New York. I visited her there but she refused to come back to me so I guess it's no use trying any longer."

Their trouble, he said, was "incompatibility."

His Parachute Fouls on Plane; but He Had 2

Rantoul, Ill., June 5.—[Special.]—Private Harold R. Osborne, attached to the 27th pursuit squadron at Selfridge field, Mich., who lately has been studying the art of parachute jumping in the army jumping school here, today learned a lesson not included in the usual curriculum of a student jumper.

Chiefly, Private Osborne learned that when jumping a spare 'chute is a handy thing to have along—just in case. He had a full hour to ponder the value of this lesson while he dangled from the tail of an army plane that leaped about the sky like a hound dog with a can tied to its tail.

Today was graduation day at Chanute, and while Private Osborne finally won his diploma, his commencement was almost his finish. As his superiors looked on Osborne and a fellow candidate stepped into the cockpit of an army biplane. Each strapped two parachutes to his back. That extra chute is an ace in the hole required for novice jumpers.

Pulls Ring Too Soon.

Two thousand feet over the field Osborne's companion stepped out, pulled his rip cord and floated gently to earth. Private Osborne was next. He put one foot over the side of the fuselage and looked below. It was then that Private Osborne was seized by what he chooses to call a case of jitters. He pulled his rip cord a second too soon.

The parachute opened instantly. Its big white skirt, caught in the propeller blast, flew backward, catching in the tail assemblage, and only then did Private Osborne decide to bail out. After dropping about 20 feet his fall was suddenly checked and he looked up to find the plane cutting strange capers with its nose pointed upward while Lieut. Howard E. Engler, the pilot, struggled to wind up his stabilizer and get the ship on even keel.

Private Osborne noted an expression of deep annoyance on the face of Lieut. Engler, who was shouting certain things about parachute jumpers which Osborne said last night he could not accurately repeat and certainly not for publication. He saw also that his parachute panel was split to the top and that only a slender shroud line held him to the plane.

Alarm Spreads Below.

The alarm spread rapidly below. An ambulance was summoned from Rantoul. Fire engines came clanging to the field. Crowds gathered in the streets to watch the plane fly in uncertain circles about the town with Osborne hanging from its tail, virtually by a thread. While this excitement prevailed Lieut. Charles H. Webster found a paring knife, tied it to a sand bag, tied the sand bag to the end of a rope and took off for the rescue.

Osborne was struck in the face several times by the rope while the rescue plane jockeyed for position. Finally he seized the knife, cut himself free, opened his emergency chute and descended safely into a muddy field south of the airport. When his comrades found him Private Osborne was still sitting in the mud, patting the ground with his hands and murmuring:

"Good old earth—good old earth."

Reindict Nine in Canal Case; Kelly Cleared

The June grand jury, after a stormy session lasting until midnight, reindicted Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the sanitary district during the whoopee period, and eight other former trustees and officials of the district. The jury refused to vote an indictment against Edward J. Kelly, chief engineer of the district, and also president of the south park board.

The others named with Crowe in a voluminous conspiracy indictment containing nearly 200 pages are James M. Whalen, John J. Touhy, Frank J. Link, John K. Lawler, and August W. Miller, former trustees, John T. Miller, former official, Timothy Connolly, fugitive former purchasing agent, and Martin Edelstein, former real estate agent for the district.

Fail to Reindict Kelly.

First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup, who has done practically nothing else but work on the sanitary district case since he left the federal service to join the state's attorney's staff more than two years ago, was reported to have made a determined effort to have Kelly reindicted.

The jurors sent Northup from the room several times to get additional evidence against Kelly, if he could muster it from his files. He returned several times, but when the prosecutor finally said that he had produced everything the jurors, so it is reported, took a final vote and decided that the prosecution's uncontradicted evidence was not sufficient to call for an indictment against Kelly.

Edelstein nearly escaped reindictment. The prosecutor was sent to get additional evidence against him. He returned with evidence which apparently satisfied the jury that Edelstein should be made to answer before a Criminal court jury, and he was included in the true bill.

Calls Case Stronger.

"Our case is stronger with Kelly out than in," was the only comment Prosecutor Northup would make after the indictment was returned.

Kelly came out clean in the original searching investigation conducted by Frank J. Loesch when the latter was a special prosecutor. However, when Northup took charge of the case he had a new indictment returned naming Kelly with the other officials. Judge Joseph David last week, in quashing three counts of the original indictment, held that even if the prosecution proved the things alleged against Kelly it would not constitute a crime.

Judge Awaits Report.

The indictment, which contains ten counts instead of nine, as did the previous indictment, was returned just at midnight. Chief Justice John P. McGoorty waited until the jury was ready to report.

The new indictment contains the same allegations as did the old indictment, squandering of public funds on the $1,000,000 bridle path, excessive payments of $730,000 on the ornamental lighting system, and diversion of public funds by pay roll padding and other means.

The trustees were free from indictments for twelve hours for the first time in more than two years when the investigation started. The state nol prossed all indictments yesterday before Judge David to clear the decks for the return of the new indictments.

Democratic Party Handed $40,000 More by Raskob

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—John J. Raskob has advanced $40,000 more to the Democratic national committee, making the party's total obligations to him $295,250, according to a report of the committee, filed with the clerk of the house of representatives today. Under the head of unpaid obligations the committee lists $707,054. Through the medium of Senator Hatfield [Rep., W. Va.] the Republican national committee this afternoon commented that "Mr. Raskob is steadily increasing the size of the mortgage which he holds upon the once proud party of Jefferson and Jackson."

FRANK M'ERLANE PICKED UP AFTER MYSTERY SHOTS

Frank McErlane, south side beer boss, was arrested early this morning as he stood in the street at 78th street and Crandon avenue, an automatic shotgun, which he had just fired, in one hand and another automatic shotgun at his feet.

He was taken to the Grand Crossing station by Sergt. William Sanders and his squad. There he became violent and it required four men to place him in a cell, where he raved for hours. Police said he had been drinking heavily, but they doubted that the shooting was a drunken escapade.

A police 1313 call from some unidentified resident sent Sergt. Sanders and his squad to the scene. They noticed a man standing on the pavement, a few feet away from an automobile, holding the shotgun. Sanders recognized him as McErlane.

How many shots were fired is not known. McErlane's guns will be examined to determine this point. The arrest took place just a short distance from the home of Robert Marvis, McErlane's brother-in-law, at 7754 Crandon avenue. McErlane lives at 7753 Bennett avenue.

On May 26 machine gunners battered the home of Marvis with bullets, supposedly in an attempt to kill McErlane with random shots.

QUICK DIVORCE; THEN MARRIED TO CHICAGOAN

Fowler McCormick the Bridegroom.

New York, June 5.—[Special.]—Mrs. Anne Urquhart (Fifi) Stillman has secretly divorced James A. Stillman and has become the bride of Fowler McCormick of Chicago, son of Harold F. McCormick, and grandson, through his mother, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, of John D. Rockefeller Sr.

Details of the divorce and wedding became public today, when the decree was filed in Poughkeepsie. They were confirmed tonight by John E. Mack, counsel for Mrs. Stillman.

Wed in John D.'s Home.

The marriage of the heir to the International Harvester millions and the former Mrs. Stillman took place yesterday at the home of John D. Rockefeller in Pocantico Hills. The ceremony was performed by Supreme Court Justice Graham Witschief of Newburgh, a few hours after Justice Joseph Morschauser had signed the final decrees in the divorce proceedings which severed the marriage of the Stillmans. The official witnesses were Mr. Mack and Mrs. Stillman's daughter-in-law, Mrs. James Stillman Jr. The bride's age was given as 33, Fowler McCormick's age as 32. The bridegroom is the grandson of the late Cyrus H. McCormick of harvester fame.

Immediately after the wedding the bridal couple motored to Easthampton, L. I., where they expect to spend part of the summer. The bridegroom, found at the cottage they rented there for their honeymoon, said they would remain there a few weeks and then go back to Chicago for work.

Stillman Sails for Europe.

And James A. Stillman, in high feather, sailed for Europe tonight aboard the Olympic, the liner which has marked so many milestones in his troubled matrimonial career.

It was on the deck of that ship as she was sailing for a holiday abroad that Mrs. Stillman was served with papers in her husband's first divorce action on July 18, 1920. Mr. Stillman at that time charged that Guy, his wife's youngest child, was the son of Fred Beauvais, a Canadian Indian guide.

The same ship carried the former banker and his wife on their "second honeymoon," Feb. 6, 1926, after a reconciliation, which was hailed at the time as marking the end of one of the most celebrated legal battles over marriage vows in many years.

The first inkling that the so-called second Stillman honeymoon had been as much a failure as the first—begun thirty years and three days ago tomorrow—came today when Supreme Court Justice Morschauser filed a final decree of divorce, signed yesterday, in the office of the county clerk at Poughkeepsie.

Wedding Follows Closely.

Shortly after the papers were signed the former wife of the banker, granted the right to resume her maiden name of Anne Urquhart Potter, was married at Pocantico to Fowler McCormick, a close friend of her son James, whose marriage to the daughter of a Canadian lumberjack four years ago made him the subject of considerable publicity.

Justice Witschief, who had adjourned court early in White Plains in order to perform the ceremony, tonight refused to confirm or deny the report that he had officiated, explaining that he had been bound to remain silent until tomorrow. It was revealed that among the witnesses to the ceremony was young James Stillman, at whose own wedding his new stepfather served as best man.

"Baby Guy" Dispute Ends.

The final decree in the Stillman case seemingly put an end to the question of the paternity of "Baby" Guy, now 12 years old, for he was listed as one of the four children of the marriage, which ended officially yesterday when Justice Morschauer filed the papers.

The others are James A. "Bud" Stillman Jr., a student in the Harvard Medical school; Anne, the wife of Henry P. Davison of New York and Oyster Bay, and Alexander, who is 19 years old.

It had been reported that the reconciliation of the Stillmans five years ago had not been entirely successful, but it was not known that Mrs. Stillman had resumed the divorce action which she dropped when she and her husband agreed to try to forget the past.

Only today it was revealed that she had begun a new suit for divorce as early as last November. She charged that Stillman had been unfaithful to her during a visit to Havana earlier in the year. The first case came up before Justice Morschauser on Jan. 31, but was adjourned until Feb. 6.

Single Witness Heard.

Then at a special term of court the testimony of a single witness, James Earl, was taken and an interlocutory decree which became final yesterday was issued by Justice Morschauser on Feb. 21. It was granted by the same judge who at the conclusion of the first sensational trial denied Mr. Stillman a divorce and decided that the child whose parentage he denied was his son.

At the brief and secret hearing yesterday neither the former banker nor his wife testified. Mrs. Stillman was represented by Edward A. Conger, law partner of John E. Mack. County Judge J. Gordon Flannery of Glenham appeared for Mr. Stillman. While Mrs. Stillman was granted $90,000 a year alimony during the pendency of her husband's suit, the decree on file in the Dutchess county court house makes no mention of alimony. It was reported tonight, however, that the banker had made a "heavy settlement." These reports could not be confirmed.

Stillman Sails, Laughing.

Mr. Stillman seemed in high spirits when the Olympic sailed at midnight. He had come aboard twenty minutes before the liner cast off. Wearing a gray suit and a bowler hat, he laughingly dodged a battery of camera men and faced a group of reporters, most of whom were women. Some one asked him if he intended to remarry, and he replied:

"O, no. O, no."

To all questions about the divorce he smiled and said:

"Ask Mrs. Stillman, or, rather, Mrs. McCormick."

He had planned the European trip for some time, he said, explaining that he wished to be in Paris on July 1 for the opening of a new branch of the National City bank, in which he still retains a directorship. Two sitting rooms and a bedroom were reserved for his use on B deck. His valet and the captain of his yacht had accommodations in other parts of the ship.

Romance Long Rumored.

The marriage of Mrs. Stillman and Fowler, who is reputedly worth $10,000,000 in his own right, was less of a surprise than the divorce itself. A friend of Mrs. Stillman's son, when the first divorce was started, he espoused her cause and since then has been reported affianced to her on many occasions in the last six or seven years, but both had always denied these reports.

Upon one occasion Mrs. Stillman pointed to the difference in their ages to emphasize "how ridiculous the rumors are."

"Of course we're not going to be married," Mrs. Stillman said then. "We have been too good friends for that. I owe a great deal to Fowler. He is the man who taught me to fight, who sent me to Zurich when my life was smashed like broken crockery. Then Baynes and Jung took me in hand, taught me the real meaning of life and I came back to America and faced things."

Enter Flo Leeds.

The first divorce suit, in which Mr. Stillman accused his wife of misconduct with the Indian guide and challenged the paternity of her youngest son, brought a counterattack from Mrs. Stillman, who accused her husband of infidelity with Flo Leeds, a chorus girl, who, it was charged, had had two children by him.

Mrs. Stillman was upheld in her charges by Justice Morschauser and it was upon the basis of the testimony in the first trial that Mrs. Stillman began her second suit in 1925. It was this suit which she directed her attorney to discontinue in a letter bearing the date on which she and Mr. Stillman announced their reconciliation and sailed on their "second honeymoon."

When Mr. and Mrs. Stillman came home from their reconciliation trip smiling and affable to those who met them aboard ship, they went that day to the Stillman town house and there the entire family was reunited, save Guy, who was with his governess in Canada.

Gives Wife $500,000 Jewel.

The following year Mr. Stillman gave his wife a $500,000 necklace, and in 1928 it was announced that he had purchased fifty square miles of timber land near his Canadian camp, where Mrs. Stillman passed much of the time.

When Mr. and Mrs. Stillman announced their reconciliation, Mrs. Leeds was in Palm Beach with her son. It was announced that Mr. Stillman had created a "substantial trust fund" for Jay Ward Leeds and had provided an income for the boy's mother.

Subsequently Mrs. Leeds went to France to live under the name of Mrs. Kevah Lincoln. It was reported in August, 1929, that she had married John Rousseau Metcalfe in London.

During the three years or more that the Stillman case dragged in the courts, Mrs. Leeds remained mostly in seclusion. But in May, 1932, she talked, for publication, saying Mr. Stillman had deserted her the previous year. She was living then at 969 Park avenue with her boy and she said Mr. Stillman had not answered her appeal for help to support "our son."

Fifi to the Rescue.

Mrs. Stillman, then at the Quebec camp, hearing that Mrs. Leeds contemplated filing a suit for support, sent her a message which said, "Fight like a tiger, Flo," and offering to take the infant, Jay Ward Leeds, into her own care. So far as is known, Mrs. Stillman and Mrs. Leeds never met, although messages passed between them.

While Mr. Stillman's divorce case was before the Court of Appeals Beauvais came to New York and filed a suit for $500,000 against Mr. Stillman and Mrs. Leeds, charging slander. The suit was settled out of court.

After Lindbergh's flight to Paris Mrs. Stillman, who, with her husband, had been dropped from the social register, became interested in aviation and was a familiar figure about the Long Island flying fields. She was the financial backer of the proposed and abandoned trans-Atlantic flight of Thea Rasche, the German flyer. Later she tried her hand as the publisher of a magazine, Panorama, which failed.

Fifi's Vivacious History.

Mrs. Stillman is a daughter of James Brown Potter and his first wife, who was Cora Urquhart of New Orleans. Before her marriage to James Stillman she was known in society as Fifi Potter. Her marriage to James A. Stillman, son of James Stillman, for many years president of the National City bank, and successor to his father in that exalted financial post, was one of the social sensations of the year.

Mrs. Stillman's mother was both beautiful and original and was a prominent figure in society and subsequently on the stage. She excelled first as an amateur actress and then went into professional work, appearing with Kyrie Bellew and other noted stars. In 1900 she was divorced from Mr. Potter.

She became more or less the rage in society and was taken under the wing of Mrs. Pierre Lorillard. Soon after her debut, James Stillman lost his heart to her. The wedding took place here in New York on June 3, 1901.

Bishop Henry C. Potter of the Episcopal diocese of New York was always extremely fond of his lively niece and her wedding reception was held in the bishop's home.

Fowler an Old Friend.

The name of Fowler McCormick first was linked with that of Mrs. Stillman in 1925, during the progress of her first divorce case, when he was 24.

Fowler at the time was working as a day laborer in his father's International Harvester company shops at Milwaukee. Rumors that he was a suitor of "Fifi" Stillman began when she came down from Grand Anse, the Stillman camp in the Canadian woods, to visit him.

Mrs. Stillman insisted that their relationship was entirely platonic, but she admitted that it was at her suggestion that the young millionaire donned overalls.

"I told him he must know something about the business if he ever intended to run it," she said. "I suggested that he go to Milwaukee, where he was less known, and find out for himself how the machinery of the business, particularly the human machinery, operated."

Fowler during the divorce case was a visitor at Grand Anse, but when the Stillmans became reconciled he replied tartly to interviews who asked for his reaction:

"I want the public to mind its own business and let me alone."

He is a graduate of Princeton. At one time he was regarded as a suitor for the hand of Mrs. Stillman's daughter, Anne, now the wife of Henry P. Davison Jr.

"NO SURPRISE TO ME," SAYS H. F. M'CORMICK; HE WISHES THEM WELL

Harold F. McCormick last night stated that he had known for some time of his son Fowler's intended marriage to Mrs. Anne U. Stillman. In a statement, issued through his secretary, Mr. McCormick said:

"My son's marriage comes as no surprise to me and it has my entire approval. I have known for some years of Fowler's unwavering devotion to Mrs. Stillman and of his desire for this outcome, and I have known, too, of her deep regard for him. My one concern is for their happiness.

"Basing my thought on what I know of them both I not only hope, but truly believe, that they will find in this marriage lifelong contentment and comradeship."

Indian Joe Is Brought Home; Soon Will Be Sent to Joliet

The tables were turned last night on Indian Joe Huszar, once the hard-boiled C. O. D. police chief of Broadview, unwittingly betrayed to the law by the woman for whom he left his wife. He arrived at the detective bureau a prisoner, returned from Pueblo, Colo., where he hid from an Illinois prison sentence of 1 to 14 years, which was the result of his tactics in imprisoning an Oak Park couple.

The former road terror of the western suburbs was protesting to newspaper men that he had never exacted tribute from motorists. A detective, hearing this, said:

"Joe, you're a liar. You shook a friend of mine down for $10.

He's Going to Prison.

On the way here from Pueblo Huszar declared he did not know he must go to the penitentiary. He said he thought his case had been won on appeal, and he was shocked to learn that his disappearance had resulted in his case never getting to the state Supreme court. The time permitted him for appeal having elapsed, he must go to Joliet to begin serving his sentence.

The conviction of Huszar was on a charge of assault to kill. A previous charge of robbery with a gun had failed because of the difficulty of proving that Huszar had actually taken money from motorists at the point of a gun, as many of them charged. There were never any witnesses.

Women Held as Hostages.

The Chicago Motor club had many reports of Indian Joe's holding women as hostages while their husbands, fathers or sweethearts returned to Chicago to get the money he demanded as bail. The club also had many reports that Huszar told the motorists not to return for trial or there would be more trouble.

The charge that brought about Huszar's conviction was due to his arrest of John H. Schrieffer, 1147 Gunderson avenue, Oak Park, and Mrs. Schrieffer. The Schrieffers had driven their car to the side of the road and were eating popcorn. Huszar threatened them, took them to the station, and beat Schrieffer on the head with a gun. He said Schrieffer tried to escape, but Schrieffer said the beating was done to enforce Huszar's financial demands.

Story of His Capture.

After being convicted Huszar was arrested with a woman. Mrs. Huszar was angry and Joe departed—with the woman, Mrs. Martha Schneck of Melrose Park. He was still with her when arrested last month in Pueblo. He had been away from her for three weeks, however, and she didn't know what had happened to him. She went to the Pueblo police and inadvertently revealed that Huszar was a fugitive from Cook county. Upon his return the Pueblo police arrested him. He had no money to bring the woman back with him, he said, and she is still there.

"I don't care what becomes of me," Huszar told newspapermen. "I double crossed my good wife and left her and my two sons. We were together twenty-three years and we had a good home and no trouble."

GERMAN CHIEFS REACH BRITAIN TO SEEK DEBT CUTS

Bruening Tells Plight of His Nation's Finances.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 5.—Heinrich Bruening, chancellor of Germany, and Foreign Minister Julius Curtius arrived in England today, and for the first time since the war representatives of the German state were received as equals and given honors due the representatives of a great country. German ministers have been here since the war for conferences, but they came as helots, and not as guests. Today the visitors were cheered by an English crowd on their arrival at Victoria station, where they had the unusual honor of being met by Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson in person.

The two German ministers crossed the channel from Cuxhaven on the German liner Hamburg. They were met half way down Southampton waters by the British destroyer Winchester, all decked with flags as if for a gala occasion. The Winchester escorted them to Southampton, where they were met by the German ambassador, Baron von Neurath.

Outlines Germany's Plight.

At a press reception at his hotel this evening Chancellor Bruening described the terrible economic conditions in Germany and the efforts of the government to meet them. The present government, he pointed out, had four times within 14 months reduced wages and salaries and increased taxes, but it was still unable to carry on. It had been hoped, he said, that the cut of $165,000,000 in reparations when the Young plan was adopted would bring relief, but in spite of this Germany has had to raise, by cutting salaries and increasing taxes, about $600,000,000 more.

"We have come, with no papers and no program, to talk in a frank and friendly manner about all our many difficulties and dangers, which apply to all the world, but especially to Germany," Dr. Bruening said. "We have done our utmost to meet the situation, but it is not enough. Radicalism is growing and all the world is affected. We know that only by the coöperation of all the nations of the world can we solve our problem."

This last statement was taken as a direct hint to the United States. Observers here declare this German-British conference is the beginning of a drive for the remission of war debts, including those owed by Europe to the United States. The allies have made it clear all along that they would not forgive Germany unless the United States forgave them.

Von Hindenburg Signs Decrees.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 5.—President von Hindenburg today signed emergency decrees enforcing new drastic economies and tax increases, the object of which is to make up a $300,000,000 national deficit. Details of the decrees will be officially revealed tomorrow.

A committee of experts, which was appointed to investigate means of reducing unemployment in Germany, published its final report today. The report says Germany must expect an average of 4,500,000 unemployed throughout 1931. The committee advises the government to curtail relief payments to individuals out of employment, so as to make emergency funds last longer.

NEWSPAPER, DRY FOR 105 YEARS, DECLARES PROHIBITION FAILURE

Morristown, N. J., June 5.—[Special.]—The Jerseyman, Morristown daily newspaper, which has maintained a strictly dry editorial policy for 105 years, announced today that it "has been forced to the conclusion that the eighteenth amendment is not, and cannot become, a workable solution of the liquor problem in the United States," that it now "says farewell to its journalistic support of the amendment as it would say farewell to a shattered ideal which is of not much practical use."

Edward S. Little, publisher of the Jerseyman, was at one time the Washington correspondent of the London Daily Times. His son, Stuart Little, is managing editor of the paper. Mr. Little's editorial declares:

"The eighteenth amendment, after eleven years, has shown that we cannot exterminate the liquor traffic. No nation or state ever yet has succeeded in exterminating it. The best thing to do, then, is to regulate it under a law that is enforceable and will meet with the approval of at least a majority of the people of the country.

"There is not a town in the county or state where liquor is not being sold daily. Things have come to such a pass that non-legal drinking places are not even complained of, indicating a general indifference on the part of the public to the provisions of the amendment and a total contempt by the bootleggers."

HERBERT GUILTY OF MURDER; GETS LIFE IN PRISON

"Big Earl" Herbert, one time beer runner for Joe Saltis, was found guilty of murder by a jury before Judge Charles A. Williams of the Criminal court last night and his punishment was fixed at life imprisonment.

He was tried for the slaying of Thomas Bonner, reputed police informant, who was shot down at the threshold of his home at 7353 Yale avenue July 10 by two men. For a time the assassination was attributed to Fred Burke, notorious killer.

Herbert was found guilty on the first ballot and the penalty was decided on the fifteenth ballot. The jury retired for deliberations at 3:50 p. m. yesterday and returned its verdict at 9:40. The death penalty had been asked by Prosecutors Harry Gabel and Max Libby.

Attorneys Louis Blumenthal and Samuel Golan moved for a new trial and Judge Williams set June 12 for the hearing.

The principal witness for the state was Mrs. Mary Bonner, widow of the slain man, who identified Herbert as the killer. Herbert is already under a sentence of one to fourteen years for shooting a railroad watchman.

MRS. BORN ASKS MORE ALIMONY; JUDGE CUTS IT

Husband of Ex-Legislator Appears in Patches.

Mrs. Edith Wilmans Born, 4746 Greenwood avenue, former member of the Texas legislature, became acquainted yesterday with what lawyers have termed the new trend in the divorce courts, as related to alimony.

MRS. EDITH BORN.

Mrs. Born appeared yesterday before Superior Judge John J. Sullivan and made a plea for larger alimony payments from her husband, Henry A. Born, whom she is suing for separate maintenance. Since filing her suit she has been receiving $130 a month in temporary alimony. This, she said, is insufficient for her needs in view of the fact that she gave up an important social and political position in Texas to marry Born two years ago.

Accuses Mate of Tippling.

Mrs. Born, who is 48 years old, was in the Texas legislature in 1923-24. She was twice a candidate for governor. She said she met Born while she was making a prohibition speech, but that Born's secret tippling later wrecked their marriage. She left him, according to her bill, after he kicked her down a flight of stairs.

Mrs. Born also practiced law before her marriage to Born. Yesterday she aided her attorney, Lloyd Faxon, in arguing on her alimony plea.

"I need three times the amount my husband is paying me to live in the manner to which I am accustomed," she said. "Mr. Born is worth $100,000, has an income of $200 a week from his business, and owns two buildings."

Born Appears in Patched Suit.

But Mr. Born also appeared. He is 59 years old and is president of the Born Refrigerator company. He was wearing a suit with patches on the trousers and holes in the elbows. Mrs. Born informed the court she was sure her husband had other and better suits.

Born asserted that he was broke and that he was living in a $4 a week room. He said that his wife ruined his business by piling up debts and constantly demanding money from him.

Other witnesses were called. For five hours Judge Sullivan listened to tstimony and arguments. At the end of that time he gave his decision. He reduced the alimony payments from $130 a month to $15 a week.

NOTED 'CELLINI PLAQUE' VALUED AT $200,000 IS FOUND SPURIOUS

Washington, D. C., June 5.—Government scientists peering through microscopes have discovered that a copper shield credited to the Italian sculptor, Benvenuto Cellini, and offered to the Metropolitan museum of art of New York for $200,000, is a skilled electrotype reproduction.

Search for the original has been made by representatives of the museum, owner, Baron Eugene A. Medem Fersen, former Russian nobleman, who intended to use the proceeds of the sale in combatting communism in this country.

Dr. George K. Burgess, director of the bureau of standards, who has identified Baron Fersen's representation that the shield is a reproduction, says the substitute had probably been made within the past fifty or sixty years.

Albert Walmsley, representative of the baron, said the original must have been stolen from the walls of the baron's ancestral home in Russia.

COUZENS SCORES MITCHELL IN HILL ESTATE TAX CASE

Says Government Loses $1,130,000 in Revenue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—Referring to "the serious question of official ethics raised against the present attorney general," Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] today launched a vigorous attack upon Attorney General Mitchell and the department of justice, for their alleged mishandling of the government's case against the estate of the late Mrs. James J. Hill, widow of the railroad magnate.

JAMES COUZENS.

The Michigan senator made the case the starting point for a drive to be carried into congress to make the federal estate tax effective and prevent its evasion by immense gifts of property made in anticipation of death.

Tells of Investigation.

Senator Couzens declared he had had an investigation of the case made for him by an official of the treasury department and that this official's report brought out the following facts:

That Mr. Mitchell, as attorney for Mrs. Hill, drew up trust agreements, conveying $16,000,000 to relatives at a time when she was seriously ill.

That Mrs. Hill died within two years after these trust agreements were executed.

That the treasury department held that these transfers were made in anticipation of death and that the estate, accordingly, was subject to an additional inheritance tax of $1,130,000, and this decision was affirmed in the first decision of the case on appeal by Judge Molyneaux of the United States district court for Minnesota.

U. S. Submits No Oral Argument.

That the administrator appealed the case to the United States Court of Appeals, and in that court, at a time when Mr. Mitchell was serving as United States solicitor general, the government made no oral argument whatever in defense of the treasury's position, and the case was decided against the government.

That thereafter, C. M. Charest, general counsel for the bureau of internal revenue, and Lafayette French, United States district attorney at St. Paul, joined in recommending that the case be appealed to the Supreme court, and Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, directed the district attorney to take all measures necessary to protect the government's interest in the premises.

That the then attorney general, John G. Sargent, on June 8, 1928, without stating reasons for his action, signed an order directing the district attorney not to appeal the case.

Schall First to Make Charges.

The charges against Attorney General Mitchell in the Hill case first were brought into the open by Senator Thomas D. Schall, radical Republican of Minnesota, during the recent controversy over the Minnesota judgeship.

Senator Couzens stated today that following the investigation made for him he had written to Mr. Mitchell on March 21, inclosing a set of nine questions as to the propriety of the government's action in the matter.

Mr. Mitchell replied on March 23, stating that he presumed the memorandum had been given the senator by Senator Schall. The attorney general took particular exception to question 1.

Writes M Letter to Mitchell.

Senator Couzens was out of town at the time this reply of the attorney general was received. When he returned to his office on April 8 he wrote a second letter to the attorney general specifically disclaiming that he had received his information from Senator Schall and stating that his memorandum had been prepared by "a friend of mine who is connected with the internal revenue bureau." The question number 8 in the Couzens memorandum, to which the attorney general specifically objected, was as follows:

"8. Should not the fact that Solicitor General Mitchell had been counsel in the case make him all the more careful to see that the Supreme court should settle the question?"

Pope Two Other Questions.

Stating that he had no desire to press this particular question, Senator Couzens asked Mr. Mitchell to confine himself to answering two other questions, as follows:

"6. Why was not the government represented orally by counsel when the case was heard before the Circuit Court of Appeals?"

"7. Why was the request of District Attorney French and the general counsel of the bureau of internal revenue for an appeal to the Supreme court rejected?"

To date, explained Senator Couzens, he has received no reply from Attorney General Mitchell.

"Since the attorney general has not seen fit to answer even the two questions as to government policy which I addressed to him," said Senator Couzens today, "I feel it is my duty to present the facts to the public so that they may judge for themselves as to the propriety of the government's action in dropping the Hill case without appeal to the Supreme court, despite the recommendations of the general counsel of the bureau of internal revenue and the district attorney, who had tried the case, that it should be appealed.

"Mr. Mitchell's only defense so far given is a statement from Charles P. Sisson, assistant attorney general, inserted in the Congressional Record in a letter to Senator Felix Hebert on Feb. 13.

Sisson Goes by Records.

"It is a significant fact that Mr. Sisson, who presents this alleged defense, was not attached to the department of justice at any time while the Hill case was being considered there and thus could have known nothing of the facts except as they were written into the records by somebody else.

"Mr. Mitchell, as solicitor general of the department, was the officer to whom questions of appeal normally were submitted, and in view of his personal connection with the Hill case it seems to me that he could only justify his position by insisting that everything possible be done to sustain the position of the treasury department and the United States district attorney in the matter."

The facts in the Hill case, Senator Couzens declared, are illustrative of the failure of the present tax law to catch those who transfer their property in anticipation of death to avoid the estate taxes.

Nullify Congress Intention.

"Congress," he said, "in enacting the provision that gifts made within two years of death should be considered as made in anticipation of death believed this would prevent evasions of the estate tax. It is apparent, however, that the courts by their decision in the Hill case and others have nullified to a great extent this intention of congress.

"The Hill case, I am informed, is only one of many instances where it has been evaded with a resultant loss of many millions of tax revenue."

Attorney General Mitchell, when informed as he was leaving the White House following the cabinet meeting today that Senator Couzens had made public their correspondence and criticised the department of justice, said he had not seen Senator Couzens' statement and had no comment to make.

FINANCIER SUED FOR $600,000 BY ACTRESS FOR BROKEN PROMISE

New York, June 5.—[Special.]—Ruth Taylor, former Ziegfeld actress, has brought suit in the Supreme court against Jervis R. Harbeck, financier, for $600,000 damages for breach of promises.

The complaint alleges that Miss Taylor met Mr. Harbeck in 1922, when he told her he wanted to marry her, that he was married but was getting a divorce in Reno. Miss Taylor, who is not the film star of that name, says they lived in East 63d street as "Mr. and Mrs. Taylor," and that in December Mr. Harbeck bought a residence which they occupied in Great Neck, L. I.

Each anniversary of their first meeting the defendant gave her valuable presents of jewelry, she says, making a total of $200,000, and bought clothing and other articles aggregating $50,000 a year. She asserts that in 1928 she was compelled to go abroad because of illness and that when she returned Mr. Harbeck refused to name a wedding date.

ITALY SENTENCES SIX FOR BLAST IN WHICH 20 DIED

ROME, June 5.—(AP)—The special tribunal for defense of the state tonight sentenced six men to prison and freed another after a one day trial for responsibility in a bombing which killed 20 persons and injured 23 as King Victor Emmanuel inspected the Milan fair on April 12, 1928. The accused also were charged with placing a dynamite bomb on the Milan-Piacenza railroad, over which Premier Mussolini was scheduled to pass. A workman found this bomb before the train arrived.

Those sentenced were Giuseppe Testa, 12 years; Augusto Lodovichetti, 12; Ettore Vacchieri, 12; Giuseppe Sacchi, 6; Francisco Oggiani, 5; Oreste Bruneri, 3 years and six months. Giuseppe Porta was freed.

The comparatively light sentences was said to have resulted from failure of evidence to connect them directly with the Milan explosion. Police attributed the explosion to a time bomb concealed in the base of a lamp post. Testa told the court that he was a member of the communist party and received money from abroad. Ledovichetti also said he was a communist, and others admitted membership in Testa's gang.

POPE PIUS SPURNS OFFER OF PEACE FROM MUSSOLINI

Duce Proposes to Reopen Women's Clubs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 5.—Pope Pius XI. today rejected an offer of conciliation by Premier Mussolini in the controversy between the Fascist government and the Vatican over alleged political activities by Catholic organizations.

Il Duce proposed that Catholic clubs for women and girls, which were closed a few days together with other Catholic organizations, be permitted to reopen. The pope refused to consider the proposal, insisting that all or none of the clubs must be restored to good standing.

Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper, today published an editorial demanding that Premier Mussolini present proof, if he possesses it, that the Catholic organizations which were dissolved had meddled in politics.

Written by Pope Himself.

The editorial, which well informed circles declare was written by the pope himself, speaks sarcastically of the statement issued by the directory of the Fascist party Wednesday, in which Premier Mussolini and his advisers referred to their "profound and immutable respect toward the Catholic religion, its head, its ministers, and its temples."

Aside from Premier Mussolini's offer today to permit the reopening of Catholic clubs for women and girls, the controversy appeared to be still hopelessly deadlocked. Representatives of the pontiff continued their secret negotiations with the Italian government, but apparently the Fascists are still standing on their contention that the Catholic organizations ordered closed were meddling in politics. The pope, on the other hand, insists that the clubs were engaged strictly in church work.

Decorates Jailed Aid.

An indication of the pope's feelings in this respect was seen in some circles here tdoay with an announcement from the Vatican that the pontiff had bestowed the order of St. Gregory the Great upon Commendatore Camillo Corsanego, honorary president of the Italian Catholic Youth association. Corsanego was arrested Wednesday on orders of the Fascist government, and it was reported that he faced deportation to Lipari island on political charges.

In contrast to the uncompromising tone of Osservatore Romano's comment is an article in Popolo d'Italia of Milan, written by Arnaldo Mussolini, who is always his brother's faithful mouthpiece. Arnaldo seeks to shear the Italo-Vatican controversy of its dramatic elements, reducing it to its "true proportion of a conflict over the interpretation of one article of the Italo-Vatican concordat." Imagination, he says, has worked busily around last week's troubles, inflating them to undue proportions. Those who shed tears, he says, for the fate of the Italian Catholics had much better reserve their pity for the wrongs which the church suffers in other countries.

"A few outbursts of violence, however deplorable, must not be construed into a systematic persecution," he says.

U. S. Churchmen Back Pope.

VATICAN CITY, June 5.—(AP)—American church dignitaries are among the hundreds who have sent messages of sympathy and encouragement to Pope Pius in connection with the controversy with the Italian government.

Among them were Cardinal O'Connell of Boston and Bishops Reverman of Superior, Wis.; Gallagher of Detroit, Mahoney of Sioux Falls, S. D., and Schrembs of Cleveland.

SOVIET BARS ENTRY OF U. S. CLERGYMEN; DENIES THEM VISAS

New York, June 5.—[Special.]—The apparent intention of the soviet to exclude foreign clergymen from Russia was revealed today when it was learned that at least half a dozen American ministers, including John Haynes Holmes, liberal pastor of the Community church and long admirer of much of the soviet system, had been denied visas to enter Russia.

Another minister who was denied entry during the past week was the Rev. David Rhys Williams, Unitarian minister of Rochester, N. Y., and brother of Albert Rhys Williams, Communist, frequent visitor to Russia and for years one of the soviet's leading apologists in the United States.

A third American clergyman to be denied entry was the Rev. Dr. Doremus Scudder, noted Congregationalist, who recently wrote to Mr. Holmes from Cannes, France, that he had been refused the right to enter. The names of the other excluded ministers were not learned.

In each case, it has appeared, no official word was sent to the applicants, the sole ground for the denial was the fact that he was a minister.

MAKING FACES IS ONE THING THAT GETS DAVE'S GOAT

David Fleming, 22 years old, of 4958 South Racine avenue, is a husky young coal heaver, quick to resent an insult. Mr. Fleming, flamboyantly lit with stimulants, according to police, paused in front of the automobile parked in front of 5319 Emerald avenue last night. He saw a face leering at him from one of the car windows. Mr. Fleming retaliated by making a face.

The face in the window flashed back an insulting grimace. That was too much for Mr. Fleming and he heaved a brick through the automobile window. Then he looked inside the car. No one was there.

Mr. Fleming, it appeared, had been making faces at his own reflection.

He will tell all about in the Stockyards court this morning where he will be arraigned for disorderly conduct on complaint of Ernest Steger, 5637 Shields avenue, owner of the car.

GARY'S PIONEERS OF '06 FETED BY CITY THEY BUILT

500 Old Timers Attend Anniversary Dinner.

Twentieth century pioneers, who left their homes 25 years ago to found a city in the desolate swamps and sand dunes along the southern tip of Lake Michigan, gathered in the grand ballroom of Hotel Gary last night to celebrate the 25th anniversary of Gary, the city they established.

Nearly 500 of these first settlers, who since 1906 have seen their city grow to a population exceeding 100,000, were there, guests of the anniversary jubilee which Gary is celebrating all this week.

Capt. H. S. Norton, first and only president of the Gary Commercial club, was toastmaster of the Pioneers' banquet. Capt. Norton went to Gary in 1906 as head of the United States Steel corporation's subsidiary land company to supervise the building of the city on the site the steel company had chosen for the erection of the largest steel plant in the world.

Senator Hodges Speaks.

Among speakers was State Senator William F. Hodges, former mayor of Gary and the city's first lawyer, who eulogized the late Elbert H. Gary, former head of the steel corporation for whom the city was named. Senator Hodges recalled that Mr. Gary had overcome many obstacles to become head of the steel corporation. He said the early struggles of the city of Gary were not unlike those of the man who gave it a name.

Another old timer who spoke was Judge Ora L. Wildermuth, who went to Gary as its first school teacher. He recalled how the students, in his one room building, always knew it was time for lunch when the 11:55 Michigan Central train whizzed through town with its whistle shrieking.

Describes Rise of Steel Mills.

Mayor R. O. Johnson, William A. Wirt, superintendent of the Gary schools; J. J. Kelly, real estate dealer; Col. A. P. Melton, of the 113th Engineers, and A. F. Banks, former president of the E. J. & E. railroad, were among the pioneers at the banquet.

An historical parade with 100 floats, 17 bands, National Guardsmen, Legionnaires, school children and civic units was the high light of the afternoon's program yesterday. The procession took three hours to pass the reviewing stand where stood the mayors of six neighboring cities, a former governor of Indiana and steel company officials.

Pageant of Early Days Opens La Salle County's Centennial

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Ottawa, Ill., June 5.—[Special.]—The pages of history were turned back tonight to permit thousands of citizens assembled in this county seat to relive in pageantry those thrilling days a century ago when the first permanent white settlers built homes from the forests, tilled the virgin prairies, and, looking to the progress of Illinois, organized the county of La Salle.

Fifteen hundred persons participated in the pageantry, which took place in the fair grounds. Oxen and covered wagons, Indian feathered headdresses and buckskins, and the pioneer dress of settlers of 1831 gave color to the portrayal of La Salle county's early history.

Reunion of Old Timers.

Earlier in the day holiday groups gathered in knots excitedly talking over old times. Many were seen hailing from across the street visitors they had not seen for years. Others passed about the display windows in the stores, pressing their faces against glass to devour the historic glamour attached to priceless relics of the past—spinning wheels, firearms, plows.

It was a scowling sky that greeted the first arrivals for the homecoming, but by afternoon the rain had ceased and the sun was warm and shining. The inclement weather failed to interrupt the morning opening of the centennial and the celebration started, according to the watches of officials, exactly one minute ahead of time.

Rites at Site of Old Fort.

A procession, headed by Hentrich's military band, marched from Washington park south in La Salle street and up to the East hill to South Ottawa. There, on the site of old Fort Johnston, the Illini chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution dedicated a marker "to the honor and glory of those sturdy pioneers of La Salle county who sought refuge within its walls in May, 1832, during the Blackhawk war."

The next event was the dedication of the typical log cabin built in Allen park as a memorial to early settlers. This was attended by members of the Log Cabin club, composed of persons born in log cabins. At the conclusion of the dedicatory service the oldest person present, who was born in a log cabin, knelt and lighted the first log fire in the fireplace. She was Mrs. Hannah Batron, 97 years old, of Mendota.

Shows Old Style Spinning.

One of the most realistic details of the cabin dedication occurred when Mrs. Frank Nettleingham of Adams township, near Leland, a nonagenarian, demonstrated spinning as it was done back in the days when a girl's trousseau depended on her spinning ability. Others taking part in the service were Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts who will use the cabin for headquarters.

Another event of the afternoon was the address in Washington park of Henri Bougearel, acting French consul in Chicago, who expressed the pride of the French government in the part French missionaries and explorers played in La Salle county's history.

Parade to Be Held Today.

Tomorrow will come the historical and commercial parade at 10 o'clock in La Salle and Columbus streets. Covered wagons, ox carts, fifteen musical organizations, military and civil units, patriotic floats, Indians, explorers, pioneers, cowboys and cowgirls will pass in review.

At noon a homecoming and jubilee will be held in Washington park with a band concert by the combined school bands. In the afternoon Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who is a native of La Salle county, will be the principal speaker.

OPEN NAPERVILLE CELEBRATION OF FIRST 100 YEARS

Bombs bursting in air yesterday opened the hundredth anniversary celebration of the town of Naperville in DuPage county. United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis last night concluded the festivities of the first day of the fête with an address in the old courtyard in Central park.

Today the centennial will continue, with Mayor Cermak of Chicago scheduled as the principal speaker. Other events will include a parade of 200 floats portraying the century of the town's existence, and the dedication of a memorial park.

Yesterday's celebration was marked in the morning by a succession of juvenile parades in the downtown section of Naperville, the youngsters showing off their dolls and their pets in quaint costumes and vehicles.

The spirit of the centennial was expressed in gaily decorated streets. Flags and bunting draped business houses and public buildings.

The afternoon program consisted of an historical pageant presented on the athletic field of North Central college. Six hundred persons acted in various episodes of the days since Capt. Joseph Naper, a lake skipper, founded the community in 1831.

PEIPING, China, June 5.—(AP)—Two Chinese servants, charged with slaying their employers, Vera M. White and Victoria M. Miller, at the Seventh Day Adventist mission in Yunan-Fu, have been sentenced to death, said a dispatch to the United States legation from Consul Harry F. Stevens today.

INSULL JR. SEES TRADE CLIMBING TOWARD NORMAL

Worst Passed Months Ago, He Declares.

Several months ago Chicago passed the worst point of the economic depression, and business has been very slowly returning toward normal since then, in the opinion of Samuel Insull Jr., who spoke last night to the United Charities general staff at its annual dinner at the Chicago Woman's club in his capacity as president. Statistics he has studied, Mr. Insull declared, show that the present standard is about forty per cent above the lowest point reached in the slump.

"Industrial production is showing a healthy trend," he declared. "Our financial situation is better. I think that generally things are better than they look. There is money for constructive operations when people recover confidence. There is underlying strength in the situation which has not been emphasized. In Chicago the measure seems to be that we have won back almost half of what we lost last year.

Low Point in December.

"I firmly believe that industrial production is getting back. The low point, I think, was reached last December. From that point on, graphs I have seen reveal an upward swing in my own business, and in the consumption of gas in other businesses which at least indicate that their production must be getting better.

"You will say that the employment situation is not back to normal. Yet we must consider that many plants kept on their employés, sometimes at cost to themselves, until they have recently decided that they must let them go, and it can hardly be disputed that the spring and summer are the best seasons to do so, if it must be done.

"I think that some time this coming summer the employment situation will begin to improve; that it will grow better as business picks up and the general situation returns toward normal.

Three Factors in Slump.

"Three salient factors, I believe, contributed to the depression. One was that political upheavals affected the buying markets in about sixty per cent of the world's populated surface—especially in India and China.

"The second factor lies perhaps in the fact that we have not yet quite overcome the effects of the world war.

"The third factor, of which I speak with some misgivings because no one knows less about agriculture than I do, is that we have in this country a considerable maladjustment of agricultural affairs."

COUNTY LETS MILK CONTRACT AFTER TWO MONTHS OF DEBATE

After debating the matter in committee for two months the county board yesterday awarded the contract for furnishing milk to its public welfare department for distribution to poor families.

The contract was for three months ending June 30, two of which have elapsed already. Commissioner Maurice Kavanagh suggested that inasmuch as the contract period was almost past the bids be rejected and new ones sought. Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb, also a commissioner, retorted, "We'll be making idiots of the board if we do that."

The contract was awarded under an arrangement suggested by Joseph L. Moss, director of public welfare, whereby his department will give its wards milk certificates, which will be redeemed by any of the five organizations which bid for the contract. They are the Bowman, Western, and United Dairy companies, the Borden Farm Products company, and the Chicago Milk Dealers' association.

ALCOCK SHIFTS WHOLE STATION AS CLEANUP MOVE

Aims Blow at South Side Vice, Gambling.

More than 400 policemen, including the entire personnel of the Wabash avenue station, were transferred yesterday in shakeup orders issued by Acting Commissioner Alcock.

CAPT. DANIEL GILBERT.

The transfer was not a general one despite the number of men involved, and was directed mainly in an effort to remedy vice and gambling conditions on the near south side. Reports were current last night that the huge shift of men is the forerunner of other orders tending towards a complete reorganization of the department.

In one order Commissioner Alcock moved the command of the Wabash avenue station, numbering 192 patrolmen and sergeants, to other south side districts. An equal number of men were drawn from these districts as replacements, totally affecting more than 380 men.

Only Two Officers Moved.

Only two officers were affected in the transfer. Lieut. William Middleton, colored, was sent from Wabash avenue to the detective bureau, and Lieut. Charles A. Grattan of the South Chicago station replaced him. Capt. Daniel A. Gilbert, in command of the Wabash avenue station, was unaffected.

In another order sixteen members of Capt. George O'Connor's roving vice and gambling squad were sent back to their stations. They will be replaced.

Chief Alcock declined to explain the transfers except that they were for the good of the service. From authentic sources, however, it was reported that Capt. Gilbert's efforts to clean up the Wabash district were powerless because, it is alleged, many of the men were so strongly linked with underworld activities they simply ignored his instructions. Capt. Gilbert was sent to the Wabash station for the express purpose of wiping out vice and gambling. Reports of the passive insubordination of his men reached the mayor, and the latter relayed them to Alcock.

The rigid code for police conduct was upheld yesterday when the new civil service commission dismissed from the force Patrolmen George Ballinger of the Chicago avenue station and Otto Klein of the Kensington station. They were charged with intoxication and were second offenders. "A drunken policeman with a gun is dangerous," commented Commissioner Richard J. Collins. "Such men can expect no mercy from the board."

Five policemen, and not seven, have been killed fighting crime (thus far in 1931, Chief Alcock stated last night). The coroner's office had listed seven homicides, but two were inquest holdovers from last year. Since Jan. 1, 47 criminals have been slain, 25 by police, 18 by citizens, and 4 by private police.

For Food . . . we rely chiefly on A&P

says SIR HUBERT WILKINS

"For food and other human supplies, we rely chiefly on The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company. Our requirements have been scientifically studied by their expert dietitians," says Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins, in his recent book, "Under the North Pole," which describes the Wilkins-Ellsworth Arctic Expedition.

Under the barren wastes of the North, far from the food sources of civilization, exploring the depths of the Arctic seas in a submarine, exposed to the rigors of polar climate—the food taken on this expedition is of supreme importance. Food may spell success or failure.

That is why Sir Hubert chose A&P to supply all of the daily food on which he and his men will depend during the trying months of their venture. A&P scientists analyzed the needs of these explorers. A&P buyers selected the food. Every pound of butter, of vegetables, of meat, of coffee—every item of food in the regular diet of the Nautilus crew is furnished by A&P.

A&P is proud to render this service for so gallant an exploit. A&P is fitted to do so because of its experience in supplying the equally important food requirements of millions of customers every day.

DAWES RETURNS WITH PREDICTION OF BETTER TIMES

Says the 1933 Fair Will Amaze World.

BY O. A. MATHER.

If any one doubts that this country is going to recover its former prosperity, let him consult Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to England. And if any one doubts that Chicago is going to have the greatest world exposition of all time, let him harken to the same Gen. Dawes.

The general returned to Chicago yesterday morning from Washington, D. C., and immediately plunged into activity. He was met at the train by his brother, Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Century of Progress exposition, and by officials of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, of which bank Gen. Dawes is honorary chairman. The party made a tour of the exposition grounds on the lake front and then returned to the big La Salle street bank for luncheon.

Wants Time to Consider.

Between visits of old friends in the afternoon, Gen. Dawes had a few words to say—probably more than he originally intended.

"Let me off easy on interviews until I have a little time to look around and get my bearings," he begged to start with.

It was a nice, diplomatic beginning and did credit to Ambassador Dawes. But just then some one asked a hesitant question about the progress of the exposition.

The general's famous underslung jaw emitted sparks, his eyes snapped, and his right fist spatted into the palm of his left hand.

"The Chicago Fair will be the greatest experience in the lives of the present generation of Chicagoans," he started with a challenge in his voice. "I have looked over the grounds and I know that magnificent progress has been made—and even greater progress will be made this summer. The Transportation building and its exhibits will be a modern wonder. It will be magnificent in design—and don't let anybody say it will resemble a sublimated gas house."

About the Depression.

And then somebody else said something about the business depression. There was another volcano of sparks and smoke from Gen. Dawes' pipe and another rapid fire of words.

"Did you read what I said when I got off the boat in New York?" he demanded. "Well, that's what I think. Here and there improvement is taking place, but there has been so much fear and gloom that people do not realize that conditions are gradually improving. It is true now, as always, that the great mass of people, both in this country and all over the world, do not realize that recovery from depression has begun until it is well under way. It is all a question of mass psychology, which now is uncertain or fearful but which eventually will turn about. The mass change in attitude to optimism will come just as suddenly as did the change to mass pessimism in 1929. It is about due, in my judgment, and then we will see the return of prosperity."

Gen. Dawes will remain in Chicago about two weeks and then will return to England, sailing on June 24.

FINANCE COMPANY HEAD KILLED BY GAS IN GARAGE

Loren D. Wells, 62 years old, president of the Broadway Finance company, 5958 Broadway, was found dead last evening in a private garage in the rear of 6006 Kenmore avenue. Death apparently was due to carbon monoxide gas generated by the engine of Wells' automobile in the closed garage.

During the afternoon Wells had left his wife in their apartment at the Sovereign hotel, 6200 Kenmore avenue, telling her he was going to get the car. William Zeuch, owner of the garage, discovered the body when he heard the motor running. Dr. Benjamin Goldberg of the Sovereign hotel was summoned. He expressed the opinion that Wells had been dead for about two hours.

U. S. MAYORS TALK TO HOME TOWNS TODAY VIA RADIO

PARIS, June 5.—(AP)—Completely exhausted from their six day endurance contest, beginning Sunday at Dijon and ending today at the Arras battlefields, the American mayors' party returned to Paris this evening, and most of the members immediately sought rest.

At midday tomorrow all will go to the American exhibit at the Colonial exposition. There at 4:45 p. m. [10:45 a. m. Chicago time] all of them will broadcast for the benefit of home town listeners in. The broadcast will be made from the full sized model of Washington's home at Mount Vernon, which has been erected at the exposition.

LOSES $200 TO BANDITS.

START NEW LINK SPAN TODAY MID BOOMING OF GUNS

Ceremony to Mark First Work on Bridge.

The firing of a 21 gun salute and the flight of a toy airplane bearing a ribbon across the mouth of the Chicago river symbolizing the binding of the shores together will today formally celebrate the beginning of work on the new $10,000,000 outer drive bridge.

Preceding the ceremonies, the yacht Mizpah, bearing the commissioners and officials of the south and Lincoln park boards, members of the Chicago plan commission, headed by James Simpson, president, and 23 honor guests, will set sail from the Michigan avenue bridge at 1 p. m. Among the guests will be Mayor Cermak and Lieut. Col. W. G. Caples, United States district engineer.

Will Lunch on Yacht.

The party will lunch on the Mizpah during a short cruise on the lake and then will enter the yacht harbor off Grant park by the entrance at Congress street. It will then proceed to the temporary coffer dam at the site of the bridge, where the Mizpah will tie up near the S. S. Wilmette, from which the salute will be fired.

Also tied up at the cofferdam will be a large clamshell steam shovel, which will be operated by Warren Wright and Edward J. Kelly, presidents of the Lincoln and south park commissioners, respectively, in scooping the first shovel of dirt from the bottom of the river within the dam. The whole ceremony will be punctuated by the explosions of daylight fireworks, furnished by courtesy of the Thearle-Duffield Fireworks company.

Start Work at Once.

The excavation within the cofferdam down to a solid base on which the south end of the bridge will rest is to be started immediately by the Ketler-Elliot, which was awarded the contract for construction of the main bridge. The bridge will be of the two leaf, trunnion, bascule type, providing 200 feet of channel clearance 22 feet above the water when the bridge is closed.

This part of the bridge project will cost $1,491,326. Bids will soon be called for by the Lincoln park commissioners for the construction of a single leaf bridge of the same width, 108 feet, over the Ogden slip. With this exception, most of the north approach is now complete.

BOY TRIES TO FLEE JAIL.

Peoria, Ill., June 5.—(AP)—Spectators who wondered why Gerald Savage, 15, was clinging to window bars outside the second floor of the city jail called the attention of police to the boy's situation. He was returned to his cell as a suspect in a series of holdups.

LACKS MONEY TO MARRY; SHOOTS GIRL AND SELF

An alleged suicide pact, in which a young woman was shot and probably fatally wounded by her sweetheart, who then wounded himself, was revealed late yesterday when the couple were taken to the Holy Cross hospital.

The two are Miss Dorothy Dowler, 24 years old, a stenographer, of 6252 South Central avenue, and Glenn E. Matherley, 32 years old, of 5530 West 65th street, an unemployed clerk. The story of the double shooting was told by Matherley to Lieut. George Barker of the Chicago Lawn police.

"We had been going together ten months and planned to get married," said Matherley. "But I was out of work. I was despondent. I went to Gary and bought a gun. Next I visited Dorothy at her home and told her I meant to kill myself. She said: 'Shoot me first. Let me go with you.' I put her against a wall and fired. Then I shot myself."

The double shooting was discovered an hour later when Harry and Lucille Dowler returned home from work and found their sister and Matherley in each other's arms, semi-conscious. Miss Dowler was shot below the heart and Matherley in the abdomen. Both admitted they had agreed on suicide.

KILLER JORDAN SENTENCED TO DIE ON OCT. 16

Frank Jordan, gunman, bank robber, and confessed killer of two Chicago policemen, was sentenced to be executed in the electric chair on Oct. 16 by Judge John Prystalski in Criminal court yesterday afternoon after a motion for a new trial was denied. Jordan was convicted last week of the murder of Police Anthony Ruthy and the jury imposed the death penalty.

Jordan sat in the courtroom, dangling his handcuffs and smiling, while attorneys spent two hours yesterday arguing on the motion for a new trial. Attorney George Bieder, who argued the new trial motion for Jordan on the grounds that the court had erred in instructing the jury and that the sentence was contrary to the evidence, which, the lawyer said, had shown no malice or premeditation, was granted 30 days in which to prepare a bill of exceptions in case of an appeal. A motion to arrest the judgment also was denied.

Jordan shot and fatally wounded Policemen Ruthy and Patrick Durkin at Michigan avenue and Randolph street on April 30, when they sought to arrest him as a bank robbery suspect.

FINED OF GUN CHARGE.

James Lowe, 220 South State street, was fined by Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday on a charge of carrying a pistol. Lowe denied that the weapon, which was found under him as he slept in Grant park, was his.

REALTY OWNERS GRANTED WRIT TO HALT 1929 LEVY

County Seeks Appeal from Temporary Order.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Three thousand real estate owners obtained a temporary injunction yesterday from Circuit Judge Philip L. Sullivan prohibiting County Collector Joseph B. McDonough from selling their property for taxes. These owners, holding about 15,000 lots, seek a permanent injunction against payment of the 1929 taxes, due May 15 last. They contend in their bill that the 1929 levy is illegal because too large a burden has been placed upon real estate and too light a load upon personal property.

It is represented that the property involved in the suit is worth approximately $400,000,000, which would make the assessed valuation $148,000,000. The 1929 taxes on this property would be about $9,102,000.

Follows Federal Action.

The temporary injunction was obtained by Attorney Ferre C. Watkins and Perry J. TenHoor. Last week Federal Judge Woodward granted a similar restraining order to the American Mutual Liability Insurance company. The federal order restrains McDonough from seeking judgment for 1929 taxes against the company's Michigan avenue leasehold and from selling that property for taxes.

In the state action yesterday Attorneys Watkins and Ten Hoor, in addition to orders restraining judgment and sale of properties, got an order from Judge Sullivan prohibiting the advertisement of the property of the 9,000 owners for sale for taxes.

The issuance of the Circuit court injunction was resisted, on behalf of the county collector, by Hayden Bell, county tax attorney, and by Louis Gelman and John E. Pedderson, assistant state's attorneys. They gave immediate notice to Judge Sullivan that they would appeal from his ruling to the Appellate court. Later they said they hoped for a hearing and decision in the matter within 60 days.

Cermak Tells Concern.

Mayor Cermak stressed the situation of the city last night at the conclusion of a long conference on specific legislation to be urged upon the general assembly next week.

"The situation is becoming desperate," said the mayor. "No one can tell what will happen. The city's health and safety are giving me much concern."

Mayor Cermak had hoped to bring Gov. Emmerson to Chicago yesterday for the conference on an agreement to get revenue bills, regarded as vital, pushed through this session of the legislature. The governor was unable to come, and it is said that another effort will be made to bring him here on Monday. If he cannot come then Mayor Cermak and several others will go to Springfield to see Mr. Emmerson Tuesday morning.

Bills to Be Urged.

At the conference yesterday the mayor said it was agreed that he should urge adoption of a bill abolishing the elective board of assessors and board of review, and substituting one appointive board of assessment and revision, consisting of three members, one of whom will be the assessor; of a bill putting teeth in the personal property tax laws, and a bill enlarging the city's power to collect license fees.

Among those at the conference were Lewell Avery, chairman of the mayor's advisory commission; Alfred Austrian, attorney for the Continental Illinois bank; Attorney William H. Sexton, Corporation Counsel Busch, George O. Fairweather, John O. Rees, Harris Keeler, Douglas Sutherland, Joseph K. Brittain, Attorney Harry Cutler, Emmet Whealan, president of the county board; J. L. Jacobs, efficiency expert, and Hayden Bell.

Bond Funds Not Available.

Reports from Springfield yesterday indicated the legislators believed that house bill No. 386 would enable the local governments to meet their pay rolls by borrowing from their own trust funds on tax anticipation warrants. It was pointed out by officials, however, that bill No. 386 merely extends the power to borrow such funds to the sanitary district and the county board. The city was authorized to borrow its own trust funds on tax warrants 22 years ago. City Controller Szymczak said yesterday that the city has about $58,000,000 in various trust, bond, and special funds, little of which is now available for loans.

Two representatives of New York bankers, who came to Chicago on Thursday to inspect the city's books with a view of buying 1931 tax anticipation warrants, left for New York without making any definite promises. The representatives are Frank Morse of Lehman Bros., and H. Albert Ascher of R. W. Pressprich company. These companies now hold approximately $45,000,000 of Chicago warrants.

BOMB SCARE ROUTS FAMILIES.

Spontaneous combustion of coal dust in the basement of a building at 4177 South Halsted street yesterday routed two families and brought police to the building on the report that a bomb had been exploded.

SCHOOLS MOVE FOR APPROVAL OF SCRIP SALARIES

Board Will Consider Plan Wednesday.

Plans to pay school board employés with interest bearing certificates in lieu of a total of $5,200,000 due them in back salaries for which funds are not available, were started toward execution yesterday with the drafting of a resolution embodying the plan. The resolution is expected by Lewis E. Myers, president of the board of education, to win the approval of the trustees at their meeting Wednesday.

This scrip method of payment, which was originally proposed by President Myers, calls for the deposit of tax warrants to the amount of the salaries due with a Chicago trust company. Against these warrants, upon which the board would pay interest, paper in the form of "participation certificates," also interest bearing, would be issued. Each certificate would, in effect, be an I. O. U. by the board and would guarantee payment in full plus interest to each employé accepting it in place of the regular salary check.

An Emergency Measure.

"This measure must be regarded as an emergency step only," said Mr. Myers yesterday, following a session with the board's attorneys. "And its only merit is that it temporarily relieves a serious situation. I have heard of many tales of distress among teachers and civil service employés.

"And the certificate plan is a real relief measure, I am convinced," he said. "I can be readily used to reestablish credit at the neighborhood grocery or meat market. I am sure merchants will accept it at face value. I think, if our resolution is approved, it will only take a week for the necessary printing and mailing."

All Up to Employés.

The question of accepting these certificates will be left entirely up to each individual employé, Mr. Myers explained. While teachers' unions have expressed objections to this form of payment, the civil service employés who have had three payless pay days of $400,000 each are reported to be agreeable. The warrants in question will be in anticipation of the taxes for 1931, Mr. Myers added.

DOUBT LEGALITY OF BOND PLAN TO AID SCHOOLS

The plan proposed by Joseph P. Savage, member of the board of education, for the board to issue $50,000,000 worth of bonds to be retired within ten years with tax moneys paid into the board's building fund each year, is of questionable legality, according to Frank S. Righeimer, special attorney for the schools.

"The law requires that special provision in the form of taxation must be made for the retirement of all bond issues," Mr. Righeimer said. "Therefore it does not seem to be legally possible to retire a bond issue with funds that are now created and replenished through the payment of taxes."

Trustee Savage, in proposing the issue, pointed out that 62,000 pupils in the public schools are now housed in uncomfortable portables and that many can attend school only on part time schedules due to the lack of sufficient seats.

One official said it did not appear timely, when teachers were going without their pay, to load a bond issue on the school system which would be required to pay out two or three millions a year in bond interest.

RELATIVES IDENTIFY BODY.

Relatives yesterday identified the body of a man who died in the county hospital on Thursday of a fractured skull, received in a fall, as that of James McConville, 35 years old, of 853 West 50th street.

To Honor Veterans

Two of the oldest graduates of the Northwestern university school of law will be guests next Tuesday at a reception to be given by the school's alumni association to the senior class and faculty. The affair will be held in the red room of the Hotel La Salle. The veteran barristers are Nelson Thomasson and Thomas Maclay Hoyne. Mr. Thomasson, born in 1839, was graduated from the school in 1860. He served in the Union army during the civil war and later in the regular army. Mr. Hoyne, said to be the oldest active member of the Chicago bar, was born in 1843 and was graduated in 1866. He was one of the founders of the Iroquois club.

SUSPECT IS HELD ON NEW EVIDENCE IN GIRL MURDER

Edward F. Ward of Maywood was being held last night at the detective bureau in connection with the murder of 15 year old Edna Mueller on a lonely Hillside road in September, 1927.

EDWARD F. WARD.

A development of the day was the arrest of Walter Reese, 10 W. Erie street, a former roommate of Ward. Reese was questioned by Lieut. Walter Healey, but it was said the questioning failed to throw any light either upon the Mueller girl's murder or upon the other two killings in which police suspect Ward. Lieut. Healy said, however, that he had found new evidence from other sources against Ward in the Hillside killing.

Ward was brought to the detective bureau yesterday after he had been held secretly by Westchester police for a week. He had been arrested on the complaint of Miss Francine Woodbine, 1447 Westchester boulevard, who said that he had attempted to kidnap her on May 21.

Identify Woman Suicide as Former Nurse Here

The photograph of a young woman who committed suicide in Honolulu on March 16 was identified yesterday as that of Miss Marty Knothe, 27 years old, who was formerly a nurse in the Oak Park hospital. The identification of the picture, which was sent to Sergt. Joseph Starshak of the Chicago police department's missing persons bureau, was made by Mrs. Walter Von Kaenel, 933 Marengo avenue, Forest Park, a cousin of Miss Knothe. According to Mrs. D. F. McCarthy, 604 Clinton avenue, Oak Park, with whom Miss Knothe lived, the nurse announced when she left on Jan. 25 that she was going to visit her parents in Switzerland.

ROB AND LOCK UP BUTCHER.

WIFE OF BANKER TAKEN HOSTAGE AFTER ROBBERY

Get $6,200 After All Night Wait.

Pekin, Ill., June 5.—[Special.]—Authorities in central Illinois are carrying on an intensive search for four polite young robbers who escaped with $6,200 from the vaults of the Tazewell County National bank at Delavan, Ill., after holding the bank president, Willis Crabb, and his family prisoners throughout the night.

Guard Family All Night.

Entering the home of Crabb at about 9 p. m. Thursday, the robbers found the banker, his wife and their two sons there. One of the bandits took the lads, James and Barney, to an upstairs bedroom and guarded them there. The others settled themselves in the living room with the adults, assuring them that there would be no trouble if they obeyed orders.

Apparently knowing that the time lock on the bank vaults would not release until 7 a. m., they told Crabb he could take a nap if he so desired. Mr. Crabb did not go to sleep. At about 4:30 a. m. he and his wife were taken to the bank, where there was another long wait until the vaults could be opened. When the robbers found only a little more than $6,000 in cash, the leader complained.

"We heard you had $180,000 here," he said.

Take Wife as Hostage.

Crabb was left in the bank, but the robbers kidnaped Mrs. Crabb. The banker was informed that if he notified the police before hearing from her she would be killed. The four men then drove away. Mrs. Crabb was released shortly before 9 a. m. near East Peoria. She called her husband and informed him of her safety.

In the bank vaults were about $200,000 in bonds, which were spurned by the robbers.

COURT DISPUTE ON OVER FINDING OF 'HEITLER BODY'

The identity of the charred body found in a burned ice house near Barrington several weeks ago, believed to have been the body of Mike [De Pike] Heitler, Chicago gangster, was under dispute yesterday in Rockford, where attorneys went to court to argue that the charred torso was that of Tommy Abbott, a missing racketeer.

The attorneys, Ruel H. Grunewald and E. C. Reniff, represented the bondsmen who had posted $5,000 bond for Abbott on a jewel robbery charge. The bond has been forfeited, and the attorneys contended Abbott was dead and not a fugitive. Judge A. C. Fisher overruled them, but granted them sixty days for an appeal.

Heitler, who was involved in the Chicago vice racket, has been missing for several weeks and the charred body near Barrington was identified by Cook county authorities as that of Mike De Pike.

MAYOR DEMANDS COUNCILMEN ACT ON PHONE GRANT

Points to City's Need of Compensation Money.

Mayor Cermak demanded action from the city council yesterday in its drafting of the new telephone franchise ordinance. While a council committee was holding a lengthy debate without touching on the financial features of the proposed franchise, which constitute the principal points at controversy, the mayor called for action in order that the passage of the ordinance may assure the city resumption of compensation payments from the telephone company.

"It looks to me as though there is a lot of dilly-dallying in an attempt to block action until after the summer vacation," Mayor Cermak said.

Urges Action to Get Money.

"The council should act before the summer vacation so that the city would have the benefit of the compensation due it. I won't take all summer to make up my mind as to whether the ordinance which will be passed by the council is a good one."

Mayor Cermak added that he did not favor the ordinance which was vetoed by his predecessor last fall.

Frederick O. Hale, president of the telephone company, informed a council committee on Wednesday that until a new franchise is passed the company cannot pay more than $4,000,000 which the city claims as compensation due since the old franchise expired in January, 1929.

Nelson Does the Talking.

The principal points of controversy in the proposed ordinance are the amount of compensation to be paid to the city by the telephone company for use of the streets and alleys, and the allocation of the cost of relocating the company's equipment during subway construction. These points were not touched yesterday at a meeting of the council committee on oil, gas, and electricity, which is considering the ordinance draft.

Ald. Oscar Nelson [46th] did most of the talking in the committee session. He demanded two changes in the proposed ordinance.

One was that a provision be inserted requiring the company to adopt a program of placing its wires underground, which eventually would eliminate all overhead telephone wires in the fire zone, which covers practically the entire settled part of the city. That provision was held up until Frederick Rex, municipal librarian, reports on the practice in other cities.

Asks for Court Safeguard.

Ald. Nelson's other demand was for a proviso that any attack by the company in the courts on any provision in the ordinance will automatically invalidate the whole franchise. Corporation Counsel Busch was asked to draft such a section before the committee meets again on Thursday.

Reports that the city has withheld all street opening permits from the company pending approval of the new franchise are untrue, Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th] reported following the committee meeting. Such action was started by the former administration, but has been rescinded under the Cermak administration, O'Grady said.

"Refusal of such permits would only have meant that more than 1,000 employés of the telephone company would have been thrown out of work, and the public inconvenienced," a public works official said.

In May the company was given forty-eight street opening permits and eighty-five permits for erection of poles.

CAR ORDINANCE UPHELD BY CITY IN REPLY TO SUIT

Defend Right to Spend Fund for Subway.

The transit ordinance and the enabling legislation upon which it is based were pronounced valid yesterday by city attorneys in an answer filed in Superior Judge William J. Lindsay's court to the attack made by Attorney Stephen A. Foster on behalf of two taxpayers.

In a petition for an injunction to restrain the city from expending money from its street car fund Attorney Foster charged that the ordinance and the legislation are invalid.

The city's answer, a document of more than fifty pages, was prepared by Attorneys Allan T. Gilbert and Walter L. Fisher. They declared the ordinance is valid, and the city is therefore legally empowered to carry out the provisions of the ordinance.

The answer states, however, that even if the ordinance is invalid, the city still would have the right to use the money from the traction fund for subway construction. This right, they say, is not dependent on the transit ordinance and is established by court decisions.

Objections to Foster's Request.

Objections to Attorney Foster's request that he be permitted to institute injunction proceedings to stop the attorney general from testing the legality of the ordinance by quo warranto proceedings also were filed by the city. A hearing is scheduled before Judge Lindsay on this issue this morning.

In their objections the city's lawyers assert that Foster's charges of collusion and conspiracy are made by way of innuendo and are not supported by facts. Attorney Foster charged that Attorney General Carlstrom had made a collusive agreement to test the legality of the ordinance, the legislation and the status of the Chicago local transportation company by a friendly suit. He argued that such action would be detrimental to the interests of his clients.

BOARD IN DISPUTE OVER BILL FOR FOREST LEASES

Controversy developed at the meeting of Cook county forest preserve commissioners yesterday over the bill pending in the legislature which would authorize the commissioners to grant ninety-nine year leases of plots of forest preserve lands not exceeding forty acres in extent.

The bill is designed to regularize the permission given to the Forty and Eight for the use of county property in the Orland Park preserve for the veterans' convalescent camp now maintained there. Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, chairman of the forest preserve advisory committee, objected that the bill might be made the basis of dangerous action in other cases.

Commissioner Charles H. Weber moved that the board go on record as favoring the bill. The same action was urged by a group of legionnaires, headed by Lawrence J. Fenlon, commander of the Cook county council of the American Legion, who said all of the 170 legion posts in the county favor the bill.

Commissioner Weber's motion was referred to the legislative committee of the board.

Wartime's Ghost Fleet Parades to Its Final Have

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 4.—[Special.]—The parade of a "ghost fleet" down the Hudson from the Rip Van Winkle country today wrote finis to the United States shipping board's tidewater advertisement of the waste after war. Three sea bitten hulks—the last of the Peekskill flotilla of world war emergency vessels—were towed down the river to join their sixty-five remaining sister ships off Staten island in Kill Van Kull. There in their last port they will rot, hidden from the eyes of all save roving fishermen and passing airplanes.

Through nine post-war years a flotilla of rusting merchantmen has swung idly at anchor off Jones point across from Peekskill presenting a vivid and an always present example of what happens to "soldiers" in peace time. At one time there was a huddle of 164 red bodied phantoms waiting to be sold or scrapped.

Cost a Million Each.

Built as a wartime expedient by the shipping board, at an average cost of $1,000,000 each, the ships have steadily been going to rot among the specters of Rip Van Winkle and the little bowling men of the mountains who appear in the Kaaterskill hills on cloudy days. The ships themselves have played an eerie rôle, and many persons have glanced from the pullman windows of the century at their reddish hulls standing high above the water and wondered why they were not in service.

Formerly skeleton crews to the number of 600 men were employed to look after the fleet and Capt. A. S. Lee, in command, would show a visitor through his ships with a degree of pride. Then the personnel dwindled to twenty-two as the ships found their way to the scrapheap and now Capt. Lee is relinquishing his command.

As the phantoms, hardly worth their weight as junk, slipped down the Hudson on their last journey memories of the submarine menace during the war were awakened. The former supply ships have been kept from deterioration as far as possible, but time and idleness have left their marks. This reporter visited the fleet three years ago when [illegible] flotilla filled a tree lined cove. Most of the vessels were in good [illegible] then, and buyers dropped in from [illegible] to day. Recently there have been prospective purchasers and the [illegible] of the ships were towed away as "economy measure" eventually [illegible] scrapped.

Ford Buys 200 of Them.

In 1925 Henry Ford purchased [illegible] of the vessels from the shipping board for $1,706,000 with the [illegible] of scrapping them at a profit. It was reported later that the experiment had not proved a financial success, but no doubt a few of the ships are [illegible] the streets instead of the seas, [illegible] flaged far better than they were during the war.

During the war the shipping [illegible] organized the Emergency Fleet corporation, later called the Merchant Fleet corporation, which built hundreds of vessels hurriedly, designed to transport supplies and ammunition to troops overseas. Built for war use many of these boats have been used for little else. The best ones were sold at auction, some were [illegible] and the others have either been dismantled or condemned to rot at the Hudson rendezvous or in Kill Van Kull.

Capt. Lee of the Peekskill flotilla will be without a command [illegible] The "taxpayers' eyesore" will be hidden away with the sixty-five other war derelicts and another chapter will have been finished in the history of our merchant fleet.

GUNMAN ROBS HOTEL OF $300.

Tragedies Many Miles but Few Hours Apart.

Herrin, Ill., June 5.—[Special.]—A problem of abnormal psychology was injected today into the investigation of the killing of Marshall Richardson, 62, and his wife, Laverne, 32, whose bodies were found on their chicken farm last night. Richardson had been shot to death in the chicken coop and his wife's body was found in the embers of a fire that destroyed their home.

The police, who at first regarded the crime as the deed of robbers, later veered to the theory that the wife had killed her husband and then immolated herself. Moreover, they believed tonight that they had found the origin of her impulse in a murder and suicide which occurred yesterday in her birthplace, Gainesboro, Tenn.

Brother Kills Wife and Self.

At Gainesboro, a village 400 miles southwest of here, Mrs. Richardson's brother, Wade Buck, had killed his wife and himself in a domestic quarrel. It was established that Mrs. Richardson had been informed of the Gainesboro tragedy a few hours before she and her husband were found dead.

A party of motorists, driving out to Richardson's place on the edge of Herrin last evening to purchase a broiler, found his cottage in flames and the chicken coop just catching fire. Believing the couple away from home, the motorists ran to the shed to release the chickens.

Face down inside the open door the rescuers found Richardson with a flashlight in reach of his right hand. Thinking him merely overcome by smoke, they shooed out the chickens and then turned him on his back. His shirt was stained with crimson and a welt on his forehead marked a blow that had been dealt him with some blunt instrument.

The motorists turned in an alarm to the sheriff, police and fire department. The chicken coop blaze was quickly extinguished but the fire in the cottage flamed until all but the frame and foundation were consumed.

Wife's Body in Ruins of Kitchen.

In what had been the kitchen, lying close to a red hot metal box, the police found Mrs. Richardson's body. Two shotguns lay close at hand, but the condition of the body made it impossible to determine whether she had been shot. The metal box, at first believed to be a crude safe, was later recognized as the inner lining of a refrigerator.

From the evidence at hand, the police at first conjectured that Richardson, hearing thieves among his chickens, had gone out with the flashlight, was slugged over the head and then shot dead by the marauders. The wife, they reasoned, had probably heard the shots and was going to defend her husband with the shotguns when she was ambushed and killed.

Richardson was known to have money around the house and two of four prisoners, who escaped last Monday from the Williamson county jail at Marion, were reported to have been seen lurking around Herrin since their flight.

As for the fire, the police surmised the killers had started it to conceal the murder. The single flaw in the theory was that a fire started in the cottage would not cover up the murder of Richardson, lying in the chicken coop.

Learn of Gainesboro Tragedy.

The police were discussing the discrepancy today when a neighbor of the family came forward with the story of the dual killing at Gainesboro yesterday. A telephone call to the Gainesboro sheriff confirmed the story.

According to the Gainesboro sheriff, Buck and his wife had quarreled over her plan of going to visit her father, an inmate of the state asylum at Nashville. Buck had insisted she defer the visit until July 15, when he expected to have his crop harvested.

The wife had packed a bag and was about to leave when, according to the sheriff, Buck seized his shotgun. His first blast tore away her right arm and the second entered her chest. He fired the third shot into his own head. Buck's mother-in-law, who witnessed the killing, telephoned Herrin to tell Mrs. Richardson the details, the sheriff said.

FIND HIGH SCHOOL BOYS VICTIMS OF CONFIDENCE MAN

High school boys in the neighborhood of Avalon park, on 82d street east of the Illinois Central tracks, have been the victims of a confidence game, the police were told yesterday.

Calling at the home of a boy, a glib stranger says that his brother, a garage and filling station proprietor, needs a boy to work after school, according to the story. If the boy consents, the stranger says he will take him to the garage.

The boy is told he will have to pay $2.75 for a suit of overalls with the name of the garage on the back. However, the stranger adds, he can get the overalls for the lad elsewhere for $2. The boy gives him $2, the stranger agrees to meet him at the garage and vanishes. The boy finds there is no such garage.

MAURETANIA CAPTAIN ORDERED ON LEAVE; 'EXPECT RETIREMENT

New York, June 5.—(AP)—Capt. S. G. S. McNeil, master of the Cunard liner Mauretania, which held the Atlantic speed record for many years, is to "go on leave," construed in shipping circles as a retirement. The Cunard line has been retiring captains reaching the age of 60.

He arrived last night from Southampton and said he was puzzled by his orders to "go on leave."

Mistake in Verdict Is Disclosed.

the death penalty. I am sure that he honestly thought so.

"Brady was for a not guilty verdict for a while but he finally signed with the others. Brownbridge was reluctant but also signed. And I am sure that the whole twelve of us filed into the jury box in the belief that we were about to send Kirkland to the electric chair."

Dumfounded at the Result.

When the verdict was read, the jurors turned towards the Draves family, expecting some sign of thanks for the stern justice which at least ten of them believed they had dealt to Kirkland. They noted with amazement the glances of hatred from Arlene's sister and her father. They were dumfounded, they said, at the glee evinced by Kirkland and his attorneys.

"What's happened?" one of them whispered to a bailiff. "What's all the noise about?"

"Why, that verdict means that he gets off with one year to life," the bailiff replied.

The jurors were stunned, they said. They were not eager to reveal their predicament.

If the state had been permitted to poll the jury at the time, the mistake would have been revealed. But Indiana law allows only the defense to make such a poll. The jurors, after their appeal to the judge, left the courtroom and went home, hurrying away from the hostile glances cast at them in the streets.

Hoped to Be Called by State.

"I'm sick about the whole case," said Juror Morrow. "It seemed to me the state was hampered all through the trial. Kirkland should most certainly have been electrocuted and it is a terrible thing that he should have escaped. I and the others have been hoping that the state would call us and question us but we have heard nothing. We want to make a clean breast of the whole matter now."

Morrow had stopped harrowing a ten acre field to make his statement. He resumed his plodding behind a team of horses. Other jurors were interviewed on their farms, scattered about Porter county. Four of the twelve are residents of Valparaiso.

Nine of the other jurors reiterated Morrow's version of the events in the jury room. They dwelt with sorrow on the mistake they had made.

"If we only had a chance to consider at all over again," some of them declared.

Another Juror's Version.

Brady had a different version of how the mistaken penalty was decided upon.

"The eight verdicts which puzzled us all were laid out on a table," he said. "We numbered them, one to eight. All through the trial, the lawyers had harped on the fourth count of the indictment which carried the death penalty. It happened that the verdict marked No. 4 was the one finding Kirkland guilty of assault and battery with intent to commit rape. I believe the jurors picked that one, thinking it was the death penalty verdict."

What effect the statements of the jurors will have on the hearing Tuesday was a subject of argument among attorneys. Some said there was a possibility that a mistrial might be declared. Others asserted that nothing could be done legally except to inflict the punishment of five to twenty-one years in prison upon Kirkland.

PASSENGER RUNS AMUCK ON LINER; KILLS 2, STABS 29

TOKIO, June 5.—(AP)—A Filipino steerage passenger stabbed two persons to death and wounded 29 others today on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada, bound from Vancouver, B. C., to Yokohama.

The Filipino, Granciano Bilas, 42, ran amuck with a knife, stabbing indiscriminately. He killed Chan Ching, Chinese boy, and Chan Yui, Chinese carpenter, members of the crew.

Officers of the ship, armed with pistols, cornered the killer and placed him in irons for trial at Hongkong. For half an hour the Filipino had eluded pursuers as he dashed about the steamship, throwing it into an uproar.

CHORUS LADIES FIND THERE IS A SANTA CLAUS

Earl Carroll Has Jobs at $100 a Week.

New York, June 5.—[Special.]—A lot of ambitious actresses around town are about ready to quit taking voice lessons and go in for the stage in a serious way by the chorus route. Earl Carroll tied Broadway in a bowknot and just about depopulated the Times square automat today when he sent out a call for chorus ladies for the new summer Vanities and casually mentioned he would pay $100 per week on the hoof.

Now $100 a week is considerably more than twice as much as the average show girl gets on Saturday night and there was quite a turnout from various parts of Hoboken, Jersey City, Long Island, Westchester, the Bronx and Manhattan when the doors were opened at the Shubert theater where the Carroll laboratory tests are being conducted.

About 1,000 [Assorted] On Hand.

There were approximately 1,000 assorted girls on hand. There were Nordics and near Nordics, red heads, blondes and brunettes—some by nature and others by inclination and drug store technique. There were tall girls and short girls, plump ones and skinny ones. They came in bathing suits, in street clothes, in chemises and shorts and evening gowns and, of course, there was a couple of squadrons in pajamas.

From mid-morning until sundown Mr. Carroll and his expert appraisers of femininity on the hoof rolled their eyes up and down long lines of girls in scanties. Howard Deighton, a long rod in his hand, took front and rear measurements and between cigarettes reported on knock knees, spavins, string halted ankles.

The weeding out process was painful but definite, five feet four inches tall was the deadline this afternoon. Any girl who tipped the scales at more than 119 pounds was told to go home and go on a diet before returning.

Here's the Specifications.

It developed that Mr. Carroll's girls must measure up to the following requirements: Neck, 11 inches; bust, 34 inches; waist or thereabouts, 21 to 23 inches; hips or in that vicinity, 35 inches; thighs, 21 inches; wrists, 7 inches; ankles, 9 inches or under.

Forty girls were culled from the mob by a wave of Mr. Carroll's hand. It was to the automat for the others. Mr. Carroll, by dint of practice over a long period, can tell what he wants in one sweeping glance. He looks at the feet first and then the ankles and the legs saving the face for the last. If the legs and body are right, the face can be fixed in the makeup room.

GIRL IN PANTAGES CASE ONCE GAVE HER AGE AT 22

Tells Jury of Meeting Rich Theater Man.

San Diego, Cal., June 5.—(AP)—Lydia Nitto, complaining witness against Alexander Pantages, wealthy showman, in a juvenile delinquency case, today testified that last year she signed an affidavit saying she was born in New York July 4, 1908.

MISS LYDIA NITTO. [Associated Press Photo.]

Earlier in the day the young woman, alleged companion of the showman in a gay hotel party, had testified she was 17 years old and a native of Geneo, Italy.

Pantages and three co-defendants are charged with conspiring to bring Miss Nitto, a minor, just 17 years old, to the party and committing moral offense against her in violation of the Juvenile court law.

Operators of Girl Market.

Co-defendants in the trial are Jesse H. Shreve, business man, and Olive Clark Day and William Jobelmann, alleged operators of a Hollywood "girl market."

If Miss Nitto was born in 1908, as she attested in the affidavit when applying for work as a "taxi dancer" in Los Angeles, she was 22 years old at the time of the party here and would not come within the jurisdiction of the juvenile law, defense attorneys said.

The girl, crying or near tears throughout, testified that Mrs. Day called her by telephone in Hollywood on the morning of Oct. 30 and asked her if she wished to go to San Diego to attend a party for which she would be paid $15.

"I said, 'Yes,'" Miss Nitto answered.

Jobelmann Calls for Her.

Then she said Mrs. Day and Jobelmann called for her, and after picking up Helen Livingston, another girl, they came to San Diego.

En route, Miss Nitto said, Mrs. Day informed her that she was to be the partner of Alexander Pantages, who would be going under the name of Alec Brown, while Miss Livingston would be with Shreve.

The girl burst into tears when asked to describe what occurred when, after waiting in a show an hour, she finally was taken to the hotel and left alone with Pantages in his room.

Just before the others returned to the room, Miss Nitto said, Pantages gave her $10 and told her she was "too young to be here."

Admits Changing Story.

Jerry Geisler, Pantages' attorney, obtained from Miss Nitto admissions that at the time she was questioned by district attorney investigators last February she denied that Pantages had mistreated her, but after being incarcerated in the Los Angeles juvenile hall three days she changed her story.

She said she had been told that she would not be prosecuted as a delinquent if she testified against Pantages and the others, and would be sent by the Los Angeles district attorney's office back to her former home, New York, after the trial.

CAPONE GIVES UP ON U. S. INCOME TAX INDICTMENT

Faces Long Prison Term for $215,080 Fraud.

lieutenants first and leading up to Al himself. One by one he attacked and vanquished Capone's leading props.

First there was Ralph Capone, brother of Al. Ralph was sentenced to three years' imprisonment for income tax frauds, and he has an appeal pending. Frank Nitti, the financial brains of the Capone gang, pleaded guilty and he is now serving 18 months in Leavenworth prison.

Jack Guzik was found guilty of evading income taxes by a jury and his punishment was fixed at 5 years in Leavenworth. Sam Guzik, brother of Jack and an important Capone cog, pleaded guilty and he was on his way last night to serve a year and a day at Leavenworth. Louis Lipschultz, a brother-in-law of Jack Guzik, is facing prosecution.

These gangster prosecutions were aside from Mr. Johnson's other successes in obtaining pleas of guilty from Frank Lake and Terry Druggan, the beer baron twins, and his conviction of State Representative Lawrence G. O'Brien and Assessor Gene G. Oliver, and the indictment of former Building Commissioner Christian P. Paschen, all on income tax fraud charges. As they phrased it at the federal building, Prosecutor Johnson's batting average to date is 1000.

Earlier True Bill Included.

The government, in the Capone indictments, did not allege the sources of the income. The income figures in the two indictments are:

	Net Income.	Tax owed.
1924	$ 123,101.89	$ 32,489.24
1925	257,285.98	55,365.25
1926	195,676.60	39,962.75
1927	218,036.04	45,357.76
1928	140,535.93	25,887.72
1929	103,999.00	15,817.76
Total	$1,038,554.84	$215,080.48

The net income represents a deduction of $1 per year from Capone's gross income. Much of the income represented money telegraphed from Chicago to Capone at his estate, near Miami, Fla., where he has been in considerable trouble with the authorities. Other represented the known profits of Capone from Cicero gambling houses, dog tracks, and horse racing bets. As far as could be ascertained no specific portion of the income was chargeable to Capone's wholesale bootlegging activities.

Capone's actual income—the syndicate income—has been estimated at as much as several millions a year, and he was known to have dispensed it with a lavish hand, always using cash instead of checks. He was reported to have lost more than $100,000 on the last Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago and for three days before and after the fight he was entertaining at a south side hotel, where numerous cases of champagne were consumed.

Try to Trace Income.

In investigating the cash receipts of other Capone gangsters the investigators were always seeking information about what went to the boss. Fred Ries, a witness in the trial of Jack Guzik, told of huge profits in a Cicero gambling house where he was employed. He said a portion went to Al Capone.

Louis La Cava, once a Cicero gambler in Capone's confidence, was brought to Chicago from Pittsburgh to give testimony regarding Al's wealth. "Two Gun" Louis Alterie, once a Capone partner, was brought here from his Colorado ranch to give evidence against Capone.

District Attorney Johnson received the coöperation of the Washington authorities in his determination to perfect his proofs against Capone. Frank Wilson, a special intelligence ace was sent here from the capital. Mr. Johnson, with his assistants, Dwight H. Green, Samuel G. Clawson, and Jacob Grossman, worked hand in hand with A. P. Madden, chief of the special intelligence unit of the department of internal revenue, and Special Agent Clarence Converse.

Investigators Join Gangs.

More than 1,000 persons were interviewed by the government agents. The investigators went everywhere Capone went and they questioned everybody Capone knew. Some of their men joined gangs and worked from the inside. Others were going from bank to bank, scanning accounts in names that might have been Capone aliases, tracing checks of saloonkeepers—always hunting evidence to be used against Capone, ruler of a lawless domain.

"They did a good ob and I am proud of them," Mr. Johnson said.

So well did the investigators perform that hundreds of Capone stills, breweries, booze warehouses, gambling houses, and brothels were raided. The prisoners were always questioned about Al's income and gradually concrete proof was massed for the final blow against the gang chief.

Syndicate Broken Up.

Yesterday it was announced at prohibition headquarters that a Capone alcohol syndicate that had an output of at least 10,000 gallons a week has been broken up and twenty prisoners are awaiting grand jury action. This syndicate had headquarters at Aurora and distributed alcohol throughout western Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, and South Dakota. Chief Special Agent W. E. Bennett made the final arrests early yesterday morning.

VOTES 58-41 NOT TO FIRE GOVERNOR OF TENNESSEE

House Turns Down Eight Impeachment Articles.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Nashville, Tenn., June 5.—[Special.]—Tennessee crossed the bridge of its immediate political destiny today by refusing to turn the present Democratic administration out of office by the impeachment method.

After three days of debate the house of representatives this afternoon, by a vote of 58 to 41, declined to adopt the first of eight articles of impeachment returned against Gov. Harry H. Horton by its committee of investigation.

As this article was a sort of blanket indictment against the governor charging him with conspiring with Col. Luke Lea and Rogers Caldwell to defraud the public treasury its rejection forecasts the failure of the other seven articles and the whole question of responsibility for the state's financial plight must now go into the next campaign.

Aid to Crump's Power.

The action today will have its influence on the next presidential campaign, for if Gov. Horton had resisted the political power of Congressman E. H. Crump of Memphis would have been considerably enhanced throughout the state and his views as to candidates and policies would have carried greater weight. Gov. Horton, who is a dry, popular, in rural Tennessee and with the churches, is not expected to attempt to succeed himself, but his organization now is in stronger position than it has been at any time since the bank crashes of last November, in which the state lost seven million dollars.

Congressman Crump, who has been directing the opposition from his hotel room across the street from the old battle scarred capitol, was not present when the vote was taken. Gov. Horton held open house in his office and received a long line of visitors of congratulation. The silver haired executive, who is reported to have become almost hysterical during the long debate over his fate, was trembling with happiness this afternoon. During the proceedings he never has been accused of personal dishonesty, but of being a weakling in the hands of financial pirates. It is said that he will go out of office poorer than when he came in through the death of Gov. Austin Peay.

Fear Memphis Politicians.

One of the arguments that was undoubtedly effective was that to turn Horton out would put the Memphis politicians into power. There is a rural prejudice against the great city on the Mississippi, and the men from the mountains have little in common with the westerners.

Of the seventeen Republicans in the house, only four voted for impeachment.

The debate was closed at 1 o'clock this afternoon by the young firebrand Republican from the east, Representative J. Tom Taylor, a member of the family famous in many a political battle.

Taylor Rebuked by Speaker.

Taylor pointed the finger of accusation at member after member of the governor's camp. He became so personal that Speaker Walter Haynes rebuked him. To one man he said: "You are only seeking feathers to make a bed to fall on." Another he accused of having sold his vote for a political job.

"Are you going to betray the people of Tennessee?" he cried to his colleagues as with the perspiration wilting his collar and running down his face he called on all the illustrious dead to come to the aid of Tennessee in this sore hour of political history. The voices of the past, it seems, were against any such precedent and the impeachment of a southern governor being established here.

The galleries were filled and the railings back of the chamber were pressed by an excited throng of lobbyists and friends of the members. Each member had visitors at his desk and the room was succocating in a temperature above 100.

All the recent sad history of the state and of this section of the south was paraded in the argument by those who sought to make the governor responsible. The great conspiracy through which Caldwell and Lea obtained Tennessee public funds was only a part of the story as it was pieced together by various members.

Able Defense of Governor.

Representative Haston of Warren county made an able defense of the governor.

"Both sides have lobbies here today," he said. "There is the mayor of Memphis and the sheriff of Shelby county. Ed Crump was here yesterday. Office holders are here trying to get members to vote against this article. It is a shame that Tennessee has come to such a point. We should not be Hortonites or Crumpites today, but Tennesseeans.

"Let us be brave enough to say that conspiracy has not been shown here. A conspiracy involves an unlawful act. It was not unlawful for the governor to discharge employés, to call an extra session or to issue the bonds voted there. I know that he and Caldwell and Lea were political friends. It is nothing but human nature to extend political preference to a friend.

"If you had five million dollars to invest back in that time you would have trusted Caldwell and Lea with it. Were they not looked on as the money power of the south? No one doubted their honesty then. It is just an unfortunate situation, not a conspiracy."

Decide Further Delay Useless.

The impeachment supporters decided during the morning that further delay was useless and Speaker Haynes took measures to end the debate.

"No victory is ever won until the people of Tennessee have spoken," warned Representative George Stockton as the session was adjourned.

Gov. Horton said:

"I am deeply grateful to my friends in the legislature in behalf of myself and the state of Tennessee. It was a victory for good government and righteousness."

FINES HUSBAND FOR SHOOTING.

Although Charles E. Parcill, 43 years old, of 5257 Crystal street, assured Judge Freeman L. Fairbank yesterday that the quarrel on Wednesday night, during which he fired several shots to frighten his wife, was the first in their twenty-six years of married life, he was fined $5.

Rings Are Issue

The charge of larceny made by Mrs. Anna Millstone against Miss Emily Ranos, 21 years old, a nurse, whom she also named as co-respondent in a divorce bill against Dr. Henry J. Millstone, plastic surgeon, was dismissed yesterday by Judge Francis Borrelli in the South State street court.

Mrs. Millstone had accused the nurse of taking two diamond rings, valued at $2,000, from her. Dr. Millstone testified that the rings were his property and that he had only permitted his wife to wear them.

Statutory charges against the physician and the nurse, whom he is charged with having installed in his home at 742 East Marquette road after ousting his wife, were continued to June 16.

DENTIST SHOOTS SELF TO DEATH IN APARTMENT

Dr. James D. Frankel, 44 years old, a dentist in the Pittsfield building, 55 East Washington street, shot and killed himself yesterday in bed in his apartment at 1164 North Dearborn street. The body was found by Mrs. Bussane Grossman, 37 years old, 5133 Kenmore avenue, an insurance agent, who went to the dentist's residence to investigate after he had failed to keep a dinner engagement with her last evening.

Mrs. Grossman told Lieut. John McGinnis of the East Chicago avenue police that Dr. Frankel had spoken to her on Thursday about the futility of living and had expressed despondency over his financial affairs.

Plan to Drop Elementary Classes in Bancroft School

William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, yesterday recommended the discontinuance of elementary classes in the Bancroft school building, 1632 North Maplewood avenue. The main reason for the recommendation, Mr. Bogan said, was that attendance at the school had dropped from 861 pupils 5 years ago to 571 today. The pupils now attending will be distributed to surrounding schools. The building will continue in use, however, as a branch of the Tuley High school, which is overcrowded.

HORSE AND BUGGY SUIT DEFENDANT FREED ON BOND

Jacob Doering, 5553 Princeton avenue, was released on bond yesterday by Judge J. G. Van Keuren in the County court after serving three days in jail for failure to pay damages to a woman whom he ran down with a horse and buggy.

A hearing will be held on June 10 on his petition as an insolvent debtor. He was imprisoned for failure to pay $5,000 damages awarded Mrs. Margaret McLennan, 65 years old, of 315 West Garfield boulevard, in Circuit Judge George Fred Rush's court. She was run down on Sept. 8, 1928.

Doering listed his horse as worth $14, his buggy as valueless. Attorney W. O. Burns, representing Mrs. McLennan, charged that Doering is concealing his assets and is the owner of a prosperous bottling concern. His client, he told Judge Van Keuren, will be bedridden for the rest of her life.

INDIANA JOBLESS DECLINE 100,000 SINCE WINTER

Indianapolis, Ind., June 5.—(AP)—Optimistic reports over the Indiana unemployment situation were expressed today by Dr. John H. Hewitt, director of the Indiana unemployment bureau, who said that the total of 200,000 unemployed in the state last winter has dwindled to 100,000.

Dr. Hewitt declared that the "unemployed are solving their own problem." He said there has been a general "back to the farm movement," and that hundreds of families are moving away from the industrial centers to farms.

LINDBERGHS MAY FLY EASTWARD ON WAY TO ORIENT

Route Would Take Them Close to North Pole.

New York, June 5.—[Special.]—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife on their proposed flight to China and Japan may fly east instead of west on a course across Greenland and Spitzbergen to Siberia and thence to China. The great circle route, the shortest possible distance to Peiping from New York flying eastward, would bring them close to the north pole, but their route necessarily would touch points which might be considered as fuel and supplies bases.

Inquiries are being made to learn if gasoline, oil and other supplies can be obtained in the necessary quantities over this route and it is expected that requests will be made within a few days of the Danish government for permission to land in Greenland and Spitzbergen.

The Lindberghs have not yet sought permission to land in Siberia or Russia, but the colonel has been assured indirectly that he and Mrs. Lindbergh will be welcome in the land of the soviets.

Considers Several Courses.

When asked tonight concerning this route Col. Lindbergh said his plans were not complete, but that several courses were being considered. The distance by the great circle route from New York to Peiping would be 6,000 to 6,500 miles. If they take this route it will be necessary for the Lindberghs to deviate from it to keep them in touch with land and the course will be longer than the true great circle.

Their plane is equipped with two radio sets including both transmitters and receivers capable of sending several hundred miles by day and perhaps 3,000 by night. Col. Lindbergh also will carry his usual food and water supply sufficient for two months besides camping equipment and a rubber boat.

The colonel declared, however, that none of his plans was definite, that he did not know in any detail the time the flight would take nor the places to be visited and that even after he had made definite plans these would be subject to abrupt change at any time either before or during the flight.

No Record-Breaking Hops.

Col. Lindbergh has not decided when the start will be made, but says that it can not be made for at least three weeks and possibly a month. "Some time this summer," is the closest estimate he would make.

"The sum total of our plans is that we have decided to fly to China and Japan, and that is all we ourselves are sure of so far," he said.

There will be no long record-breaking hops nor will there be any attempt at maintaining either a course or time schedule. Weather, supplies, the performance of their plane and most important of all, their own inclinations, will decide the course, the time and the length of their stays wherever they stop. The trip is being planned strictly as a vacation, and the colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh expect to travel in a leisurely manner and enjoy the trip throughout the tour.

They have not decided when or how they will come home except that they plan to fly.

"We had not thought of coming back in any other way," Col. Lindbergh said.

JAIL, THEN RELEASE WOMAN CLAIMANT TO CRABTREE FORTUNE

Boston, Mass., June 5.—(AP)—The doors of a jail opened and closed, and then reopened today for Mrs. Ida M. Blankenburg of Tulsa, Okla., disqualified claimant to the $4,000,000 estate of the late Lotta Crabtree, famous actress.

Mrs. Blankenburg tried to prove her claim as daughter and heiress of the actress in 1925. Her testimony was such that a judge called her "a brazen adventuress" and sentenced her to six months in jail for contempt of court for perjuring herself. A stay was granted, but a recent decision of the Supreme court of Massachusetts authorized the state to proceed against her.

Accompanied by her attorney, John J. Cummings, Mrs. Blankenburg today surrendered to a Supreme court justice, Arthur W. Dolan. Cummings asked a continuance that he might seek a writ of habeas corpus on the grounds that perjury could not be construed as contempt of court. Judge Dolan denied the motion, but postponed the sentence until noon.

When told she would have to go to jail, Mrs. Blankenburg fainted and this delayed imposition of the sentence. After she was revived she appeared before Judge Dolan and was ordered to serve six months in jail. Then Judge James M. Morton of the federal court granted Cummings the writ of habeas corpus returnable next week and set the bail at $1,000. Mrs. Blankenburg was then released.

NINE NEGROES FIGHT TO UPSET DEATH SENTENCE

Scottsboro, Ala., June 5.—[Special.]—Nine Negroes under sentence of death for raping two white girls began a fight for a new trial in a stormy session of court here today.

Joseph R. Brodsky, New York attorney, appeared armed with signed statements from the nine defendants in Kilby prison in which he was authorized along with George W. Chamlee of Chattanooga to act as their sole attorneys.

Brodsky told the court he had been warned "to get out of town and stay out" by residents of the community.

Brodsky neither asked nor was offered any protection by the court.

Affidavits to the effect that the two girls, Ruby Bates and Victoria Price, who reported they were attacked by the Negroes while riding a freight near here several months ago, were girls of loose character were filed and the court then granted both sides ten days to file additional briefs and affidavits.

Rumanian Cabinet Wins Nearly All Seats in Senate

BUCHAREST, Rumania, June 5.—(AP)—Premier Jorga's party won 109 out of 113 seats in the senatorial elections, official returns showed today. In the national assembly the government and allied parties won 299 out of 387 seats.

SUBMARINE OUT AT SEA ON WAY TO ARCTIC BASE

Slow Pace Set on Trip Across Atlantic.

Boston, Mass., June 5.—[Special.]—Sir Hubert Wilkins' north polar submarine Nautilus was well out on the Atlantic on her way to her base at Spitzenbergen, Norway, tonight. All was well on board at last accounts.

In a radiogram picked up by the coast guard the submersible's position was reported at latitude 42:09, longitude 69:00, or about fifty miles east of Capt Cod light. The vessel was then running at reduced speed, with the seas smooth and good weather conditions generally.

The Nautilus left Provincetown at 11 o'clock last night. In the first ten hours therefore she had covered only about seventy miles of the 3,500 mile voyage to her Norwegian base of operations. The presumption at coast guard headquarters was that the submarine was conserving her fuel to be ready for any blow that she might encounter on the Atlantic ahead. Before leaving here, however, it was announced that the boat had enough fuel aboard to carry her 5,000 miles.

The food supply in the submersible's larders was sufficient to last Sir Hubert and his adventurous crew for eighteen months or more. At her present speed it will take the boat about nine days to reach London.

The Nautilus will head for the ice packs from Spitzbergen. It is Sir Hubert's idea to push has way under the ice to the north pole.

BLINDED DANCER ON STAND; SEEKS $125,000 DAMAGES

Amanda King, 19 years old, former burlesque dancer living at 2441 Armitage avenue, took the witness stand yesterday before Judge Harry B. Miller in the Superior court and described the accident which robbed her of her sight.

She is asking damages of $125,000 from the city. She was blinded, she charges, in an automobile accident on Feb. 17, 1930, when the car she was riding in was wrecked on striking a hole in the pavement on Western avenue. She lay unconscious in a hospital for several weeks, she said.

BRAZIL CHEERS DO-X; OVERHAUL SHIP FOR RIO HOP

German Seaplane Lands at Mainland.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 5.—The DO-X, the world's largest flying boat, today completed its flight from Lake Constance, Switzerland, to the new world when it hopped 125 miles from Fernando Noronha island to Natal, a port on the tip of the Brazilian coast.

The German seaplane reached Fernando Noronha at 11:15 o'clock last night after a 1,400 mile hop across the South Atlantic from Porto Praia in the Cape Verde islands. This morning the DO-X was refueled for the hop to Natal.

Natal Declares Holiday.

The flying boat swooped down to a graceful landing on the Pontengy river after circling Natal. Thousands were lined along the river bank to cheer the ship's arrival and her thirteen occupants. The city, which had been awaiting the DO-X for weeks, declared a holiday.

Commander Friedrich Christiansen announced that he will remain at Natal for several days. Meanwhile the seaplane will be overhauled for the next scheduled hop to Rio de Janeiro, 1,000 miles south of Natal. After its flight to this city, the ship will fly by easy stages along the coast to New York City.

U. S. Flyer Rejoins Ship.

Clarence Schildhauer, American flyer, who started out as second pilot of the Do-X when it left Switzerland Nov. 5, 1930, but was summoned to the United States in the course of the seaplane's voyage to England, France, Portugal, the Canary Islands, Africa and then the Cape Verde islands, rejoined the ship at Natal. He has been named to pilot the Do-X to New York City after the South American cruise.

The Do-X yesterday covered the 1,400 mile ocean hop in twelve hours and fifteen minutes at an average speed of 113 miles per hour. The flight was uneventful, members of the crew stated.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH TAXES.

Forty-two per cent—not much less than half—of the taxes which fell due in Cook county on May 15 have not been paid. Thirty per cent of the preceding year's taxes are unpaid.

The jobholders are at last aroused because they see their reputations and their political machines threatened by the lack of money. But that is only one side of the matter and perhaps the less important side. Taxes do not pay themselves. Individuals pay them. For years we have been overlooking that simple fact in Chicago and now we are just beginning to become aware of it. The consent of the governed is a necessary preliminary to orderly tax collection. Whatever it may have been which gave sanction to previous assessments is disappearing. Half the taxpayers are on strike.

Many of them haven't the money and can't pay. Others are pretending they haven't the money. Still others won't pay. They have come to believe that government is not worth what it is costing and they are saying to the tax collector, in effect, "Come and get it," in the belief that no government will dare to dispossess half the taxpayers.

Of course this condition cannot continue. The local governments have contracted debts which must be paid and the public services of the police, the fire department, the schools, etc., must go on functioning. Chicago does not want a dictator and it is not going to repudiate its obligations of the past and the future. We are going to work out of the mess. It is the good fortune of Chicago that at last the city has a leader and a spokesman in Mayor Cermak who can command a respectful hearing from the legislature and from the citizens.

However, neither Mr. Cermak nor any one else can get anywhere with the taxpayers until there is unmistakable evidence that the costs of government are to be reduced. Appropriations made last January must be cut not by a few dollars here and there but by millions; and these reductions must take place not in one government but in all the local governments, without exception. Prices of all commodities have come down. That fact must be reflected in the expenditures of government. The pay rolls have been padded and the stuffing must come out. Contracts, in the considered opinion of District Attorney Johnson, who has examined the contractors' books, have been let at double the fair price. In addition, the extravagances of government, such as the building of swimming pools in the public schools, must be ended forthwith.

The taxpayers know this story well. Only by cutting costs and therefore cutting taxes can confidence in government be restored. Mr. Cermak proposes, in addition, to revise the assessment machinery and in this effort he deserves full support. He has observed the complete collapse of the board of assessors and the board of review as agencies in tax collection. Their incompetence and unfairness led in the first instance to a taxpayers' protest of such weight that the 1928 reassessment was made inevitable. After the order for the reassessment was issued, with a fair method of assessment prescribed, the community has seen the two boards charged with the task utterly unable and unwilling to do the work in a reasonable time. This is perhaps not remarkable when it is recalled that a fifth of the board of assessors is under sentence to the federal penitentiary for cheating the government on income tax; and a third of the board of review participated in a faro swindle at Springfield a few months ago.

Mr. Cermak proposes that the two boards, together with the thirty-odd township assessors, all be abolished. In their place he would have a single assessor, appointed by the county board, and a board of review consisting of the assessor and two reviewers. This method has worked well in other cities which have found it necessary to abandon the cumbersome system employed in Cook county. Responsibility would be definitely fastened on one man for completing the assessment and on three men for completing the review. Certainly assessment procedure under this scheme cannot be less efficient than it has been in this county.

The change in the assessment machinery is justified if only as an expedient. Unless the change is made, with the assurance that it gives of prompt billing of the taxes, the bankers have said they will not dare advance another penny to the local governments on tax anticipation warrants. It is an ultimatum which cannot be ignored.

The change in the assessment machinery may help to restore confidence and it may serve to tide the governments over a trying period. If it results in the elimination of discriminations between taxpayers it will accomplish much toward ending the tax strike. But the refusal of taxpayers to pay will not be entirely halted until the expenditures come down. The reform of the assessment machinery must be regarded as only a beginning.

The cure will be the elimination of wildcat extravagance and wholesale corruption.

MODERN DESIGN IN CITY STREETS.

The need for express highways through cities was emphasized, and properly so, by Mr. Thomas P. Henry, the president of the American Automobile association, at its annual meeting in West Baden. The lack of these highways, said Mr. Henry, "seriously reduces the benefits of car ownership."

Express highways through the cities are, generally speaking, elevated highways. Chicago's position on Lake Michigan has made possible the construction of uninterrupted roads along the shore, but except in such circumstances it is necessary to separate the grades if cross traffic with its dangers and delays is to be avoided. This result can be accomplished either by elevating or depressing the main artery, and as a practical matter the elevated highway is preferable.

The planning of cities has not kept pace with the times. A great amount of money is being spent in Chicago in widening many streets which might better be spent in constructing a few elevated streets through the west side. We are still thinking of the Champs Elysées as the ideal city boulevard, as indeed it was in the days of horse-drawn vehicles.

The fashion today is to stress functional values in designing furniture, although the uses to which a chair or a table are put today differ not at all from the uses of a hundred years ago, and the possibilities of successful modification of chair and table design are therefore highly limited, but in street design we have for the most part adhered to the patterns of the Romans without any recognition of the fact that the function of roads has changed profoundly since the turn of the century. Our streets are planned without consideration of the fact that the number of vehicles in the cities has increased perhaps a hundredfold and more likely a thousandfold; that their speed has increased from six miles an hour to sixty and more, and that in consequence the congestion and danger have increased to the point where they constitute major problems of city life.

For years now THE TRIBUNE has been advocating elevated streets. It is gratifying to find the powerful influence of the automobile association thrown into the demand for modernization of our highways.

PROGRESS AGAINST CRIME.

The crime commission's report on the drive against "public enemies" summarized in yesterday's TRIBUNE is gratifying evidence of progress made in the campaign against organized crime in Chicago. Miracles have not been accomplished and disappointment or even complete failures of justice have been met. But substantial ground has been gained. The morale of powerful lawbreakers has been undoubtedly weakened and that of the agencies of law enforcement raised. Certain conspicuous malefactors have been successfully prosecuted, and, while others have escaped, defects in the criminal law and procedure have been disclosed and emphasized and some legislative and administrative corrections may be expected.

The commission credits United States District Attorney Johnson, State's Attorney Swanson and his aids, and judges of the Municipal and Circuit courts for their effective service, and acknowledges that of the newspapers in giving publicity "which has had the effect of driving the gangsters, the racketeers and the professional criminals to cover at least temporarily." To these agencies the crime commission itself must be added conspicuously. Its work has been and is essential to an effective control of crime conditions and it deserves not only the moral but the substantial material support of the public. By preserving criminal records, analyzing conditions, persistently observing and where advisable criticising the administration of justice, from police to pardon and parole, it performs invaluable service and assists more than any other civic agency in the improvement of crime conditions.

THE TELEPHONE FRANCHISE.

The president of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, Mr. F. O. Hale, has informed a committee headed by Ald. Hodes that the company will not pay the city the $4,267,000 which the city claims under the expired franchise. The company is within its rights in refusing payment; but it is to be hoped that the financial stringency of the city government will not lead to any weakening on the part of the city's spokesmen in negotiating the new franchise.

The company has been holding out for a provision in the new franchise which will place it upon terms of equality with the other utilities in the relocating of its wires in connection with the building of subways. The expired franchise required the company to pay its expenses of relocation regardless of what the other utilities did or did not do. The company's depreciation account must reflect that provision in the franchise. To modify it now is to make a present to the company which it does not deserve and at the same time to penalize the car riders and taxpayers needlessly.

As a matter of fact, it is altogether probable that much of the underground equipment of the company is obsolescent, requiring relatively heavy expenditures for maintenance and at the same time placing great difficulties in the way of expansion of the service. If this is so, the transfer of the conduits to the subways will offer considerable advantage to the company. Naturally the company wishes to get this advantage at the lowest price possible; and just as naturally the city's spokesmen are justified in insisting upon retaining the provision of the old franchise.

Editorial of the Day

HOT STUFF IN LONDON.

[London Daily Telegraph.]

The widespread and eager interest evoked yesterday afternoon when it was announced that the duke of Connaught had undergone a minor surgical operation was in its very spontaneity a moving tribute to the place which his royal highness occupies in the affection of his fellow countrymen. The handsome bearing and the soldierly figure of the duke contribute something to make him the prince of romantic ideal.

It is difficult to realize that King Edward's younger brother has now entered his eighty-second year, though when one considers the variety and extent of his services to the nation and empire—services over and above his lifelong devotion to the army—one perceives how extraordinarily full his life has been. In latter years the duke has won the hearts of the French people, with whom in the winter months he makes his home; and in their hopes for his speedy recovery the British people are, we well know, joined by their neighbors across the channel.

SPRUE.

ONE of the most baffling of all diseases is a form of diarrhea which goes by the name of "sprue." The diarrhea is chronic, or it comes and goes. There is a great deal of gas and the movements are large and watery. Sore tongue is a common symptom. Sometimes patients have sore tongue and diarrhea at the same time. Frequently these two symptoms alternate. The diarrhea stops and the tongue becomes sore. After a while the diarrhea starts up and the tongue becomes less a source of discomfort. Anemia is a prominent symptom in those who have the sprue.

Drs. Bassler and Suts consider that the proper treatment is dietary. In order to overcome the anemia they give their patients liver to eat and they use extracts of liver as a medicine.

The second most important group of foods in the treatment of sprue is bananas. In New Orleans the stock treatment is a diet composed largely of well ripened bananas. A person with sprue is told to eat eight to ten well ripened bananas daily. Under this treatment they put on weight and the symptoms come under control.

Dr. W. A. Bastedo says the strawberry is even better than the banana as a cure for sprue. Another dietetic remedy for sprue is meat and eggs.

Sprue is prevalent in hot countries, and one reason ascribed is that the people in such countries do not eat enough of these foods. The appetite does not crave them and custom dictates that they are not to be used. Probably appetite is right and general health is better in the tropics among those who eat but little meat. What is true of hot climates is true of hot weather regardless of climate. But, at that, abstinence from meat and eggs can be carried too far, and that is what many people do with sprue in some instances as a result.

Physicians in this country have added bone marrow and, in other cases, they have added tripe to the foods used in the cure of sprue.

While these dietetic methods for sprue are being used physicians are experimenting in the hope of finding a cause for the disease and, starting from that, are trying to develop a medicinal cure and to formulate a method of prevention. There are many who think it is caused by a fungus—one of the Monilia—but that theory has not held its own for several years.

WHAT VITAMIN E IS.

Mrs. C. C. writes:

1. What is vitamin E?
2. Are there any foods which contain this vitamin? If so, what are they?

REPLY.

1. The vitamin having to do with reproduction. Not all physicians accept vitamin E as proved.
2. Among them are yeast, wheat germ, yellow of eggs, and possibly, sprouted grain.

KEEP YOUR FINGERS CLEAN.

G. H. writes: How can I cure hangnails? They are very painful.

REPLY.

Keep the nails and fingertips clean. Protect them against too much water, soap, and chemicals.

THEY ARE NOT RELATED.

S. J. A. writes: Will you write an article on the disease known as herpes, giving the cause, cure, and its relation to eczema?

REPLY.

There is no relation between herpes and eczema. Among the herpetic disorders are fever blisters, cold sores, and shingles. This disease is due to an infection of nerve roots with herpes virus, or with some other infecting agent. The ulcers may appear on any one of several places.

It is a self-limited disease. Cold sores get well of themselves, as you know.

YES, IF PROPERLY DONE.

L. F. writes:

1. Is the removal of superfluous hair by electrolysis permanent?
2. Does such treatment cause cancer?

REPLY.

1. Yes, if it is properly done.
2. No.

"NOT INC."

Watseka, Ill., June 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I want to conduct a small mail order and special business from a private residence and will also have salesmen working for me on a commission basis, collecting an advance deposit on merchandise ordered from them.

Does the state law permit me to do this and to operate under a name such as "Household Supply Service," "Brown Specialties," or "Jones Specialty Supply" without filing articles of incorporation with the secretary of state or conflicting with other state laws? G. D. G.

Yes.

Section 220 of the Illinois criminal code provides a penalty against unincorporated associations or individuals using a corporate name, but it has been judicially construed [219 Ill. 46] not to apply to such cases as the U. S. Express company, where no fraud is intended. Nevertheless, many cautious persons use the words "not incorporated" after the word "company."

HALF-BURNED GARBAGE.

Chicago, June 1.—[Friend of the People.]—On some vacant property in back of which I live on Blackstone avenue it has been the custom of the janitors to attempt to burn garbage. The result of it is that only about one-half of the garbage is burned and the rest of it lies around on the ground in a very insanitary condition. L. A. D.

Report is made that vacant lot has been thoroughly cleaned and notices served on the janitor of building to discontinue dumping and burning of papers on lot. Location will be kept under observation to see that notices are complied with.

LENDS CAR TO FRIEND.

Chicago, June 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—What would be the liability of a car owner in case of accident to his car when the car was driven with his consent by a friend who is a capable driver? Can I put in a claim for damages just the same as though I were driving the car, or does my presence in the car make any difference? E. A. M.

You would not be liable unless you were in some way to blame, or the trip was taken for your purposes.

AT THE NEW SCOTLAND YARD STATION IN CHICAGO.

"Wot 'o, wot 'o, wot 'o!" abouted Officer Michael O'Hennessey as he entered Chicago's new Scotland Yard police station yesterday morning. "And how are you, Sergt. Jibloolkoovitz?"

"In the pink," said Sergt. Jibloolkoovitz, "a bit nippy this morning, what!"

"Oh, rawther," said Officer O'Hennessey, "but 'ere comes Detective Goloimo. Now, why is he popping in like that?"

"It's regarding a crime," said Detective Goloimo. "I fancy it's a bit of a murder."

"My word!" gasped Sergt. Jibloolkoovitz, "why, we've hardly got our Scotland Yard 'ere in Chicago well started and in you barge with a silly murder and jolly well make hay all over the place. It's not cricket!"

"My word, what a row, no end," exclaimed Lieut. Ole Oleson as he came into the room. "But half a mo'. We're trying to make this new police station just like Scotland Yard in dear ole Lunnon, and, of course, we must have a murder. Oh, rawther!"

"'Ere you are, old poppywax," said Detective Goloimo, "and look at the bloke I've brought with me. Is he a murderer? Oh, not 'arf!"

The man indicated by Detective Goloimo was a low-browed, brutal looking creature, heavily handcuffed.

"Ah, I didn't do nuttin'," said the prisoner; "dese guys is framin' on me."

"This is the new Scotland Yard station in Chicago," exclaimed Lieut. Oleson. "I cawn't understand you when you talk like that. Did you commit this murder?"

"Not half!" replied the prisoner.

"Ah, I say, that is much better," observed the lieutenant. "But, my man, let me tell you something. You are living on the Gold Coast; you had soft boiled eggs and toast for breakfast. You murdered a lady by striking her severely in the face. Come, now, tell me everything. Remember, this is Scotland Yard in Chicago."

"Gawd's trewth!" gasped Sergt. Jibloolkoovitz. "How did you know all that, loot? I mean, chief."

"Merely elementary," smiled the lieutenant. "The bounder lives on the Gold Coast, because he wears purple spats. He had soft boiled eggs and toast for breakfast, because he has some of the soft boiled eggs still on his chin. He murdered the lady by striking her in the mouth, because his knuckles are covered with an 'alf inch of lip rouge."

"I want my husband," wailed a voice at the door, and a loudly dressed female dashed into the room and threw her arms around the prisoner.

"I say, my good woman," interposed Officer O'Hennessey, "this man has committed murder!"

"Oh, law, no," exclaimed the lady. "He gave me a swift poke in the jaw, but hain't that his privilege? He an' me's married, hain't we? And all because I wouldn't cook eggs and toast for him this morning. And him swelling aroun' with his brother-in-law's purple spats on, what he swiped."

"Turn 'im loose," said Lieut. Oleson, pointing to the prisoner. "That is, I mean, release the fellow and let him go his way. However, and notwithstanding, we must have murder; so look alive, you lads, and shake a leg."

SOMEWHAT EXCITING LULLABY

Away we go together
To try the silver weather;
The moon is on the heather
And the wind leans low.
Forgotten wings are gleaming,
And with a little scheming
I'll find you in your dreaming
The place the fairies go—
My sweet, the place in dreamland where all the fairies go.

Searching all the valleys between the drowsy hills
And rub them on your nightiegown and rub them in your hair,
And rub them on your silver shoes, if we can find a pair;
Then tiptoe past the gateway and hum a sleepy tune
To lull the sleepy evening and hush the sleepy moon;
And not an eye shall see us, and not a single star
Shall mark us on our merry way to where the fairies are—
Dainty Queen Titania, Oberon and Puck,
Drinking honeysuckle wine with "Luck! Luck! Luck!"
And their "Luck! Luck! Luck!" goes roaring to the sky
And a gnarly Elf so old as you never would believe
Spills the most of his wine down a slit in his sleeve!
And if you cannot see them you needn't come and say
I must have been mistaken and didn't know the way;
For if you cannot see them you don't amount to much—
You're just the sort of person a fairy wouldn't touch.
So off we go together
To try the silver weather;
The moon is on the heather
And the wind leans low;
Go gather up your dreaming;
The woods are simply teeming
With wings and garlands gleaming
Like frost on top of snow;
And with a little scheming
We'll find where fairies go—
Sweetheart, the magic bloomland where all the fairies go.

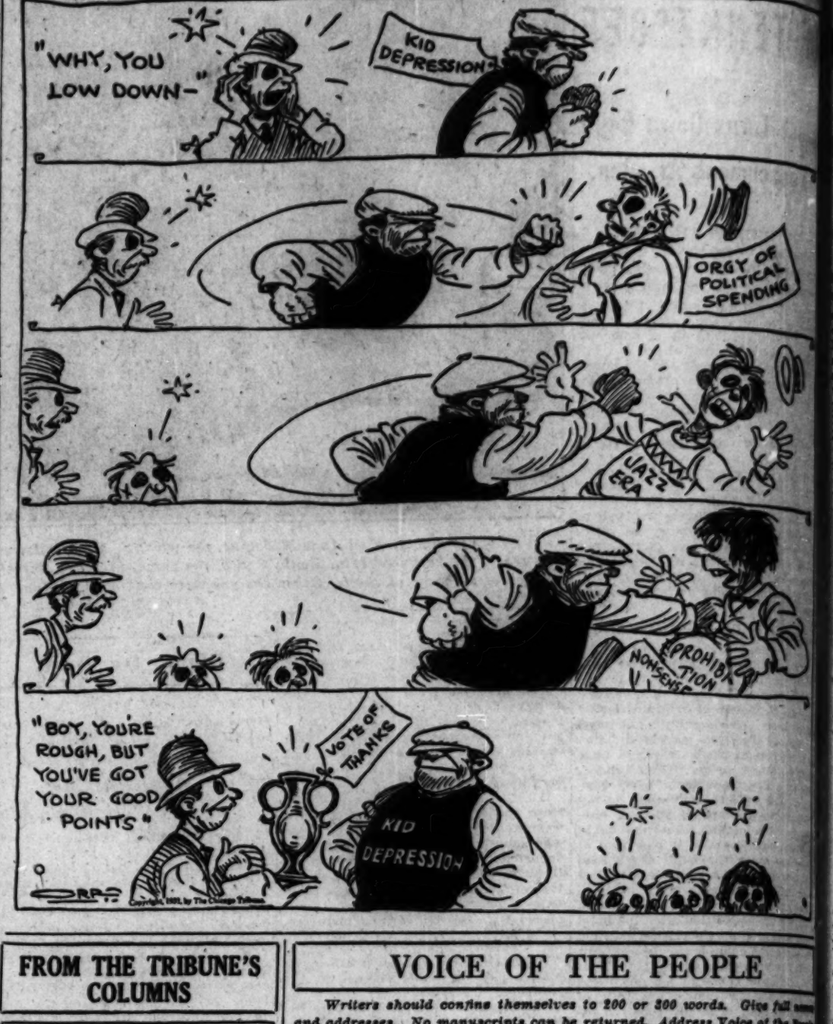
WE MAY CHANGE OUR MINDS ABOUT THE DEPRESSION BEFORE IT'S OVER



FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 6, 1915.

WASHINGTON.—"There will be no war between the United States and Germany." This was the statement made by a distinguished member of the cabinet. The utterance represents his understanding of the crisis in the relations of the two nations derived from discussion of the situation in the cabinet meeting yesterday. This is also the understanding, it transpires, of other members of the cabinet.

LONDON.—Eleven vessels sent to the bottom is the sum total of activity of German submarines operating in the English channel and off the coasts within the last 24 hours. The vessels sunk included the French steamer Penfield and the British steamers Dunnet Head, George and Mary, Kathleen, Evening Star, Ena May, Strathbran, Horace, Economy, Cortes, and Ebenezer.

LONDON.—According to dispatches from Rome, two Italian columns are advancing to lay siege to Roveredo, the important strategic position of the Austrians in southern Tyrol. This town, fifteen miles by railroad from Trent, is defended by powerful batteries on the surrounding heights and two lines of forts on the southern side of the town.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

BOSTON.—Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, head of the Christian Science church, did not libel Mrs. Josephine Curtis Woodbury, according to a decision of the court which has been hearing the case. Mrs. Woodbury had sued for $150,000 damages. Judge Bell took the position that there was not sufficient proof that the "Babylonish woman" message of Mrs. Eddy was intended for Mrs. Woodbury, her former friend and co-worker. Frederick W. Peabody, Mrs. Woodbury's principal counsel, said he would appeal to the Supreme court.

COLUMBIA, S. C.—Senator Tillman withdrew his resignation which he tendered to Gov. McSweeney as a result of his bitter political enmity for Senator McLaurin when he learned that the governor intended to appoint a new man to his place. The governor wrote him a letter stating he would accept the resignation if offered unconditionally. This was followed by a letter from McLaurin offering to resign unconditionally if Tillman would do the same.

LONDON.—Visiting members of the New York chamber of commerce were lionized by the London chamber of commerce last night. It can almost be said that the wealth of the world sat at one table, when the 200 men gathered in the banquet hall of the Worshipful Company of Grocers. British statesmen and bankers united in friendly expressions toward the United States.

WASHINGTON.—Results of the star route postal investigations when completed will startle the public. On one route last week Postmaster General James made a saving by reduction of service of $88,562, and this was done without any injury to the service, as was shown by testimony of officers commanding military posts on the route.

NEW YORK.—The Rev. Mr. Talmage took up the revised New Testament for his discourse today and handled it without gloves. He declared it to be a literary botch and a libel on Christianity. He recited a long list of the changes in the revised version, many of which excited uproarious applause on the part of his congregation.

CHICAGO.—Large numbers of visitors were at Central park yesterday and were delighted at the masses of luxuriant foliage and the well kept lawns. The Washington boulevard is completed from the park eastward as far as the Panhandle railroad and was crowded all day with carriages. The boulevard extending northward to Humboldt park is open to carriages and makes a fine drive. The boulevard between Douglas and Central parks is finished for about a mile in the center and the connections will be completed this week.

PERSECUTING THE CAVALRY.

Evanston, Ill., May 24.—Undoubtedly future generations will praise THE TRIBUNE for its vigilant fight for adequate national defense, but what will they think of its persecution of cavalry?

We have seen the armored cars at Fort Myer and believe that they will be an important factor in the next war, but why abolish the horse until we have something that can actually fill his place? The cars can go four times as fast as a horse on a good road and twice as fast on a smooth field, but so far as we know the tests are incomplete where the right of way comprises any kind of a river, a steep bank, a boggy swamp, a narrow trail, a real woods, a weak bridge, etc. Perhaps international law will some day prohibit the enemy from blowing up their bridges behind them, but it is still being done by well regulated rearguards. The armored taxicabs shed small arms' fire beautifully, but we are told that a well directed 1 pounder will knock them loose from their treads.

We think that it would be fairer to Gen. MacArthur if his statements regarding cavalry were quoted directly, rather than interpreted for us by the reporter. Most soldiers are prejudiced in favor of some particular branch of the service and perhaps some generals are great generals because they know advantages and limitations of all branches of the service.

In conclusion, we hope that we are not being unkind to the air service in saying that we do not recall the cavalry postponing maneuvers till a nice day.

A TRIBUTE.

Chicago, May 31.—It was with a great deal of pleasure that I turned to the last page of THE TRIBUNE on the morning of May 30, Memorial day, and looked at the pictures of 100 members of the G. A. What an honor THE TRIBUNE bestowed upon these honorable men, men who as boys back in the dark days of '61 to '65 answered the call of the beloved President Lincoln to help preserve the Union. These aged men must feel it an honor to have their pictures cover the entire back page.

FRANKIE POPE'S GAMBLING HOUSE RAIDED BY ROCHE

Break Down Doors with Axes; 100 Seized.

Pat Roche and a squad of police from the state's attorney's office early this morning smashed their way with axes into the elaborate gambling establishment conducted by Frankie Pope at 610-12 Diversey parkway, seized $400 in cash, and a large amount of gambling apparatus, and took into temporary custody 100 patrons. Pope and five dealers were held for court and the patrons were later permitted to go home.

The place was operated under the name of the Hoffman Distributing company, and the gambling rooms were on the first floor. On a balcony was a radio amplifying device by which race results were heralded to patrons on the main floor. All around the main room were blackboards bearing the names of race horses and odds.

Among the equipment seized were five roulette wheels, three dice tables, a costly card table, and other apparatus, the value of which Roche estimated at $10,000.

Judge Upholds Gamblers' Plea.

The raid followed an order by Municipal Court Judge Freeman L. Fairbank yesterday for the return of four pistols, an outlay of gambling paraphernalia, and $1,680 in cash to Julius Benvenuti, whose place at 2900 South La Salle street was raided by state's attorney's investigators last Wednesday.

Judge Fairbank issued the order in upholding a motion of Benvenuti's attorney to suppress the evidence on the ground that the raid had been made without a search warrant.

The judge also informed Benvenuti that if the property was not returned he would issue a warrant charging larceny against those who held it.

With this information Benvenuti went to the offices of Roche to claim his property. Roche returned the $1,680, but refused to give up the guns and gambling outlay.

"Let the judge issue the larceny warrant if he wants to," Roche declared.

Roche Aroused by Ruling.

"Furthermore," Roche said, "this is the last of the gambling raids this office will make in the city, and if the public wants to know why, they can ask the judges. We didn't need any warrant to raid Benvenuti's place. It's a notorious gambling house where hundreds are gambling every day. Our men walked in and saw them gambling and staged the raid."

Benvenuti has long been considered immune from trouble.

Following the raid on Pope's place Roche was asked about his statement that he would make no further raids in the city.

"I changed my mind," he said with a smile.

Roadhouses Are Warned.

Three roadhouses in the northwest county district were visited early this morning by Roche and three police squads on reports that roulette, craps, and other forms of gambling were permitted in two of the houses. No evidence of gambling was found.

The places visited were the Villa Venice, in Milwaukee avenue near the county line; the Lincoln tavern and the Dells, both in Dempster road near Waukegan road. It was in the latter two places gambling was suspected, Roche said. He warned the managers that no gambling would be tolerated.

EIGHT ACCUSED OF BUS WRECKING PLOT ARRAIGNED

Eight persons accused in connection with an alleged gang conspiracy to ruin the Interstate Transit bus lines by staging fake accidents and bringing personal injury damage suits, were held for a hearing on July 2 by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court yesterday when they were arraigned before him.

The eight men and women who were seized on Thursday by investigators for the state's attorney's office, are purported to be agents of the Purple gang of Detroit, and warrants have been issued for 12 others involved in the alleged plot. Julius T. Skrydlewski, assistant state's attorney, requested the continuance to July 2 to allow time for the arrest of the others.

Among those held is William H. May, driver of the bus said to have been deliberately wrecked near Pontiac, Ill., last April. Others are persons who presented claims for injuries in the accident. The United States Fidelity and Guarantee company, which held policies for the bus company, instituted the inquiry.

Mrs. Lenora Fowler, 22 years old, a divorcee and the mother of a 4 year old girl, who early yesterday leaped to the sidewalk from her third floor room in the Hotel Stratford, 4131 Sheridan road, was in a serious condition last night from skull fracture in the American hospital. Hospital authorities said she was expected to recover, however. Mrs. Fowler said she was granted a divorce on desertion grounds from James M. Fowler, May 1, 1929.

Continue Murder Case Against O'Donnell Aid

Murder charges against James L. Quigley, reputed henchman of the "Spike" O'Donnell gang, who is held on a charge of killing Edward Fitzgerald, were continued to June 11 by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Felony court yesterday to allow the state's attorney time to obtain additional evidence. Fitzgerald, a follower of the Frank McErlane gang, was slain at a south side saloon in April.

HIGHWAY POLICE BILL CERTAIN TO BRING A FIGHT

"Union Busting Constabulary," Is Charge.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 5.—[Special.]—A fight on amendments to a senate bill which gives blanket powers to the state highway police and would allow them to exercise all the rights now possessed by city police and co-sheriffs is scheduled in the house next Tuesday when the bill is called on third reading—the passage stage.

The amendments were attached to the bill last Tuesday at the request of Representative David Hunter [Rep., Rockford] after labor leaders had fought their adoption. Mr. Hunter made the move when Attorney General Carlstrom gave an opinion holding that the highway force may police traffic and only go beyond these duties when and if its aid is asked by a sheriff or city policeman.

At present the law gives the duties of the force as follows: "To patrol the public highways and rural districts and to make arrests for violations of the provisions of said acts."

Gives Powers to Police.

The Hunter amendment adds this clause to the sentence, "and of all other laws of this state," and continues: "State highway maintenance policemen may make arrests without warrant for a criminal offense committed or attempted in their presence or when a criminal offense has in fact been committed and they have reasonable ground for believing that the person to be arrested has committed it. They are conservators of the peace and as such have all the powers possessed by policemen in cities and sheriffs except that the maintenance policemen hereby authorized may exercise such powers anywhere in the state."

It is this broad jurisdiction to which the labor interests and others are objecting.

R. G. Soderstrom [Rep., Streator], president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, told the house when the amendment was under consideration that it was "a most vicious law" and would, if passed, develop a "rough riding, strike breaking, union busting state constabulary."

Other opponents pointed out that under a "blue low" governor the state police could be used as prohibition snoopers and could go into any village of the state, from Cairo to Waukegan, on any complaint that reached them, not being required to coöperate with city police unless they desired.

Pleas on Amendments.

The proponents, on the other hand, stated that the highway force had been doing particularly valuable work of late, the most recent instances being the capture of a dangerous band of bank robbers in East St. Louis, and the aid given in the suppression of prison riots. If given complete police powers they could continue to investigate major conspiracies, could follow a case from one county or city to another, and generally keep a close watch on criminal activities, aided by a mobility that would not stop at county or city boundaries.

U. S. CONSTRUCTION EMPLOYES TRIPLED, HOOVER ANNOUNCES

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—President Hoover announced today that the number of persons engaged in construction work or furnishing construction supplies for government projects had more than tripled since January, 1930. During the same period, he said, the number of federal employés, except construction workers, had decreased by 1,000. In June, 1931, there was a total of 1,556,000 persons engaged in federal work, counting regular and construction employés. According to the White House figures there were 902,000 regular government employés in January, 1930, compared with 901,000 in June, 1931, and an estimated 901,000 in September, 1931. The number of persons employed upon construction work and furnishing supplies therefor was 235,000 in January, 1930. In June, 1931, it had jumped to 655,000. White House figures indicated it would jump to 805,000 by September.

ROAD WIDENING COST TAKEN OFF LAND OWNERS

County to Pay Expense of Moving Curbs.

BY HAL FOUST.

The roads and bridges committee of the county board voted yesterday for the county to assume the expense of moving curbs, gutters, catch basins and fire hydrants in widening highways through municipalities. This applies to Chicago as well as the suburbs.

HOMER J. BYRD.

"By this action," said Commissioner Homer J. Byrd, chairman of the committee, "we are recognizing the fact that through traffic arteries are improved mainly for the benefit of the motoring public, that modern automobile travel is of little benefit to abutting real estate and even a detriment to residential property. For these reasons, it is only fair that the abutting property owners should be relieved of special assessments and that the motoring public should pay for the improved travel facilities.

"By this action we are also recognizing the fact that municipalities are entitled to an increased portion of highway expenditures, now that the important country roads have been built.

"With the county taking over the expense of moving these municipal improvements on county highways through municipalities, we will be able to remove many of the bottlenecks in villages and cities where residents have properly refused to pay special assessments to bring heavy traffic by their doors."

The board committee's ruling was on recommendation of County Highway Superintendent Quinlan. He had been blocked in the widening of River road by the refusal of property owners to share in the expense of the improvement through Des Plaines.

"The property owners," Maj. Quinlan told the commissioners, "are still paying special assessments on the present pavement. The present pavement is satisfactory to meet the needs of the property owners. They don't gain anything by accommodating more through traffic by their homes. Therefore they have refused—and properly so—to share in the expense."

ROAD BUILDING PLANS CALL FOR BILLION AND HALF IN U. S. IN 1931

New York, June 5.—(AP)—A billion and a half dollar road building program is being carried out in America this year, the American Automobile association reported today following a national survey.

More than sixty thousand miles of highway will be improved in the 45 states covered by the survey.

Louisiana's plans for the year call for improvement of 3,200 miles, the association found. New York state ranks second to Louisiana, with a proposed expenditure of $60,000,000. Illinois and Pennsylvania follow closely.

The total expenditures exceed those of 1930 by millions. It is expected this nation-wide boom of road building will provide jobs for many now unemployed.

Texas has a program calling for the improvement of 2,400 miles, and Oklahoma one with 2,300 miles. By 1932 it is estimated the country should have more than 750,000 miles of improved highways.

ALABAMA FORMS ROOSEVELT FOR PRESIDENT CLUB

See Democratic Victory if He's Nominated.

Mobile, Ala., June 5.—[Special.]—The "Alabama division of the Roosevelt Southern club," formed to promote the candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York for the Democratic presidential convention in 1932 made its advent at the state capital, Montgomery, last night.

Warren S. Reese Jr., prominent Alabamian, was named president, Leopold Strauss as vice president, and Robert Browder as treasurer. In their first statement officers of the club declared the Alabama organization would work in close coöperation with "Roosevelt for President" clubs now functioning in a number of other southern states.

The statement said that active campaigns are under way for Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, Owen D. Young of New York, and Newton D. Baker of Ohio, and that friends of Gov. Roosevelt in the south are determined to keep his name before the people in the belief that his nomination would clear the way for a sweeping Democratic victory next year.

All informed political observers are discounting the rumor that former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York will run for the Presidency, the statement said.

Declaring that the "Roosevelt for President" boom really had its origin in the south, the statement expressed the view that the New York governor is now far in the lead for the nomination and in all probability will be the choice of the next Democratic national convention.

DID LINCOLN TELL 'DIRTY STORIES'? SCIENCE ARGUES

Some Criticize Method of Reaching That Theory.

TORONTO, June 5.—(AP)—The processes by which Dr. A. A. Brill, New York psychiatrist, concluded that Abraham Lincoln was a dual personality who rigidly controlled his baser nature, were disputed by Dr. J. L. Moreno of New York at a joint session of the American Psychiatrist and Psychoanalytic associations today.

Dr. Moreno challenged Dr. Brill's scientific procedure in concluding that Lincoln was a "schizoid manic" type, given to low humor of an "obscene" character. The psychoanalytic method, Dr. Moreno maintained, has not been developed sufficient to warrant its use in an analysis of Lincoln.

Not only has no expert psychiatrist first hand knowledge of Lincoln, he said, but it is erroneous to base a study of the man on stories told about him by contemporaries who might have had "all sort of motives for telling them."

Calls Paper "Insulting."

Dr. Moreno's criticism followed upon Dr. Brill's delivery of a paper, "Abraham Lincoln as a Humorist," which had aroused opposition for Dr. Edward E. Hicks, prominent Brooklyn psychiatrist, when an excerpt appeared in the program of the association last month. Dr. Hicks declared Dr. Brill's statements "insulting."

Schizoid is taken from the Greek word meaning to split, and the expression as applied to Lincoln does not mean insanity. Dr. Brill concluded that Lincoln had a schizoid, or Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde personality, from Lincoln's reputed tendency to tell off-color stories.

Dr. Brill traced the split personality to Lincoln's parents; a father who was "uptutored, roving, and unstable, who treated him brutally," and a mother who was "affectionate, cheerful, fine, from whom Lincoln claimed to have inherited his power of analysis, his logic, his mental activity and ambition."

Calls Stories Obscene.

"Those who study the deeper recesses of the mind," Dr. Brill said, "will readily understand the nature of this emotional surging.

"What is very peculiar about Lincoln's stories and jokes, his own and those he appropriated from others, is the fact that many, if not most, are of an aggressive or algolanic nature, treating of pain, suffering, and death, and that a great many of them were so frankly sexual as to be classed as obscene."

Lincoln, Dr. Brill concluded, suffered from depressive psychosis, with periods of emotional depression followed often by phases of elation. His incessant story telling and fluent wit were examples of his emotional elation, he said.

Calls Lincoln Yarns Ancient.

New York, June 5.—(AP)—Dr. Edward E. Hicks, Brooklyn psychiatrist, today added further refutation to Dr. Brill's statements that some of Abraham Lincoln's humor was "off color." The Lincoln anecdotes, Dr. Hicks said, were "farm folk lore familiar in Greek plays in 500 B. C., and are still being told in rural America."

"The anecdotes of Lincoln were not obscene at all, except to modern taste as developed in cities," Dr. Hicks said. "I have been in communication with people who were brought up in the middle west where Lincoln was born and raised. They tell me that the stories Lincoln told were familiar in Greek plays in 500 B. C., which have been handed down from generation to generation by word of mouth. If some of the critics of Lincoln would go out into the country they would find the same stories Lincoln told still current."

27 Women Take Evanston Driving Test After School

Twenty-seven women who have taken Evanston's course in motor car driving yesterday underwent tests of their ability under the supervision of Policemen Fred Wynn and Hubert Kelsh. Twenty others are to take their examinations today. Of 188 who took the course in theoretical instruction only these forty-seven had had any actual experience in driving. Those who have never driven will take lessons in driving beginning on Monday.

JUDGE NAMES TWO DOCTORS TO REPORT ON HEALTH OF FALL.

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—Chief Justice Wheat of the District of Columbia Supreme court today named Drs. Felix Miller and R. E. Homan of El Paso, Tex., to examine Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and determine whether he is physically able to come to Washington to have sentence passed upon him in accordance with his conviction in the Elk Hills oil reserve bribery case. Justice Wheat's action was taken upon a request by District Attorney Rover that physicians be appointed.

According to information given Mr. Rover by Frank J. Hogan, Fall's attorney, Fall is in El Paso, Tex., and has been examined by four physicians who declare he is too feeble to stand the trip. Attorney Hogan asked that an examination be made by a court physician. He asserted that Fall could walk but a few feet, that his right lung was congested.

Despite his condition, said Mr. Hogan, Fall, who faces a $100,000 fine and a year in jail, was ready to attempt the trip if the government insisted.

TELL PROGRESS IN COMBATING STOMACH ULCERS

New Treatment Is Called Effective.

After more than five years of study, experiments, and treatment, an optimistic attitude has been taken by the medical school of Northwestern university toward a discovery for the relief if not the complete cure of stomach ulcers. The medium is neutral gastric mucin, employed by Dr. Samuel J. Fogelson.

Dr. Fogelson's progress with the treatments is attracting much attention in the medical world, Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of the school, informed alumni at a dinner last night at the Lake Shore Athletic club. The announcement was the major item of his report, which stated also that during the year calls on the out patient department have doubled, and free care has increased 60 per cent.

Too Early to Decide.

"While it is entirely too early to make definite announcement," Dr. Cutter said of the gastric mucin process, "it seems probable that gastric mucin will play a considerable part hereafter in the managemept of ulcer conditions."

Complete relief from subjective symptoms and persistent absence from pain has been afforded to patients with typical ulcer histories within three days after they had taken the mucin three times daily with their meals. Thirty grains in tablet form was also administered hourly throughout the day.

Obtained from Swine.

The gastric mucin is obtained from the gastric mucous membrane of swine and is given in ice cream or other frozen foods, or in malted milk or fruit juices. Physiological observations suggested it to Dr. Fogelson as an ideal antacid because of its protective, soothing and lubricating functions on mucous membranes, and because it combines readily with free acid.

All of the patients on whom the new system was tried had been suffering with symptoms of ulcers of the stomach or duodenum for from two to seven years. All had been on the usual alkalinizing régime and the ordinary nonirritating diet, but had obtained only temporary relief.

Joseph Oswald and Michael Mowakowski were seized in the Silver Leaf tavern, in Niles, and at the Bungalow restaurant in Schiller Park Anthony Romano was taken into custody.

Four False Dry Agents Get U. S. Prison Terms

Martin Saltzman, alleged leader of a gang of fake dry agents who shook down saloonkeepers in Morton Grove and other suburbs, obtaining thousands of dollars, was sentenced to four years and six months at Leavenworth penitentiary by Federal Judge Barnes yesterday. BOOKS

Miracle Story Good Satire on Modern Life

Bruce Marshall's Novel Is Praised Widely.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"FATHER MALACHY'S MIRACLE," by Bruce Marshall [Doubleday-Doran], was published in England, and instanter the press dusted off all of its most gaudy adjectives of enthusiastic praise. "A most delicious piece of satire," said the Daily Mail. "Fierce, fearlessgallingly true, uproariously funny" broadcasted the Catholic News. "A novel in a thousand" the New Age said. The Manchester Evening News called it "One of the most amusing books of the day," and the Glasgow Herald said: "So much gayety of mind, brilliant wit, and keen observation of men and institutions are seldom to be met within the compass of three hundred very short pages. . . . every one should read this book and be a happier and sadder and wiser man." And Christopher Morley who read an advance copy labeled it "A little grindstone made of Rock of Ages."

BRUCE MARSHALL.

A book to win all of that enthusiasm must be a miracle indeed, we thought when we opened it. We decided when we had finished it that England's reception was perhaps a trifle more passionate than the book would get in America, because there are a few local digs in it that Americans may miss, but that "Father Malachy's Miracle" is really a book of delight. It belongs to that very small group of novels that has a major premise which one must gulp down without asking too many questions, but which, after one had made that first gesture of acceptance, flows along with lovely logic and satiric grace.

The original pill that is hard to swallow in "Father Malachy's Miracle" is the miracle itself. Father Malachy, a simple, devout, pious Benedictine monk who had been imported to Glasgow for the purpose of training the local Catholics in Gregorian worship [since Glasgow Catholicism had lost its simplicity] offers to perform a miracle to show the Rev. Humphrey Hamilton of the Anglican church and the world at large that the True Church's powers were not abated by time.

He proposes to move the Palais de Danse, at which the whole chorus of "Whose Baby Are You?" are performing and which is looked upon as a den of vice by his confreres, to any spot designated by the Rev. Anglican gentleman. Pooh poohs and pishpishes only set his determination like gelatine in a tin mold. 'To everybody's surprise, except the simple and delightful Father Malachy's own, the Palley de Dance, as the Catholic bishop calls it, rises on its haunches and flies off twenty-five miles to a barren rock in the sea. The gentle little priest looks upon his miracle as a certain sign of God's goodness. The rest of the world looks upon it in so many amusingly satirical and ironic ways that the book sparkles like a Fourth of July pinwheel. Once the reader has accepted in the same gentle, childlike fashion as Father Malachy the fact of the miracle, he has a thoroughly gorgeous time watching the results.

The church, of course cannot admit that the miracle has happened until a committee has investigated it and passed upon it. The Protestant churches look upon it as an example of the foreign menace. They call it an anti-British show which no true patriot can countenance. The archbishop's rather dashing brother who had been proposing to one of the dancing teachers a few minutes before the miracle and who was waiting with her at the door for a taxi to take them on a prenuptial ride, and who was thus present in the flesh at the transportation of the Palais de Danse, "just called in to tell Father Malachy here that Ah didn't believe a word of all yon humbuggery and nonsense." Scientists declared that the miracle could not happen and therefore it had not happened. The press went into ecstasies of columns of views on the miracle of leading politicians and beauty queens.

The owner of the dance hall and the manager of the "Whose Baby Are You?" company demanded enormous damages from Father Malachy for the loss of their property and the wear and tear on the nerves of their performers after they had been unsuccessful in getting him to perform a few other miracles which would be to their financial profit. Poor Father Malachy, upon being approached by a promoter who wanted to back his future miracles to put him into the movies and to give him world-wide publicity [even wider than he had], finally consented to write a series of articles for a vast sum with which to clear up the church's indebtedness to the injured [mentally] providing the pope permitted.

The other reverberations were as amusing and as up to date and Mr. Marshall has much glee over them all. He paints a satiric picture of our present day matter-of-factness. The poor old priest who dared to "r'ar back and pass a miracle" like the Lawd in "The Green Pastures" was a babe in arms so far as knowing his fellow men. The havoc wrought by a miracle in modern life nearly wrecked the pious old soul and finally in sheer desperation he performed a second miracle.

"Father Malachy's Miracle" is as amusing a comment on modern life as you'd ask for. At times you think that it is getting a little ecclesiastical, a little complicated in its discussions of the dogmas of the Catholic church, but suddenly even the solemn discussions become comic.

There is a sly dig at the Glasgow temperament and dialect, too, in it, that delighted England and that won't be lost even on us.

New Word Defines a Type of Pest That Book Lovers Know

There is a new word in the English language. Dictionaries of the future will probably define it "Booksneaf: a person who habitually borrows books from friends. A victim to the pernicious habit of carrying away books from homes and libraries of friends and even casual acquaintances and forgets to return them."

The useful word for one of the world's pests was invented by Paul W. Stoddard of the department of English, Bulkeley High school, Hartford, Conn., and submitted by him in the contest conducted by the Book Publishers Research institute to stigmatize —well, booksneaves. It was chosen by three judges, Harry Hansen, Burton Roscoe, and J. C. Grey. Mr. Stoddard's prize was fifty books.

"Personal Maid" Is Product of Author of "Ex-Mistress"

FOSTER RHEA DULLES WRITES VIVID STORY OF FIVE ENGLISHMEN

"Eastward Ho!" by Foster Rhea Dulles [Houghton Mifflin] is the vivid biography of five great Englishmen whose names we don't believe many moderns even heard of. And yet it's a quintet who did perhaps as much, if not more, to lay the foundations in the far east of the great British empire of today as did the popular heroes whose names we all know. These five outstanding travelers of the 16th and 17th centuries were Richard Chancellor, Anthony Jenkinson, James Lancaster, William Adams and Sir Thomas Roe. An inspiring volume, full of quaint illustrations.

Book by Aid of Byrd Is Good Tale for Youth

Dog Sled Adventure Is Inspiring Reading.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

[Director of Children's Work for Branches of the Chicago Public Library.]

"By Dog Sled for Byrd," by John S. O'Brien [Rockwell].

"Robin and Angus," by Mable L. Robinson [Macmillian].

"By Dog Sled for Byrd," by John S. O'Brien—what a feast of good reading is there here for young readers of high school age to whom vacation time brings a feeling of wanderlust. It is a fascinating account of the 1,600 mile trip across antarctic ice which the geological party of Admiral Byrd's expedition completed safely, spending three months in the wilderness of ice and snow in an uncharted land.

The party of six, led by the famous geologist, Dr. Laurence Gould, left Little America with the double purpose of securing information and specimens which would contribute to the geological knowledge of the region beyond the great ice barrier, and acting as possible rescuers in case mishap overtook the plane which was to fly over the pole. Fortunately they were not needed in the second capacity, but the story of their trek across the cold, vast spaces of mountain and ice is an epic of modern romance and adventure which one doubts will be surpassed for some time to come, no matter what wonders the future may have in store for us.

The story begins with the setting out of the intrepid little company of dogs and men, as they bid farewell to the companions they are leaving behind in Little America and turn their faces southward knowing full well the dangers ahead of them and the toll of lives which the blinding blizzards and the almost unbearable temperature have demanded of those who would penetrate the secrets of this great, silent land. It is a tale of unequaled heroism on the part of man and dog, and of loyalty to a great purpose which leaves the reader feeling confident that the human race cannot but have a destiny worthwhile so long as it numbers among its members even a minority of men like these.

The author, who accompanied the expedition as surveyor, is a story teller of no mean ability, for in this straightforward, vivid account of a perilous venture he has succeeded in bringing us more than the thrill of conquest and the overcoming of physical difficulties, and has given us a glimpse into the hearts of the men themselves, of the spirit which actuated them and of that intangible something which called forth the best in dog and man—and made them one.

A marvelous book of inspiration and ideals, of thrills and adventure for the young person looking optimistically forward to life, and an equally valuable one for the somewhat disillusioned older person who has little faith in the future. A fine book for our graduation gift list.

For the younger children Mabel L. Robinson has written another story about Robin, the little American girl whom we met sojourning in Sicily in an earlier story, "Robin and Tito." The new story is entitled "Robin and Angus," and centers about the little heroine and her Scotch terirer, Angus. Angus is a lovable puppy who makes his way into all hearts in spite of his occasional misdeeds, and who finally is the means of starting his little mistress off on her career as an artist. Some readers may like Robin, too, but to this one she seems too much of a story book heroine, with her mother giving her a roll of bills as she starts out to look for her dog and her father characterizing twenty-five dollar checks as "almost too small to cash." The Robin of the earlier stories was less the heroine and more the real little girl—and the situations in which she moved were decidedly more realistic.

Critic's Guess Is Correct on 'Gin and Bitters' Author

Yes, we were right—as usual! The author of "Gin and Bitters" [Farrar & Rinehart] IS Eliner Mordaunt, as we said in our review of the book on March 30. F. B.

Knowledge of Other Books Identifies 'Her Privates We'

It was by familiarity with the remarkable "Scenes and Portraits," by Frederic Manning [Scribners], that Col. Lawrence was able to uncover the anonymity of the author of "Her Privates We." The author of "Scenes and Portraits" must have written the war book, Lawrence declared, so individual is Manning's talent. "Scenes and Portraits" has nothing to do with the war. It contains dialogues between some of the world's greatest men and a short story which E. M. Forster has called "perhaps the most exquisite story of our century."

Shaw Busy Writing Play on Moral Results of War

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, June 5.—George Bernard Shaw is busy on a new play, it became known tonight, entitled "True to Be Good." He has set aside all other work to complete the play which has occupied him since his return from the east. It is said to be not equal to "The Applecart" and not a historical drama like, "St. Joan." Its theme is said to be the dissolution of established morals by the shock of the world war, but the examples may prove unexpected.

"A Rich, Full Novel"
Strange Thoroughfare
By SONIA NOVAK
"Once you have read the first twenty-five pages you are not likely to relinquish the book . . . Incidents crowd one upon the other in astonishing fecundity, and always they are fresh and new . . . If you enjoy reading novels and you want a novel you can enjoy, read this book."—New York Sun
MACMILLAN ~ ~ $2.50

THE ROAD BACK is as great a book as ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT—or greater.

And still there are many sceptics. "How", they say, "can Remarque possibly make out of peace a book to compare in thrill, in stark realism, with his matchless story of war?"

Think a moment. Did you really believe that after four years of butchery, unbridled speech, and disrespect for property the survivors could slide out of their uniforms and into civilian life with the ease with which an actor wipes off his make-up and goes out to supper when the curtain falls?

Peace was not what they thought it would be. Peace was the bickering of politicians, peace was the pot-bellies of profiteers, peace was dinner-tables with empty places, and little food, peace was sweethearts who had not waited, peace was wives who had waited too long, peace was "Why aren't you just the same as you were before the War?"—peace was disillusionment, disappointment, discouragement.

There certainly is the material of which to write a book as great as any war story ever written.

And that book is

THE CLICK OF THE GATE

SYNOPSIS.

Iris, fifteen year old daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, disappears mysteriously from her home in a remote section of Paris. Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel, a man of great charm but no moral sense. They are cousins and the double heirs of their tyrannical Aunt Victoire, the Comtesse de Castelmauron.

Iris planned to divorce her husband and marry Maj. Alan Charnwood. Charnwood, about to depart for Africa, has postponed his trip to search for Clare, assisted by Tommy Rostetter, a journalist.

Iris moves to her aunt's home and learns that her husband is already domiciled there. He seems to have changed in character, and has taken charge of the search for Clare. Iris and Alan plan to meet at Helen Roderick's, the American woman for whom Iris has been working. Alan meets Marcel at Helen's and learns that they are friends, unknown to Iris. He recalls having seen Marcel at Le Touquet, gambling heavily and hobnobbing with a more looking couple. That night Alan sees Marcel entering the home of Susanne Dax, an actress. Alan receives a wire giving him an extra fortnight's leave in Paris.

A letter is sent to Iris, stating that Clare is being held for ransom. Her aunt offers to pay the sum asked if Marcel and Iris promise to become reconciled. Marcel meets Iris and Alan at Helen's and drives them home. He accompanies Alan to his hotel room. Alan receives a faked message recalling him immediately to Africa. That night an attempt is made to asphyxiate him. He moves to Tommy's apartment. Next morning Alan sets the flowers sent to Iris from Marcel the night Clare disappeared and learns Marcel had been away himself from the shop. Alan meets Iris and she describes to him the man who delivered the flowers. Iris gives him the ransom letter to show Tommy.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

AN AMAZING IDENTIFICATION.

As Charnwood put the letter into his inside pocket his mind revolved about the possibility of a secret arrangement between the comtesse and her nephew.

"I daresay your aunt is very fond of your husband?" he hazarded. "No end of devotion there, I suppose?"

The reply made him sit up.

"Did, your asking that?" she said slowly. "I am sure, in her inmost heart, she cares far more for him than for me, which makes what I've just learned rather surprising. Ursule says that for several months Tante Victoire was extremely angry with Marcel, refused to see him or to answer his letters. They made it up during her illness last month. I've no idea what the quarrel was about."

He pondered over this, but could make nothing of it. He went on to tell her that he had left his hotel and was staying at Tommy Rostetter's flat, explaining her to keep his whereabouts to herself.

"Don't ask why," he addded quickly, seeing her mystified expression. "I'm a good reason for wanting it thought I've gone away." Then he put his hand on hers for a moment and changed the subject. "Tell me this, Iris—do you honestly believe your husband means to behave decently to you from now on? To go through with his part of the bargain?"

A painful blush overspread her sensitive features. She answered reluctantly.

"I'm afraid he does. God forgive me for saying it, but it's his present attitude which makes it so difficult. If only he were less chivalrous, less considerate!"

"Not Pietro?" Tommy gave a low cry.

"I was sure you'd say that," he muttered, feeling the barrier between them suddenly grown substantial, "when he gave in so readily to you last night—"

"Last night?" she echoed, astonished. "I didn't see Marcel at all last night. What do you mean?"

"Didn't see him?" Charnwood sat still, gazing at her in utter incredulity. "Has you never refused to let me interview the police and get their advice?"

"I don't in the least know what you're talking about. I tell you Marcel didn't come home to dinner. I don't know where he was or what he was doing."

"Never mind," whispered Charnwood, rising. "It is of no importance. Do not wait at the museum. I'll be as quick as I can."

He let her set forth alone, and three minutes later made a bolt for the door, jumped into the first taxi and drove to the café." Tommy was there before him, seated in a distant corner.

"Got it?" he asked eagerly, making room on the seat.

"Here it is" replied Charnwood, lowering his voice. "But before you look at it I want to tell you something. Whatever the true facts are, you're right about one thing. De Bertincourt is playing a double game!"

Tommy heard what he had to say and nodded grimly.

"Just as I thought. He rang up to satisfy himself whether or not you'd been fooled by his faked orders, found you hadn't, and planned accordingly. After all, he could tell any yarn he liked, knowing by morning you'd be safely buried. His pretense of wanting to consult the police was pure eyewash, to boost his own stock and throw you off the scent. But show me the letter."

Charnwood spread the two sheets on the table.

"You see what I meant about the printing? Those P's and M's, and look at the sentence of the little trees. It's suggestive, all that, because Iris declares the man who brought the flowers looked like an artist."

Tommy pricked up his ears at this, but waving him aside, set to work at once copying the document word for word into his note book, adding a reproduction of the appended map. Meanwhile Charnwood studied the rough sketch Iris had made on the back of the envelope, certain pigeon-holed memories returning to him out of the not distant past. Could it be? With a sense of supreme excitement he drew out his pen, decorated the picture with a few quick strokes, and pored over it thoughtfully.

"I'd like to test this for finger prints," remarked Tommy regretfully, "only there isn't time. Besides, it's been handled by several pairs of hands since it left its author, who very probably wore gloves." He gave the original drawing a last close scrutiny, then folded them up. "Now I'll tell you what I've been doing. I've paid a visit to the Passage de l'Oratoire and have formed a couple of tentative conclusions. Want to hear them?"

"Go ahead. What did you decide?"

On a clean page Tommy drew an outline of Iris' premises.

"Here's the garden, with a clump of laurels level with the door on the right. There, in an almost straight line with it, are the salon windows. You see that when Mme. de Bertincourt looked out she saw nothing, although, as we've proved once and only once, it is reasonable to assume the messenger was inside. If she failed to see him, where was he? Obviously out of her line of vision, which means he was either on the doorstep or on the path leading to the back. As none of his footprints were found, he didn't venture off the flags."

"I follow. What then?"

"That brings us to the woman, who certainly was there, and could only have got there by entering at one of the known times when the gate was unlocked. Eliminating the other occasions, one concludes that she entered in company with the delivery man."

"In short, the two were acting in collusion?"

"You've got it—but you're missing something else possibly important. She must have witnessed your leave-taking with Mme. de Bertincourt, she could not fail to guess your attachment, and it is quite likely she passed on the information to her associates at the first opportunity."

"You mean she recognised me?" demanded Charnwood, amazed.

"Not necessarily. She may have, but it would be sufficient if the person to whom she confided her news realised your identity. Think it over," he added, puffing at his pipe.

Charnwood rapidly reviewed the members of the opposite sex who after Monday had become aware of his intention to stay on. The comtesse, Helen Roderick, passed through his mind.

"Only those three," he said, "if you except Mathilde, Iris' servant, who has proved to have spent the evening at Montrouge. They happen to be three with white hair, too, if that means anything."

"Well, take them in order, the comtesse first. Does she wear French shoes?"

"Certainly not. Broad, flat ones; I noticed them."

"We'll rule her out; also her maid, who undoubtedly affects the same sort of footwear. As for Helen Roderick, whose alibi is fairly substantial, she does wear high-heeled shoes, but never the sort that are run over at the sides. So our trio of suspects are disposed of."

Charnwood handed Tommy the envelope with the details of the messenger's appearance and the caricature, to which he had added a beard and a peaked cap. Tommy gave it close attention.

"Think carefully," whispered Charnwood. "Does this sketch and the description bring to mind any one you know?"

Tommy pondered. "Does it? I'm not quite sure. Yet now you mention it, it does seem somehow vaguely——"

"What about the tall chap I ran across at Paris-Plage with your red-headed Yetta and De Bertincourt? You remember?"

"Not Pietro?" Tommy gave a low cry. "By George, Alan, I shouldn't wonder if you'd hit it! It is infernally like Pietro, by all that's holy! In fact, now the woman behind the bushes, with runover heels dug well into the ground because of her weight, would be—it must be!—Yetta herself!"

Charnwood took up the thread eagerly. "Suppose the very conference witnessed was on the subject of the kidnaping? They were poring over a paper, which may have been a map similar to this one. Tommy, is it possible we've struck the trail?"

Good morning!

It seems to me that Warner Baxter and Janet Gaynor were a mighty happy choice as leads for Jean Webster's beloved almost fairy tale!

"Daddy Long Legs" has had wide popularity both as a novel and a play. It was screened once as a "silent" with Mary Pickford as the star. The talking adaptation should cause its tribe of admirers to increase, for the sound film is a human little number, peopled with honest-to-goodness folks. It has been directed understandingly, well taken care of technically, and presents a raft of cute youngsters whose doings will appeal to both children and grownups.

The plot is concerned, as you probably know, with the adoption of a little orphaned girl, Judy Abbott, who lives in a state institution when the story opens, by a wealthy and not too old gentleman, of whose identity she is kept in ignorance. Through emissaries he buys her pretty clothes, sends her to college and, finally—well, never mind WHAT, "finally!"

What makes the story interesting is the fact that; for years, Cinderella believes her guardian to be a nice, kindly, white haired old fellow with extraordinary long legs. Once, you see, on the momentuous day when she learned she was to be adopted she saw his shadow on the orphanage wall. A funny, long-legged shadow, and the shadow garried a cane.

"He MUST be pretty old if he walks with a cane," figures Judy. [Her explanation of how she got the name—Judy Abbott will amuse you and, perhaps, bring a tear to your eye]. As a matter of fact the picture will affect you like that in a number of places.

Mr. Baxter is quite thrilling in the title rôle. I wished I had a Daddy Long Legs. Janet Gaynor is most appealing as wistful, lonely, clever little Judy who finds such a wealth of comfort in "making believe." And you'll approve of all the other players, I'm sure.

"Daddy Long Legs" is recommended as a delightful week-end show for all the family.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 5.—[Special.]—Tommy Clifford, the Irish lad whom Fox imported to play with John McCormack in "Song of My Heart," and in "The Shepper-Newfounder," is now making money in Dublin, according to Maureen O'Sullivan, by doing a stage turn in which after playing the mouth organ and stepping a jig, Tommy tells his audience confidentially his 13 year old version of the inside on Hollywood.

Miss O'Sullivan herself finds Hollywood "cruel and gossipy," she says. Her eyes of Kerry blue misted with tears when she talked about going back home to Ireland which, she says, she intends to do as soon as her Fox contract is up in a few months.

Maureen's feelings were hurt this week when she was taken out of the cast of "Sky Line" for some undisclosed reason, and they were hurt still worse when, as is the Hollywood custom, her appearance at one or two public parties, escorted by Johnny Farrow, resulted in comment in which her name and Farrow's were romantically bracketed.

Lloyd Hamilton, film comedian, in a bankruptcy petition filed in federal court today listed liabilities at $49,716, which includes $12,500 due his former wife, Ethel, for alimony, and $18,000 for federal income tax.

After seeking since "Cimarron" for something to keep alive the popularity which Irene Dunn won in that film, Radio Pictures is now casting her as star of Harold McGrath's "The Other Passport."

Helen Hayes, the New York stage star, makes her sound picture debut in "Lullaby," which her husband, Charlie MacArthur, former Chicago reporter, is adapting. Lew Stone, Cliff Edwards, Marie Prevost, Aileen Pringle, and Nell Hamilton also feature the cast.

Lodge Visions Discovery of Spirit World

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, June 5. — Sir Oliver Lodge, British scientist, who will celebrate his eightieth birthday next Friday, in an interview today predicted the next revolutionary scientific event would be the discovery of another world.

"It will be a spiritual world which interacts with the material world and yet is not of it," he continued. "The discovery will be made that man is not the highest being of which we have cognisance but that there is a multitude of intelligence elsewhere, some far more highly endowed than ourselves."

Sir Oliver said the universe was much bigger and more complex than we have thought.

"We are slowly awakening to the discovery of a new world existence to which our senses give us hardly any clew," he went on.

"The universe is said to be running down. It may be, but I believe at the same time there is something which keeps constantly winding it up. This planet will certainly come to an end some day as it gets colder and colder.

"The sun cannot go on forever. We know the stars are going through a process of change now, for even the stars cannot radiate for nothing. Their power is getting less and less and something will end. Nevertheless, the human race has a long time to go on this planet. The people who are working for the good of the human race have a long time of hope.

"Civilization is in its infancy. In its mistakes are the mistakes of youth. There are plenty of things wrong with the world, but they are not hopelessly wrong. I have seen some things put right already, but there are far more waiting."

Sir Oliver believes man should live to be 100 years old.

"I don't suppose I shall live to be ninety, but one never knows. There is my old friend, Sir Alfred Yarrow, in his ninetieth year now and very well indeed. Lorn Knutsford says Sir Alfred probably will have to be shot on the day of judgment.

"As long as man can keep well there is plenty to be done in the world, no matter what his age."

Glass Rod May Save Millions for Industry

New York, June 5.—(AP)—Two Rockefeller institute scientists tonight made public developments of a peculiar new glass rod expected to save industry millions of dollars, and of growing living cells artificially.

The rod is a "PH" thermometer, about the size of a pencil. The cells are both cancer and normal.

Both men talked to a meeting of the New York section of the American Chemical society at the Museums of the Peaceful Arts. The thermometer was rescribed by Dr. Duncan A. Macinness, in charge of research in physical chemistry at the institute.

When placed in a liquid this instrument reads the balance between acidity and alkalinity. The scientific term for this balance is "PH" and it is one of the most important single aspects of life. When the "PH" balance in man gets a fraction of a percent out of line, he is soon either ill or dead. It is a narrow, critical zone where much of life exists.

In many of the great chemical products of industry "PH" is equally important. For twenty years scientific research laboratories have had instruments for reading "PH," but they have not been suitable for industry.

The new thermometer is simply an adaptation of the old scientific instrument. It works on the principle of an electrode and was made suitable for industrial use by employing glass of comparatively low resistance. It reacts only to hydrogen ion activity—that is, to the number of atoms of hydrogen which lose electrons and so develop electrical charges.

"In its new form," said Dr. Macinnes, "it should prove of great and increasing value to the many industries where the accurate control of acid and alkali content affects the very life of the product.

"The paper industry has begun to realize the importance of this laboratory invention. Some companies are using it to determines the correct sizing of paper."

Baptists Deny Federal Council Is Their Voice

Criticise Pronouncement on Birth Control.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 5.—(AP)—The Northern Baptist convention declared today that the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America did not speak for the Baptist denomination in indorsing birth control.

The council and its executives were admonished "that they would be wise, in recognition of their coöperative and nonauthoritative capacity, to limit the number and character of the subjects upon which they make formal pronouncements."

Action of the convention was by acclamation in adopting a resolution amended by Judge F. W. Freeman of Denver to "disclaim any implication that we as a denomination have approved the [birth control] transaction."

After several years of study the federal council's committee on marriage and the home reported last March its indorsement of the use of "careful and restrained" contraceptive measures to regulate the size of families.

The birth control discussion was followed by a proposal to reduce from $9,950 to $7,500 the convention's annual appropriation for the support of the council. After Judge Freeman had explained any reduction would be an economic, and not a punitive measure, the question was referred to the finance committee by a vote of 276 to 242.

Mattison Boyd Jones, Glendale, Cal., lawyer, who is the unopposed nominee for the presidency of the convention, said "without doubt the convention is disturbed over the recent pronouncements of the federal council of churches on subjects not delegated to it by the Northern Baptist convention or by any coöperating organizations of the Baptist denomination."

"The federal council cannot speak for the Northern Baptist convention of the Baptist denomination in any particular matter unless such matter has been regularly delegated and referred to the federal council for such purpose.

Announcement of a $400,000 gift by John D. Rockefeller Jr. was met with enthusiasm by delegates. Notice of the gift, which is applicable to the current operating budget without conditions or restrictions, was contained in a telegram.

Asbury Park, N. J., June 5.—(AP)—The general synod of the Reformed church in America today dropped a movement to unite with the Presbyterian church by defeating a resolution which would have authorized negotiations.

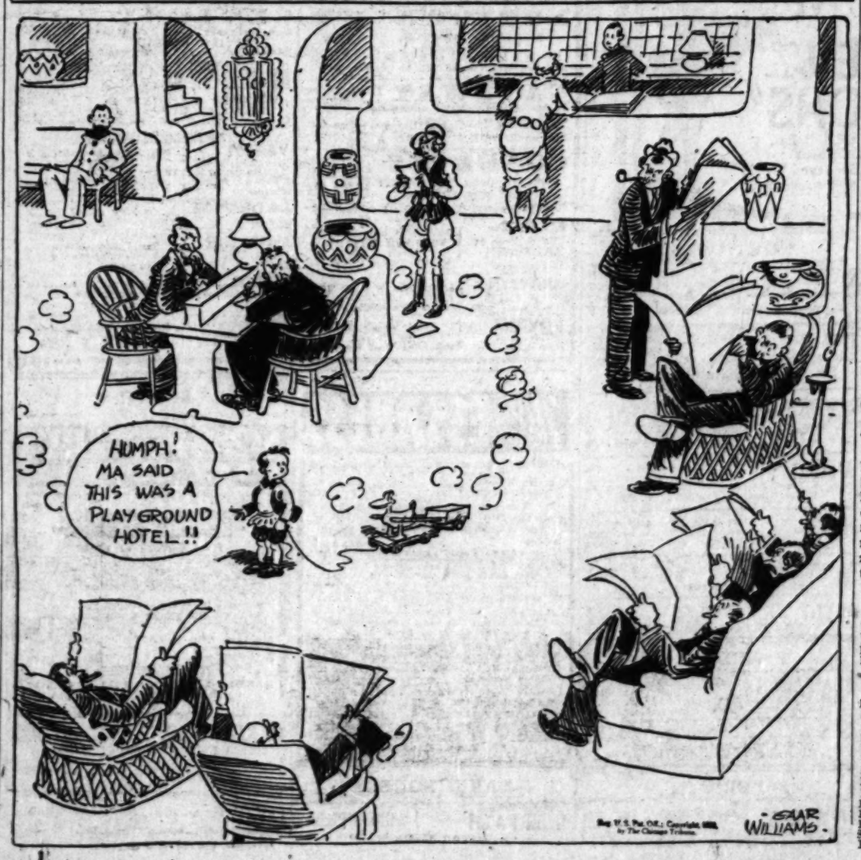
SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS



Club Exhibit of Paintings Wins Praise

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The thirty-seventh annual exhibition of paintings and sculpture by members is now on view at the Palette and Chisel club, 1012 North Dearborn street. The exhibition is chiefly paintings and the paintings are chiefly admirable. The Palette and Chisel club men have struck their stride and this exhibit, which winds up a long session of various smaller shows, is due for a great deal of praise.

The Palette and Chisel club gold medal was awarded to C. Curry Bohm for his two landscapes, "Early Spring in Brown County" and "Morning in the Smokies." The Merrill Coit memorial prize, which will be an annual prize, was given to Karl C. Brandner for his forceful "On the Payette River"; honorable mention went to the two fine paintings of Edward T. Grigware, "Florida" and "North Country," both extremely picturesque.

It is amusing to contrast the virile, masculine impression of Florida secured by Mr. Grigware and the gentle, whimsical, a bit ethereal, impression of the same state, painted by Arnold E. Turtle, in "Florida Winter." There are contrasts in everything and probably the sum of these two pictures is a true portrait of Florida.

By far the most beautiful painting in the exhibit is the still life by Leo Marsolo, which he calls "Antiques." It is white upon white, and Mr. Marsolo has achieved a sensitive delicacy of color combined with a fine craftsmanship in painting that would make this picture stand out in any company. It is unique and charming. Othmar Hoffler is possibly second to Mr. Marsolo in contributing a note of sheer beauty to the show. His two paintings are delightful in atmosphere and delightfully rich in unexpected, spontaneous bursts of color. "Stepping Stones at Low Tide" and "Drying the Sails and Blue Nets" are of the kind that is hard to forget.

Robert Kilbert has a nice, yellowish, fall field in "Corn Stalks"; Fred T. Larson has a big, bleak winter scene in "Wedron Creek"; Samuel Byer offers "Flower Study" in a technique that resembles rough clay; Glen C. Sheffer shows two fine canvases, "Arab" and "Notre Dame Square, Quebec." Among the other notable pictures are "Cloudland" by James Topping, "Irises and Books" by C. H. Cooke, "Beside the Rambling Brook" by Oscar B. Erickson, "The Rum Chasers" by J. Jeffery Grant, and "Bowl of Fruit" by Edward Jan Krasa.

Old Man Time Often Leaves His Stamp on Corners of the Mouth

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There are hair specialists; there are salons where nothing but hair is treated. There are salons where only hands are treated, and salons where massages are all you can get. Now, I sense from a certain bit of news gathered along my route that soon, if I may have overlooked it already, there'll be salons where only mouths will be molded and shaped, and I don't mean by plastic surgery, either. By contour treatment, I believe the title is.

Good idea, too. Mouths, as a matter of fact, "slip," as we girls call it among ourselves. They "slip" into middle age and older, quite shockingly, at times. Missing teeth are frequently responsible for the age slide around the mouth. Wide open spaces are often seen where teeth should be to preserve the contour of the mouth.

Anyway, instead of keeping the eyes glued to the underchin spot for crêpe hanging insignia, look at the mouth edges proper. That heavy dent in the corners, with the down groove, is the dickens to get rid of, once it settles. It's easier to get almost any other wrinkles out of the face than these, I suppose because they are controlled by certain habits of expression that have become almost second nature. But a hike up of the corners you must apply, just the same. Not a "chessy" grin, but a nice, relaxed, upturn of the mouth corners.

Dental surgery of recent years has done remarkable things by way of reshaping mouths. Mothers, with a proud eye on the growing girl, see that corrective work is done in the early days. It's too bad all mothers aren't like that, for a good set of teeth, evenly spaced and placed, will give the mouth a naturally fine contour.

Some older women have a network of fine, criss-cross lines, most noticeable on the upper lip. Others haven't a sign of this telltale mark. In massaging the face with your home treatment work you should give an extra moment to ironing out and up these fine lines while they're still in their infancy. Don't wait till they get deep set, for they're hard to get out, as I told you.

Husband Likes Night Off, Once a Week, but It Makes Wife Wrathy

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am a young married woman and have a bit of trouble with my husband in this respect: He will go out a night or two a week and does not take me with him. He and his friends swear there is no other girl, or girls. But if that is true, why wouldn't he want to take me?

"When he comes home he treats me grand. I'm not wholly dependent on him for money and he knows I can get along very well without him. Yet, I love him and would like him to stay at home every night.—LONESOME."

"Lonesome," you're not up at all on modern methods of holding a husband. All of the good advisers tell wives to let their husbands go out when the urge is on them to go out, and no questions asked.

If there's one way to encourage that itching sole of friend husband it is to nag and jaw about why you aren't tagged along every time he puts his head outside the door. Can't you understand that certain people are so constituted that they have to get away, every so often, even from persons they love?

You ask why your husband wouldn't want to take you along when there are no other girls engaging his interest? He probably just wants to get away from women and their chatter for awhile.

The confession about friend husband knowing you can get along without him, indeed, might give just the proper cue as to why he wants to get away occasionally. He may have to get away to have his courage restored. To have his pride bolstered up. He may feel he has to get out somewhere where he can be the man he was to be. This privilege is denied a man knows his wife can get along without him.

There are a number of perfectly legitimate reasons for a man wanting a night off, out of the week, even if they were not so legitimate it would still be a woman's best bet to keep from nagging and wearing unwanted company on him.

Turn the spotlight on yourself, "Lonesome," and see if you can't find some clue to the desire to absent yourself on your hubby's part.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Ask Him to Call.

"Dear Miss Blake: A fellow that I am not interested because I had to refuse two dates with him. Things have changed, but how can I let him know?

It's discouraging to be turned down several times, and he may hesitate to try again. Why don't you ask him to your home some evening?

A FRIEND IN NEED

Decorations for Club.

"We have organized a new club and would greatly appreciate any banners of the state or other mottos which would help to decorate our walls. Maybe, too, some of your readers have some sheet music with simple arrangements which they would pass on to us.

If you have any wall decorations which would help to make the [illegible] rooms more decorative perhaps you can donate one or two of them. An attractive meeting place will help to make the club a successful one.

Five Weddings Hold Stage of Society Today

BY THALIA

THE social spotlight today is focused on June brides. Five fashionable weddings, two in town, two on the north shore, and one way off in the Adirondacks, practically monopolized the calendar.

The largest affairs will be the wedding of Miss Bertha Alling to Charles H. Brown and of Miss Louise Knott Bolgerow to Scott Donathan Dow Jr. Miss Alling's wedding is to be solemnized at 4:30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian church in Lake Forest and will be followed by a reception at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Van Wagenen Alling.

Miss Alling's attendants will include Mrs. James Hadley of Glencoe as matron of honor, Miss Charlotte Robertson, maid of honor, and Miss Ruth Baker and Mrs. Dunster Lasley, bridesmaids. Kathleen Watson, the Dudley Craft Watsons' daughter, will be flower girl. Walter P. Fraker of Duluth will be best man for Mr. Brown and the ushers will include Charles D. Fraker, James Hadley, William N. Wyant of Evanston, Paul W. Jenkins of Glencoe, A. R. Peterson of Kenilworth, and Kingsley Colton.

Bolgerow Wedding at Christ Church, Winnetka.

Miss Bolgerow's and Mr. Dow's wedding is also to be held at 4:30 o'clock. The service will be performed at Christ church in Winnetka and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harve G. Bolgerow, will give a reception afterwards at the Indian Hill Country club. Miss Susan Badgerow will attend her sister as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Barbara Kist, Miss Jane Rowe, Miss Elizabeth Warren, Miss Lelia Withers, Mrs. John Dern II, and Miss Louise Reed of Pittsburgh.

George Dow will be his brother's best man and the groomsmen will include Bedford Brittain Jr., Nathaniel Dudley Kelley, Ralph W. Gilbert of Pittsburgh, Raymond C. Jandell of Erie, Pa.; George A. Smith of New York; William Reeves of New London, Conn., and Irving B. Kiett of Toledo.

In town, at 4 and 4:30 o'clock respectively, there will be the weddings of Miss Marian Withrop Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gale Taylor, to Dr. Douglas Boyd, and of Miss Geraldyne Harrell Bacon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Richardson Bacon of 466 Briar place, to Paul Porter Atherton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Morse Atherton of Boston and Swampscott, Mass.

Taylor Wedding at St. James' Church.

Miss Taylor's wedding is to take place in the chapel of St. James' church, preceding a reception at the Taylor residence at 73 East Division street. Miss Florence Taylor will be her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will include the groom's sister, Miss Katherine Boyd, Miss Jeanette Higgins, and Miss Mia Linder. Peggy Taylor and Isabel Woolford will be flower girls. Dr. William T. Harper of Alabama will be best man and Dr. Horace Stimson, Curry Furman, Dr. Samuel Gale Taylor III., and R. Winthrop Taylor are to usher.

The Bacon-Atherton nuptials will be solemnized at the residence of the bride's parents and there will be a reception for relatives and a few close friends. There will be a number of out of town guests, including the groom's parents and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Porter of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Josiah Brantley Harrell of Oklahoma City, and Lieut. and Mrs. Harold Harrell of Grand Rapids, Mich. Miss Mary Alice Bacon will be her sister's maid of honor and Miss Barbara Monroe McNulty will be her bridesmaid.

Miss Mary Betz's wedding to W. Thomas Kemp Jr., son of Mrs. W. Thomas Kemp of Baltimore, will be held at 4:30 o'clock in the little rustic Church of St. John's in the Wilderness, near the groom's summer home at Paul Smith's, in the Adirondacks. Miss Dorothy Ott, the bride's sister, and the groom's sister, Miss Louise Kemp, will act as bridesmaids. Only the immediate families will be present at the ceremony. Mr. Kemp and his bride-to-be are to spend the summer at Saranac Lake, N. Y.

Will Measles Interfere with Vacation Plans?

Cross your fingers and wish the Jane Lewis Cochran and the Cyrus McCormick and their respective families luck! They've been exposed to the measles, and if the germ "takes" their nice vacation plans will be pretty well upset. The sad part of it is that the suspense of "will they or won't they get them?" can't be settled until the day before they're supposed to set forth for the east for two months of dude ranching. They plan to leave a week from today for the L. Bar T. ranch, in the Jackson hole region if they don't get quarantine signs instead of railroad tickets. Mrs. Cochran plans to go east when they return in August, and Mrs. Hill will probably go to Bermuda.

They have a perfectly grand new swimming pool at Knollwood Country club this year, and the members are dwelling in death about it. It has cabanas all around it—about 12 or 15 of them, I think—and some of the members have bought them and others are leasing them for the season. More about it later!

Sailings and Travels and Summer Plans.

So many things . . . the Stanley Rumbolds, the newlywed William Grahams [nee Lee], and George A. Ranney were in the passenger list of the S. S. Europa which was to sail at midnight last night for Europe [Mrs. George H. Bull of Boston, her daughters, Miss Eleanor and Miss Ruth, and her son, George H. Jr., were also aboard]. . . . The James Minottos and the young Minottos are ensconced at the L. F. Swifts place in Lake Forest, but not for long, as Mrs. Minotto is planning to go abroad the last of July . . . Mrs. James Montgomery of 219 Lake Shore drive and the Montgomery family, Jimmy and Fifi, departed Thursday evening to spend the summer at Cobourg, in Ontario, Canada. Mr. Mont's return until late September. . . . Mrs. Shaw Kennedy Coleman and her daughters, Pamela and Sally Prime, are leaving Chicago for Washington, D. C.

Travel talk—Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bretzman of Winnetka and Miss Dorothy White have been at the Ambassador in New York this week. . . . Mrs. Dunnie Nellsons, who have been staying at the Savoy in London, are now visiting some of their English friends in the country. . . . Mrs. John H. Winterbotham and her daughter, Miss Rue Winterbotham, plan to go to Europe in mid-summer. . . . The Jay Northam Whipples were at the St. Regis in New York for a short stay this week. . . . Mr. and Mrs. George Leonidovitch Artamanoff, who recently moved to Chicago from Kansas City, returned on Thursday from a visit with Mrs. Artamanoff's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Downing, in Kansas City.

A Yacht Trip—Two Birthdays.

The Sterling Mortons' handsome new yacht Freedom was to steam off from Randolph street at midnight last night, heading for the Atlantic ocean. Mr. Morton is on board, but Mrs. Morton wants to save time and is taking the Century today to New York, where she'll meet her daughter, Miss Suzette Morton. They'll be in the east until September and the Freedom will be anchored on Cape Cod, but first they're going to Princeton for the twenty-fifth reunion of Mr. Morton's class.

The Chauncey McCormick family had two birthdays this week, but neither one was marked by large celebration. Yesterday was Mrs. McCormick's birthday, but as they had just moved out on Thursday to their summer estate near Naperville, they were too busy getting settled to give a party. On Wednesday they cabled good wishes to Mr. McCormick's father, Mr. William G. McCormick, who is in France, and congratulated him on his eighty-first anniversary.

BRIDE OF MILITARY WEDDING

MRS. FRED J. WOODS.

The marriage of Miss Mary Louise Hamilton, daughter of Mrs. Louise Barlow Hamilton of Winnetka, to Lieut. Fred J. Woods, U. S. A., was solemnized with military formality at 7 o'clock last night in the Post chapel of Fort Sheridan. A reception followed at the Officers' club. The bride's gown is an heirloom of oyster white faille, which was worn by Eleanore Gladstone, niece of the late Prime Minister Gladstone, at the opening of the Kiel canal in 1894. Her tulle veil was suspended from a flounced cap of the same late which trims the gown. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Miss Betty Hamilton, wore blue organdy and carried a cluster of Talisman roses. The seven bridesmaids wore pink organdy dresses with lace mitts and held bouquets of blue delphinium and pink snapdragons. Donald Woods was best man for his brother.

Stimson Opens Bureau of 'High Hat Diplomacy'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—The United States participates in so many conferences; Washington contains so many foreign ambassadors and ministers and entertains so many foreign celebrities; ceremonial functions have attained such number and importance that the state department's old division of international conferences and protocol, so Secretary Stimson announced today, has been split into two divisions, one for the conferences and the other for protocol.

W. D. ROBBINS.

It is not, it is to be understood, a mere matter of names, but a real divorcement of function.

The new division of protocol is to have sole jurisdiction over questions in relation to the rights and immunities of foreign diplomats, questions concerning medals and decorations conferred by foreign governments, etc.

It also will discharge two other important functions, to write communications of congratulation and condolence from the President to the heads of foreign governments, and make arrangements "for all ceremonials of a national or international character in the United States or participated in by the United States abroad."

In the words of Secretary Stimson in announcing the reorganization:

"It is with a view to having the ceremonial work of this government done with precision and orderliness in a manner appropriate to this government's position in international affairs that the division of protocol has been created and the appointment of Mr. Robbins will be made."

Food Talk.

B. T. asks, "In using small cubes of round steak for an Italian sauce for spaghetti, should they be seared as a larger steak? In the sauce I make the steak seems to be tough. Should ground round steak be used for, this?"

The cubes of steak used in this sauce should be seared. The meat is usually cooked in oil and butter with vegetables and seasonings for an hour or so. It is essential that the meat become tender. Real Italian spaghetti is usually accompanied by meat balls made of ground beef or pork or pork chops. The following is a recipe given to me by an Italian housewife, and it produces a delicious sauce.

½ pound mixed ground meat [beef and pork].
1 tablespoon grated cheese.
½ teaspoon salt.
Pinch ground pepper.
½ teaspoon chopped parsley.
½ small pepper, chopped.
½ teaspoon fennel seed.
1 egg.
2 slices bacon, chopped.
1 tablespoon butter.
2 cups tomatoes.
Pinch sugar.
2 tablespoons Italian tomato paste.
½ cup water.

Combine the first eight ingredients and shape into balls. Brown the bacon in the butter and fry meat balls in this for 5 minutes. Remove the balls and add the tomatoes and sugar. Cook slowly ½ hour, stirring occasionally. Add the tomato paste and water. Cook slowly for 2 hours. Add the meat balls about 20 minutes before serving. Boil 1 pound of spaghetti in salted water 30 minutes and drain. If served in casserole put in layers of spaghetti, sauce, and grated cheese. Place in oven to heat through. Pork chops may be cooked instead of meat balls, cooking them about an hour in the gravy instead of only 30 minutes.

Another sauce for spaghetti which I use and like is made of chicken or calf's liver. It might also be considered an Italian sauce. Here is the recipe:

1 cup raw chicken or calf's liver.
2 small sweet onions.
2 tablespoons parsley.
1 cup minced carrots.
1 cup minced celery.
½ pound mushrooms, fresh.
2 cloves garlic, to be removed when the flavor becomes too pronounced.
¼ teaspoon ground cloves.
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon.
Salt and pepper to taste.
2 tablespoons butter.
2 tablespoons olive oil.
2 tablespoons special Italian tomato sauce.
1 pint cooked tomatoes.
1 pint stock or water.

Put the tomatoes through a colander. Cook all the ingredients, except the tomato sauce, tomatoes and stock, in the olive oil and butter until tender. Then add the tomato sauce, the strained tomatoes and the stock or water. Let the sauce simmer for an hour or so. Wash the spaghetti and throw it into boiling salted water to cover and boil rapidly in an open kettle until tender or for about 20 minutes. To boil spaghetti properly requires plenty of water and a quick fire. Never let it simmer. Remove it from the fire and drain quickly. Arrange spaghetti and the sauce in alternate layers on a platter. Serve at the table with grated cheese.

If Mrs. T. will follow to the letter either one of these recipes she will have no trouble in obtaining a tenderer meat for her spaghetti sauce.

ROSA SALAD.

Place a whole hollowed out ripe tomato on a bed of lettuce and fill with new peas, rosettes of cauliflower, cubed string beans, and red beets. Mask with red mayonnaise. Sprinkle paprika on top and garnish around base of tomato with red Spanish peppers.

It's Important to Give Child Right Toy for His Years

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Christmas—to be exact—it was about nine Christmases ago—found a handsome small cast iron locomotive among the presents under the tree. The baby—or perhaps I should say—tiny boy, was thrilled.

A string was tied on the cow catcher and he pulled it along the floor. A slight bump made it turn over. He straightened it and continued his journey. A slight curve around the big chair made it topple over again. He squatted down and stood the engine up again and with anxious backward looks pulled gently at the string. All went well for a dozen steps—over it went again. At the end of fifteen minutes the baby was in tears.

We have a letter today which many too-conscientious mothers will follow with interest.

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: May I please have your new 'Sex' booklet? My boy is 4.

"Also, have you anything on patience? He lacks stick-to-itiveness. Even when a tiny baby he would cry and cry when his blocks tumbled over. Now he cries because the bolts in his erector set don't screw in, or he can't make his cabin logs fit.

Many, many little children lack this kind of stick-to-itiveness for a simple reason. That reason is that they are discouraged by attempting to do what is for them, at the time, impossible.

A child of 4 shouldn't have an erector set. He shouldn't have one of those log cabins to assemble. He hasn't the finer skills with which to do such work. And his blocks were probably too small. Or perhaps they were the wrong kind, or too many shapes, or badly made, or uneven and couldn't be handled properly by his baby fingers.

A similar cause lay at the back of the tears shed by the other little boy when his locomotive kept turning over. The wheelbase was so narrow that it simply couldn't stay balanced.

Nowadays there are huge blocks, big, wide gauge trains and trucks, enormous pegs to get into big peg boards for the small hands that have only learned to use the big muscles.

When your small child cries or grows irritable, or seems to lack stick-to-itiveness, don't think it's lack of character. It may be lack of fitness in the toy. Choose your children's toys properly for their years.

Most of the good toy departments have toy lists made by psychologists, or you may have our list of playthings graded for ages on receipt of a stamped, self addressed envelope.

Leopard Leads in Summer Fur Race

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Worth's launching of leopard fur belts and capelets as summer fur ensembles created a veritable furor in smart Parisienne circles, and wherever two or three famous style leaders are gathered together there one is sure to see at least one version of this eminently successful sartorial idea.

Leopards, en masse, have profited by this Paris triumph and leopard jackets and berets are being worn with black traveling outfits by many a chic voyageuse.

Sketched herewith is an ensemble designed by Worth for Mme. Mouton, a much admired Paris élégante, whom I saw wearing it at lunch in the Ritz recently.

The frock of heavy black crêpe de chine has a slender underskirt and a knee length tunic, slightly flared by box plaits that become curved diagonal incrustations at the top, running right up into the bodice. The cuffs finishing the long sleeves are unusual. They are made of two downward and two upward circular bells of the black crêpe separated by a stiched band of the crêpe de chine.

The belt of leopard fur fastens also at the left side by a jeweled buckle.

With this ensemble, Mme. Mouton wore a hat in black shiny baku straw made by Marie Christiane; her gloves were eight button suede in a deep chamois color that toned in well with the leopard.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Reprimanded.

Recently I spent the evening at my girl friend's house. They are English, and always have tea about 10 o'clock. This time they happened to have some doughnuts and cupcakes. During the lunch, all but one of the cupcakes were eaten, while the doughnuts remained plentiful.

Upon being urged to eat something more, I reached for the cupcake, only to have my girl friend say, "Don't take that, please, as I want it for my breakfast. You can have all the doughnuts you wish, as I don't care for them."

Suffice it to say I ate no cupcake. Embarrassed? Whew! A. D. C.

JOIN IN THE BIG TREASURE HUNT

What ten word sentence can you make using only the words in today's ads?

The Chicago Tribune Will Pay

$1,000.00 a week in cash prizes

For the Best Original

"Good Time Charliegrams"

WHAT sentence of exactly ten words can you make up, using only the words which appear in the advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune? Last week we made up the Good Time Charliegrams and invited you to hunt for them. This week we are going to let you have all the fun. This week you are invited to make up your own Good Time Charliegrams.

There are no daggers to hunt for—no stars to look for—no particular words to find. This week we've thrown the treasure hunt wide open. Just pick out any words in today's ads that you think make up a timely message of good cheer or sound advice.

Try it. You'll have loads of fun. To make it even more interesting, there's $1,000.00 a week in cash prizes for successful contestants. Read the simple rules now and start the exciting hunt through the advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune.

THE SIMPLE RULES:

1. The Chicago Tribune will pay $1,000.00 a week in cash prizes to the persons who send in the best and neatest complete sets of seven (7) original Good Time Charliegrams in accordance with these rules.

2. A Good Time Charliegram is a sentence of exactly ten words which conveys a timely message of good cheer or sound advice. The sentence must be made up of words taken from advertisements, EXCEPT Classified or Want Ads, published in a single day's issue of the Chicago Tribune. To indicate where you get each word, simply write down the name of the advertiser following the word. Words are NOT to be taken from the Want Ads.

3. Not more than one word shall be taken from the advertising of any one store, company, or individual. If an advertiser has more than one advertisement in the same issue of the Tribune, only one word from such advertisements may be used in the same Good Time Charliegram. The same word may be used more than once, provided that it is taken from a different advertiser every time it is used.

4. The prizes for each week are as follows:

1st Prize		$250.00
2nd Prize		100.00
Next 2 Prizes	$50.00 each	100.00
Next 4 Prizes	$25.00 each	100.00
Next 25 Prizes	$10.00 each	250.00
Next 40 Prizes	$ 5.00 each	200.00
73 weekly prizes totaling		$1,000.00

5. This offer is open to every one—men and women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

6. Good Time Charliegrams are to be submitted in complete sets only. DO NOT send in each day's entry separately. Hold all Good Time Charliegrams until you have the complete set of seven (7). Then send them to "GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS," the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. All entries in the Second Series must be received in the Tribune office before 6 P. M. on Wednesday, June 10, 1931.

7. Contestants may submit as many sets of Good Time Charliegrams as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize.

8. You need NOT buy the Chicago Tribune. You may use the handy blank supplied each day in the Tribune or you may submit your entry on a separate sheet of paper. The Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at public libraries free of charge.

9. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be made to each tying contestant.

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, June 5.—The British open golf championship today became the property of an American for the tenth time in eleven years when Tommy Armour, Detroit professional, posted a 72 hole aggregate score of 296. The American star gained his new title with final rounds of 77 and 71, the first 36 light as to nearly eliminate all hope and the second low enough to blast anticipations of those behind him.

Armour's concluding 18 hole round of 71, one below par for the Carnoustie course, snatched the championship from Jose Jurado of Argentina, who started the last eighteen holes with a five stroke advantage over Armour. While the American ace was playing at his best, the Argentine cracked, took a 77, and had to be content with a 297 total and second place.

Sarazen and Alliss Tied.

Other Americans finished high up in the list. Gene Sarazen, with 298, was tied for third with Percy Alliss, British pro for a Berlin club. Johnny Farrell and MacDonald Smith, medalist in the qualifying round, ended play in a dead heat for fifth place with 299. Horton Smith turned in 303, Willie Hunter had 304, and Joe Kirkwood 306.

When the morning round had been completed, Jurado was conceded the championship. He had a 220 total, which was three strokes better than those of MacDonald Smith and Arthur Havers, the closest competitors. Armour, however, was within striking distance with 225. Then one by one those who were leading Armour faded in the blustery weather.

Jurado Fails in Last Two.

Jurado was the last to yield. With two holes to go, the Argentine held the lead. But with the prince of Wales rooting for him and nearly 20,000 others following him, he was unequal to the task of conquering the 17th and 18th, two of the hardest tests of golf in the world. He sent his tee shot into a brook on the 17th and took a six. At the 18th tee, the bantam-weight sensation of the tournament was informed he needed a birdie four, but the best he could do was a par five and the title passed to Armour.

Armour, known as the Black Scot since he fought in the world war, was bothered by the winds in the morning or he might have done better than 77. In the afternoon he shot his first nine in 35 and narrowly missed recording the same score on the last nine, finishing with 36.

When Jurado failed, Armour succeeded, thus proving his right to one of the most coveted golfing plums in the world. On the difficult 17th and 18th holes, the Black Scot turned in par figures, 4 and 5.

Cotton's Putts Fail Him.

Henry Cotton, rebellious British pro who lost for two rounds and was the pet of England, putted himself out of a chance for the championship. Rounds of 73 and 76 today dropped him to a tenth place tie with Havers at 301.

Armour finished long before the other leaders and waited at the clubhouse while reports came that one by one his rivals were being thwarted on the last two holes. Among those having a chance was Alliss, but he, too, fell by the wayside. Then came Arthur Whitcombe, Mac Smith, and Jose Jurado, but all faltered.

It was the 66th time the British open has been held since the first one was played in 1860. The prizes are relatively small, but the fame derived from victory is said to be worth a fortune to a professional. First money is $500, second $275, third $250, and fourth $225. The balance of $2,000 is distributed among the next seventeen.

WHEN A STEP MEANS VICTORY

TROJANS QUALIFY TWELVE TO LEAD N. C. A. A. TRIALS

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Southern California, defending champion, yesterday qualified 12 athletes in the eleven events on the opening day's program of the tenth annual track and field meet of the National Collegiate Athletic association at Stagg field.

The Trojans, already twice champions of the eastern intercollegiate meet, gave proof by their preliminary marks that they will sweep the finals today with a point total which probably will surpass the all time record of 72 set by Stanford in 1928.

Southern California qualified in all but two events yesterday, the hammer throw and half mile run. Four events, the mile and two mile runs, pole vault and high jump were not on the preliminary program.

Iowa, Wisconsin Place Seven.

Iowa and Wisconin followed the Trojans, qualifying seven men each; Ohio State with six, and Nebraska and Indiana, with five each, were next. Michigan and Minnesota qualified four each. None of these universities, however, has the all around high class performers such as Southern California will send into the championships today.

Frank Wykoff, favorite to win the 100 yard dash although Edwin Toppino of Loyola Louisiana had the fastest time in the trial heats; Bob Hall, now leading in both the shotput and discus throw, and Ernie Payne, who had the fastest time in the 220 yard low hurdles, seem headed toward individual titles. Vic Williams, who took the world quarter mile record last week at Pennsylvania and who was second in time comparison yesterday, and Dick Barber, eastern broad jump victor, although only third yesterday, are others who may add to Trojan glory.

No Records Broken.

No records were broken in the preliminaries. Kenneth Churchill of California, the best American college javelin thrower, came within one foot and 7 inches of Bartlett's three year old national collegiate mark, and he should surpass that record today Churchill led the field of 12 qualifiers by a wide margin. His best throw was 215 feet. Homer Hein of Washington

COLLEGIATE MEET.

EACH year it seems as if the limit in track and field achievement had been reached, yet our collegiate and other athletes keep right on cracking new marks. Unusual performances were reached not only in the Big Ten but also in the Eastern intercollegiate, so when the best men of those meets appear in the finals at Stagg field this afternoon new records are more than likely.

Not only in the field events, where the Pacific coast has a stellar group entered, but also in the more spectacular track events, contests should result with plenty of excitement.

Take the 100 yard run, for instance. Frank Wykoff of the coast holds the American record, made a year ago in this meet. Opposed are Tolan of Michigan, Swift of Washington State with his :09.5 at the Kansas relays, Glass of Oklahoma A. and M. with the same mark in the Texas relays, Klaner of Kansas, and others. Wykoff will be favorite, but Tolan is picked to come back and win the 220.

Whether any one can give Williams of Southern California more than a gallop in the quarter is a question, but the half mile promises a great struggle between Letts of Chicago, Wilson of Notre Dame, Genung of Washington, Eastman of Stanford and Fitzmaurice of Southern California.

In the hurdles and distance runs, Big Ten men will have their chance in actual competition rather than by comparative times against the Californians, who rather monopolized the honors down east. Much interest will center in Wright, the Wisconsin sophomore who won the Big Ten two mile run in 9:21.8.

Beginning at 3 o'clock there will be something doing in every event for the two hours following at Stagg field this afternoon.

WHITE SOX BEAT MACKS, 7 TO 5, IN TWELVE INNINGS

McKain's Arm, Fonseca's Homer Win.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 5.—Business finally picked up for the White Sox this afternoon. For three days they had been nosed out by the cocky world's champions, but on this occasion they held on grimly and were rewarded with a dashing twelve inning battle in which Hal McKain and Bob Lefty Grove displayed themselves as sparkling rescuers of tottering mates. The score was 7 to 5, the end coming after five innings in which the score was deadlocked.

The distinction of breaking up the party and bringing defeat down on Grove after he had captured eight straight went to Lew Fonseca. Stepping up as lead off man in the final inning, he banged Groye's first pitch into the upper deck in left field. Not satisfied with that slim margin the Sox kept going for one more run. Eichrodt singled to center, Cissell sacrified and on a double to right by Jeffries, Eichrodt skipped across the plate with the final tally.

McKain Halts Sluggers.

The excellence of McKain's rescue act is attested by the number of hits he allowed the powerful titleholders. He started in the sixth and a queer looping double by Haas occurred in that round. Then not another of the Athletics saw base until Heving singled with one out in the eleventh. He was the last man to enjoy that privilege. Meanwhile, Grove had been beset with trouble in almost every inning, but until the twelfth the Sox coudn't get across the decisive punch.

Before McKain got tangled up in the duel with Rubber Arm Grove there had been more or less of a parade of pitchers. Old Folks Faber started but was gone before the second inning was completed. Four runs made it necessary to remove him. Then Braxton took charge until the end of the fifth and he'd have enjoyed a profitable afternoon if the boys hadn't kicked in a run on him. Meanwhile Mahaffey had done fairly well but in the sixth had to quit under pressure. McDonald finished the inning for him. Then Grove showed up in the seventh and the Sox promptly touched him for the run that tied up the argument and sent it into overtime.

Haas Smashes Out Homer.

All that happened to Faber in the first inning was one hit, but it was quite a wallop. Haas boomed the ball

Sport's a Business and, What's More, the Business Is Good

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 5.—The suspicion, recently expressed in these dispatches, that sport had grown to the dimensions of a considerable industry in the United States, elicits from Dr. Julius Klein, assistant United States secretary of commerce, in Washington, an armful of corroborative data.

"We realize," the doctor writes, "how tremendously important sport is from the strictly industrial point of view. We shall keep this steadily in mind."

At this point your correspondent will apologize to the doctor and the United States department of commerce for the suggestion that the department, now that it had so little commerce with which to occupy its energies, investigate the scope of the sport business.

Golf Slaves Head List.

"It occurred to me," Dr. Klein writes, "that you might like to know that the department has interested itself in precisely that sort of thing."

In his discussion of the volume of the sport industry, Dr. Klein begins at golf, which has, by the department's figures, 1,500,000 slaves, playing on 5,000 courses, more than half the total of the world's golf pasturage. These courses provide permanent employment for 15,000 persons and seasonal employment for a much larger but indefinite number, not including 3,000 specialized professionals.

Naturally, being an administration man, Dr. Klein cannot acknowledge the volume of the refreshment business which is an important and inseparable subdivision of the golf and football industries, also employing large numbers of citizens to 'tend the stills, and man the little offshore boats and the planes and cars from Canada. But the department should not have overlooked the ginger ale and mineral water trades, whose robust condition, to some extent attributable to golf, though not to football, whose addicts generally take theirs straight out of flasks, is signified by the market quotations on the big board. One of the large ginger ale stocks, with the return of summer weather and the revival of golf, has risen from 26 to 40.

The investment in golf courses, Dr. Klein places at $700,000,000 and the average cost of maintaining the 5,000 layouts is a little more than $21,000, against an average annual income of $24,000.

"Our textile business," says he, "derives an important part of its business from sports, and so do our manufacturers of footwear, from cleated football shoes to rubber boots.

"Practically every game has its distinctive uniform or costume, even including chess, for which the proper outfit, I suppose, is the two pants suit. Golf is responsible for more curiosities in knitted wear than any other factor, demanding new machines, especially built, and the change in the demand for knitted goods has been a source of considerable profit.

Bigger and Better Figures.

"Our enthusiasm for sports is of utmost importance to the radio industry in all its branches," Dr. Klein says. "Radio sales are greatest at the time of the world series and the start of the football season.

"The more we play, the more work there is for the artisans of our sporting goods industry, for our construction companies, and for various other groups of our working people.

"The urge to play has resulted in the creation of a great industry in this country. Retail sales of sporting goods amount to $250,000,000 a year, and ten thousand salesmen are employed whose annual wages amount to almost $20,000,000.

"Our producers of sporting goods employ 33,000 workers. They produce goods to the wholesale value of $175,000,000 a year and pay wages of $40,000,000, which will buy lots of groceries, furniture, and automobiles."

But isn't the doctor duplicating an item when he rolls up that retail figure and rolls the wholesale value along after it?

20,000 Supervisors.

There are 20,000 supervisors and instructors employed in community recreation activities, most of whom, it may be reasonably argued, ought to go to work. Nearly 2,000 American cities maintain parks with fields

Cubs' New Catcher Has Speed and Likes to Use It

RALSTON HEMSLEY

You may wonder what would cause Donie Bush to bust forth in a song of praise for a catcher with the Cubs. Donie being manager of the White Sox, and quite busy with his own problems, thank you. But, you see, Donie was the first major league boss of Ralston Burdett Hemsley, who has caught all but two of the games the Cubs have played since Rolly joined up in Pittsburgh a week ago this morning.

"There's not a better catcher in either league for my dough," says Mr. Bush. "He can do anything any other catcher can with a catcher's mitt and he can do something that few catchers can do—he can run like hell.

"He's a hustler when he's given a lot of work. He wouldn't squawk if asked to catch 154 games a season. I guess maybe the trouble with him at Pittsburgh this season was that Phillips was catching too many games.

Has Speed and Uses It.

"Hemsley knows how to use his speed, both on the base lines and on the defense. There are few men in the business better than he on the hit and run play, especially when he's the one on base. On the defense I always got a kick out of the way he went down to back up plays at first and third. And watch him when there's one of those prolonged rundown plays—he'll be right in the thick of it if it's extra hands they need."

Of course, Manager Hornsby might say all these things if asked, but that would start the wolves on the Hornsby-Hartnett dissension myth again. But Hornsby must like Rolly pretty well, for he wouldn't have recommended the trading of Earl Grace and the passing of a bundle of currency to the Pittsburgh club for Hemsley's contract. And he thinks well of the lad or he wouldn't have plunged him into the starting lineup with such expedition.

Has Hitting Reputation.

Hemsley has been known as a timely hitter, though not a heavy one in the matter of all-season averages. His three year average at Pittsburgh was .268 prior to this season.

In the two games the Cubs won in the Robin series Hemsley drove home the winning run in the ninth of one contest and in the other knocked a double and a single to advance two of the vital runs to tie the score before a ninth inning victory.

As evidence that Manager Hornsby, harassed by the slowness of his original cast, appreciates the running ability of Hemsley, it is pointed out that he stole a base in yesterday's game and he stole one in Thursday's game. In all the 242 games he played for Pittsburgh in three years prior to this season he stole a total of five bases.

Starts as Outfielder.

Hemsley will not be 24 years old until the 24th of this month. He broke into organized baseball in Hack Wilson's old league, the Blue Ridge, in 1925, playing with Frederick, first as an outfielder and in 1926 and 1927 as a catcher, the exact reverse of the Wilson assignment, for Hack was a Blue Ridge catcher who, as you perhaps have heard, became an outfielder.

Hemsley was born in Syracuse, O., and still makes his home there in the winter.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Young Babe Phelps stood the Cubs on their ears for 6 2-3 innings yesterday afternoon and then, after Babe became so tired of it all, Old Jack Quinn went in and stood them on their ears some more. The net of this pitching was a 3 to 1 victory for the Robins to even the four game series at two games each.

Hack Wilson's much advertised newer and better life failed to materialize, for he was unable to get the ball out of the infield—and in the seventh he had an opportunity for great things.

Hack's anguish may have been assuaged somewhat by the fact that his boss, Rogers Hornsby, continued to wallow in the slump that hit him at noontime on Memorial day. Rogers has made two singles in his last six games and a single in the first game of the Brooklyn series was the only one he got while the Robins were in town, his batting average for the four game stay of the Brooklyns being a depressing .071.

Giants Here Today.

However, it is not held likely that Rogers will feel called upon to bench himself following his custom of giving batting stars a layoff when they can't hit the ball. It was reported that he will play in the series with the Giants which opens this afternoon.

There was nothing especially brilliant about the pitching of Phelps, even though he was able to hold the Cubs hitless in four of the 6 2-3 innings he pitched. While he squelched our boys with five hits for six bases during his tenancy, he was wild enough to dole out six passes. His generosity in this regard was notable in the first three innings, during which the Cubs got five passes, but allowed only one hit, a single by English with one out in the third inning. Though they never seemed dangerous in these first three innings, the Cubs had six men left on bases during the span.

Robins Score Early.

The Robins made all their runs in the first three innings and there wasn't anything stirring about the way they got them.

Frederick preserved the Robin record of scoring in the first inning of every game in the series by getting around after being safe on a throwing error by Jurges. After the Jurges heave, Johnny ran to third on Gilbert's single and scored while English was throwing out Herman.

In the third, Root who, incidentally, got marked with his fifth defeat of the year, easily disposed of Gilbert and Herman, but issued his only pass of the game to Bissonette, after which Del ran to third on Lopez' single. O'Doul singled to center, scoring Bissonette easily enough, but the maneuver caught Hornsby dreaming about his series batting average.

Lopez Sneaks to Plate.

Hornsby took the throw from Wilson but never suspected that Lopez would have the crust to try to score from first on a short single. Before Rog could thoroughly awake to the situation Lopez was almost home and Hemsley was lucky to knock down the hurried and panicky cast to the plate. O'Doul got to second before calm was restored but died when Wright fanned.

The Cubs' lone run was the product of the fourth inning. Root doubled with two out and scored on the first of Cuyler's two singles. The inning ended when Ki was caught trying to steal second.

The circumstances which brought the retirement of the overworked Mr. Phelps came with two out in the seventh. Cuyler pushed off with his second single, but was forced by English. Hornsby then forced English, but Stephenson singled to right, putting Rogers on third. It was at this point that Quinn came in and made Wilson force Stevie.

Fitzsimmons to Face Cubs.

The Giants boast a record of two wins and no defeats in their engagements with the Cubs this year. Fred Fitzsimmons, who held the Cubs to four hits and beat them with a homer with the bases full in a game at the Polo grounds last month, will pitch this afternoon and will be opposed by Bob Smith, who held the Pirates to two hits his last time out.

TROJANS QUALIFY TWELVE TO LEAD N. C. A. A. TRIALS

Wykoff, Hall, Payne Near Individual Titles.

State, was second with 200 feet ¾ inch. L. D. Weldon of Iowa, Big Ten champion, was third with 193 feet 6 inches.

All other events this afternoon promise close competition. Interest centers on the 100 yard dash, where Wykoff's supremacy is challenged by Toppino, Eddie Tolan of Michigan, and Peyton Glass of the Oklahoma Aggies. All four preliminary races yesterday were won in 9 7-10 seconds or less. Toppino led with a 9 5-10 second effort, tying Tolan's world record and 1 10 slower than Wykoff's National A. A. U. time. Tolan won his heat, with Fazekas of Ohio State second, in 9 7-10, and Glass had the same mark in the fourth heat.

Toppino Wins Easily.

Toppino won easily in the third heat and when he is pressed today he may defeat Wykoff, who has not been whipped this year.

Tolan seemed to have the 220 yard championship, although he trailed Fazekas to the tape in the first qualifying race yesterday. Fazekas' time of 21.2-10 seconds was the fastest of the four heats. Tolan led until the final yard, when he deliberately slowed up. Glass, with 21 3-10 seconds, and Hutson, with 21 4-10, are Tolan's most feared competitors.

Jack Keller of Ohio State, Bob Hager, Iowa State, and James Hatfield, Indiana, will supply the thrills in the high hurdles. All won their heats. Stokes of the Trojan squad was also a victor in the trials. Hatfield's time, the best of the four, was 14 7-10 seconds.

While Vic Williams' time of 48 9-10 seconds in the first heat of the quarter mile was beaten by one-tenth of a second by Gordon of Miami university, winner in the third preliminary, he remains the favorite because of his superb dash a week ago. The Western conference will be represented by Henke of Wisconsin and Lagerquist of Iowa.

Hayne Takes Hurdle Heat.

Ernie Hayne of Southern California and Keller gave notice they will be in the final scrap for the low hurdle title. Hayne ran smoothly in the second heat to win in 23 6-10 seconds, two-fifths of a second from the record, while Keller was timed in 23 7-10 seconds.

The championships will start at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Admission is $1, with reserved seats at $1.50 and $2.

BEN STEVENSON WINS BOWLERS' GOLF TOURNEY

The new titleholder is Ben Stevenson, partner of Ray Schalk, who had 39—40—79. Ray Koopman, a left handed golfer-bowler, was second with 37—43—80.

Seventy-five automobile dealers of Chicago and suburbs played golf over No. 3 course at Olympia Fields yesterday. Henry Fletchner of Edgewood Valley shot 38—40—78 to take low gross, and Earl Jager of Ridgemoor with 42—42—84 was second. C. E. Paulin with 110—25—85 won low net and W. P. Winslow was second with 101—15—86.

Radio engineers played Calumet yesterday and turned in some good scores for the difficult course. W. H. Tewksbury had 35—41—76; Larry Hardy, 43—42—85; W. F. Osler Jr., 44—44—88, and Pete Perrier, 44—46—90 to lead. There were about 60 in the tournament.

Dr. H. C. Ekstein of St. Bonaventura was host to a big crowd of surgeons and physicians at Olympia Fields yesterday. After golf on No. 1 course, there was a dinner at the club. Dr. F. A. Lofton, Dr. C. H. Johnson, and Dr. W. H. Bobart shot the best gross games, 92, 93, and 94, respectively, while Dr. W. J. Mulholland and Dr. F. A. Collins turned in net scores of 66 to tie for low.

SMITTY—PUTTING IT OVER

Hose Defeat A's, 7 to 5, in 12th Inning

over the right field fence. It was a warning of what was coming shortly. The Sox retrieved this lone run in their second attack. After Fonseca had fanned, Simons walked and moved to second on Cissell's single past third. Jeffries cracked a single to left and Simons dashed over the plate.

Sox Pass Up Opportunity.

The beginning of the end for Faber in the Macks' second, when they scored three runs, was a pass to Foxx. Faber was equally generous with Miller. McNair nudged the two runners along by bunting. Then Heving, who is catching pending Cochrane's recovery from a charley horse, tripled to right center, Foxx and Miller scoring. Fothergill backed against the fence to grab Mahaffey's fly and Heving scored after the catch. Bishop singled and Faber was immediately asked to quit work.

Things looked a bit brighter for the Sox after they had concluded their fifth inning. Braxton started this with a grounder to Bishop, but Todt forgot to cover the bag, so Braxton enjoyed a single. A fly to right was Blue's offering. Then Watwood, after working the count down to three and two, slapped the ball over the right field fence. It probably was the longest home run on record. When the ball came down it landed in a truck which was passing, and, as far as anybody knows, it may be still traveling.

Jeffries Throws Wild.

After getting within one of a tie the Sox immediately handed a run back to the champions. The home fifth opened with an out. Todt walked. Simmons grounded to Jeffries and there should have been a double play but Jeff pegged wild to second. This let Todt go to third. On Foxx's third strike Simmons started to steal and Tate's throw headed him off. Then Fonseca, instead of pegging to the plate, threw to third by which time Todt was just reaching the plate.

Seven Sox went to bat in the sixth but only one run was shoved home. Simons led off with a single and Cissell forced him. McNair, who was moved from third to short because Williams, who had been subbing for Boley, broke a small bone in his ankle yesterday, booted Jeffries' grounder. Tate walked to fill the bases and Mahaffey was yanked in favor of McDonald. Reynolds batted for Braxton but fouled out. Then Blue worked McDonald for a pass and Cissell scored.

Grove Goes with Run.

When Grove took over the pitching burden in the seventh he happened to have two of the best Sox hitters coming up. They attended to the scoring of one run which caused a 5 to 5 tie. Fothergill pried open the chapter with a two base drive along the left field line. Fonseca singled to left and Fothergill intended to score but fell flat on his broad stomach just after rounding third. He had to scramble back to the bag. Eichrodt batted for Simons and drilled a fly so deep into center that Fothergill was able to score and Fonseca to go to second after the catch. Then Cissell whiffed and Jeff flied to center.

Caraway and Fischer will operate in the opener at Washington tomorrow.

LANE WINS AND LOSES IN GAMES WITH CLEVELAND

Cleveland, O., June 5.—[Special.]—Norman Smith, Shaw High school's star right-hander, tried the "iron man" rôle in today's intercity double header with Lane Tech, but the Chicago team batted him out of the box in the second game, to win, 9 to 3, and get an even break. Shaw won the opener, 4 to 2, limiting the Lane Tech sluggers to three hits.

Lane got only six hits in the seven inning second game, but Smith's wildness and Shaw errors helped the Chicago team to pile up a big lead. Bergman and Brawand led the attack with two hits each. Shaw belted Czelusta for nine hits, but the Lane pitcher was invincible in the pinches. Score:

DONOHUE, 9 DAYS TO GO, HOPES TO BE 10 YEAR MAN

St. Louis, Mo., June 5.—(AP)—Pete Donohue, veteran pitcher of the New York Giants, has traded his ticket to Minneapolis for one to New York in hopes of being allowed to remain in the major leagues nine days longer. Donohue, whose release to the Minneapolis American association club was announced yesterday, needed only nine more days to become a ten-year man, which would entitle him to an unconditional release and the privilege of making his own arrangements, possibly with another major league club.

Donohue called John McGraw's attention to this fact and the Giant manager referred him to President Charles A. Stoneham, so Donohue is going east to plead his cause.

Sport Joins the Ranks of Big Business

for football, baseball and other games, covering 250,000 acres. There are municipal golf courses in 150 cities, 4,000 baseball fields and more than 1,000 swimming pools, and the grading and construction of these facilities and the big, public arenas, including the Chicago Stadium, which cost $5,500,000, has been an important item in the total of the construction industry.

However, Dr. Klein remarks that this country, with a wholesale production of fishing tackle amounting to $8,000,000 a year, annually spends more on this sport than was paid for the whole of Alaska.

The doctor has made a very good beginning. When the department of commerce has produced the figures on horse racing, intercollegiate football, professional basebal, polo, crew, gymnasium investments and maintenance, and all the light hearted helter skelter of millions of miles of travel by train, motor, ship and plane and, of course, the cost of liquor, the sport industry will have a way of knowing its own size.

Here's an Important Item.

That item of the liquor is too important to be overlooked. The sweepers pick up an average of about one flask for every two head of attendance at the big football games, counting necks as flasks when the bottles are broken, just as the bounty officers in the places count the heads of gophers, coyotes, and fox as whole pelts in paying the varmint bounties.

It might conflict with the administration's policy to recognize this item, but, in that case, Dr. Klein might put it down as "porterage." Congressional committees have used this term successfully in their expense accounts.

Lightning Bolt Upsets Derby Dope; Wins at 14-1

BY FRENCH LANE.

Lightning Bolt, a homely colt owned by Mrs. Jock Whitney of New York, gave the American Derby dope a fresh stir at Washington Park yesterday when he won the Hazel Crest purse at 7 furlongs. Under Jockey Charley Allen's vigorous ride Lightning Bolt got up to beat his ancient rival, Spanish Play, by half a length. Oswego from Kentucky, running a game race and showing fine speed at times, was third. Six other American Derby candidates trailed them home.

Lightning Bolt's late rush came so suddenly that 11,000 spectators had to rub their eyes and wonder if they had been sleeping and dreaming. He was 14 to 1 in the betting.

Burning Up was the hot favorite. Spanish Play had a big following, and so did Knights Call and several others. As the field dashed down the back stretch Oswego was making the pace, Burning Up was running second, and Spanish Play third. Lightning Bolt had moved into fourth place after racing in tight quarters, and as the field rounded the bend Allen brought Lightning Bolt to the extreme outside.

Oswego, out of training for a long period, was running gamely and still making the pace. But a furlong from home Spanish Play whipped him and loomed as a certain winner. Just as Spanish Play took the lead a purple streak came flashing along. It was Lightning Bolt running in Mrs. Whitney's jacket. He went on to his victory like a champion.

Three of the winter Derby winners were in the contest. Burning Up, the Cuban Derby winner, Spanish Play, the Louisiana Derby winner, and Lightning Bolt, the Florida Derby winner. They all carried the same weight, a package of 118 pounds. Allen was the best rider and Lightning Bolt seemed to be the best of the winter track champions. He can surely run in the stretch.

Cousin Jo, the Kentucky Oaks winner, will have no excuses to offer if she's beaten in the Illinois Oaks this afternoon. The daughter of Sickle never looked better than when she galloped a half mile in a training [illegible] yesterday morning in :48 3-5. Working so easy it seemed that she was only half trying. Looks like the surest winner of the day at Washington Park and it may be just another step toward the 3 year old championship.

When the crowd at Washington Park registers a beef it plays to favorites. Heard 'em give the [illegible] tion of the "berry" to one of Dennis Vanderbilt Whitney's speedy thoroughbreds yesterday after the Arlington Park claiming purse had been run.

Skirl was young Mr. Whitney's representative and was the odds-on 9 to 10 favorite. Didn't even get a slice of the money, Camp Prince running in a nose finish from Whileaway with Vermiculite third. Skirl and Jockey Russell had to be more than brave to come back and face the boos and cat calls which were rolling out of the grandstand and clubhouse.

Seems that all of the Whitney favorites here have been getting [illegible] on the chin and favorites cannot lose so consistently and escape the wrath of the punters.

FOREMAN FIELD DAY PRELUDE TO SPORT CONGRESS

1,000 Boys Participate in Mass Drill and Races.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A prelude to the Chicagoland Sports Congress, to be sponsored by THE TRIBUNE on June 21 at Soldiers' field, was held yesterday when nearly 1,000 students of the Edwin G. Foreman Junior High school gathered on the school playground at Belmont and Le Claire avenues for their first annual field day.

The hundreds of boys who participated in the program at Foreman yesterday will play important parts in the sports congress. Approximately 5,000 men, women and children athletes from all parts of Chicagoland are expected to engage in this demonstration of mass athletics, the greatest of its type ever held in the United States. In addition to drills by members of the American Turnerbund, the American Sokol union, the Polish Falcons, and the Chicago public schools the program on June 21 will include gymnastic and fencing exhibitions, a tug of war, and a series of relay races.

Develop Precision and Rhythm.

The Foreman Junior High boys yesterday indicated that they are prepared for their rôles in the sports congress by the manner in which they went through the mass drill which concluded the program. Precision and rhythm, developed by hours of practice, were evident in every movement of the thirty-two lines of boys as they performed before a group of admiring mothers, with hundreds of feminine classmates filling the windows of the school building.

The two instructors responsible for the field day at Foreman pronounced the work of their young charges a success, but they are not going to relax in their efforts to make the showing of the boys in the sports congress a greater one. The regular schedule of mass drills on the physical training program of the school has been almost doubled and will continue until the day before the congress.

The instructors at Foreman are Edward Hall, a graduate of the Normal college of the American Gymnastic union at Indianapolis, and Ernest Lieberson, who was graduated from the Chicago Normal college in 1925. Both commented on the remarkable enthusiasm displayed by the students when they were invited to join the thousands who will take part in the sports congress. The boys were quite willing to forgo the pleasures of indoor baseball and swimming to devote most of their play time to daily drills.

Run Baby Carriage Relay.

There wasn't a single hitch in the proceedings yesterday, the program being so arranged that the participants marched from their classrooms, donned their uniforms, performed their drills, and returned to class within two hours. A series of relay races preceded the final mass drill. These included a baby carriage event in which one of the lighter students was placed in a rickety perambulator and trundled back and forth by his teammates. This was not accomplished without several mishaps in which the passengers were sent sprawling from their vehicles when their chauffeurs turned the corners too sharply.

Foreman is one of the youngest schools in the city, having been founded less than three years ago. Sophie A. Thelgaard is the principal. The curriculum includes courses for seventh and eighth grades and first year high school, with the students ranging in age from 11 to 17 years. The melting pot character of the sports congress was reflected in the Foreman field day, which brought together boys of a dozen different racial origins.

Observe German Day Tomorrow.

The demonstration at Foreman was the first of three which will engage participants in the congress. German day will be observed at Soldiers' field tomorrow, with hundreds of members of the American Turnerbund taking part. The American Sokol union will conduct a meet at Cermak park next Sunday. The Polish Falcons, who will provide a thousand actors of the cast of the congress, held a two day carnival at St. Louis a week ago.

Scouts to Take Canoeing Tests Next Saturday

BY BOB BECKER.

Boy Scouts who aspire to paddle down the Flambeau river in Wisconsin as members of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S fourth annual canoe cruise will take their canoeing tests a week from today. The exact time and location for this "paddle and steer" examination will be announced next week.

Owing to the large number of applications from scouts who wish to go on this year's canoeing and camping expedition it is probable that part of the applicants will take their tests next Saturday and another group of youngsters will be asked to pass the "exam" the following week. Every scout who has asked to be included in this year's thrilling camp and paddle trip down the Flambeau will be notified by mail when and where he shall appear to take the canoe test.

Any life scout in Chicago who has won a swimming and canoeing merit badge and is 15, 16 or 17 years of age is eligible for THE TRIBUNE'S fourth annual river cruise which will start down the Flambeau river the morning of June 27 from the town of Park Falls. Boys who want to go and can meet the above qualifications should make applications at once through their scoutmasters or direct to scout headquarters, 7 West Washington street, Chicago.

Last summer the canoe cruisers on THE TRIBUNE outdoor expedition explored a beautiful but small river in Indiana. This year the scouts are going to tackle a much larger stream.

Scouts who want to join this year's cruise must expect to share a camper's load of work. Every boy will keep his canoe shipshape and when necessary repair it under supervision.

Each youngster must pitch his pup tent at night, make his bed out of blankets, help police camp when the expedition moves, assist in the potato peeling business, and take his turn at the job of bathing the dishes. However, his rewards are great because the canoe cruise means fine swimming, the fun of exploring a river, canoe racing, the sport of camp life, exciting campfire entertainments, story telling, and a chance to practice all kinds of campcraft tricks in the nine woods.

TWELVE QUALIFY TOMORROW AS ROBY STARTERS

Twenty of the fastest race drivers in the country will compete in a series of speed trials tomorrow morning to decide the dozen fastest who will start in the 100 mile A. A. A. race at 3 p. m. at the Roby-Chicago speedway, 108th street and Indianapolis avenue.

Only twelve cars will be allowed to start, the contest board has ruled, as all the iron speedsters this year are of the two man type, and the dangers on the flat turns of this one mile dirt track are correspondingly increased.

Six of the first eight finishers in the 500 mile race at Indianapolis will be after the Roby 100 mile crown. They are Lou Schneider, Fred Frame, Ralph Hepburn and Lou Meyer, the first four finishers at Indianapolis; Ernie Triplett and Stubby Stubblefield, seventh and eighth place winners. Then there are the men who led at various stages of the race, with the exception of Billy Arnold, and a number of cars which were well up at various stages of the race but which broke up before the end was reached.

Since only twelve cars will start, some of the greatest names in the automobile racing world are bound to be absent when the starting flag drops.

STARS VS. GIANTS.

The St. Louis Stars, leaders in the Negro National league will open a five game series this afternoon against the Columbia Giants, formerly the American Giants at the local's park.

CHICAGO NAMES URBAN CAPTAIN; PLAYS FOR TITLE

Will Urban, veteran pitcher and second baseman, was elected captain of the 1930 University of Chicago baseball team last night before the squad left for Madison to play its crucial game with the Badgers.

Victory for the Maroons in today's game would give Chicago its first major championship since 1924 and its first baseball championship since 1913. If the Badgers are victorious, Illinois will win the title.

The Maroons have played the season so far without a captain. Urban, a graduate of Oak Park High school, was first string pitcher until the coming of Roy Henshaw, and is now leading the Maroon hitters and playing second base.

Henshaw will be out for his ninth conference victory today, facing Jake Sommerfield, Badger star.

JUSTICE FARMER ON 78TH BIRTHDAY BIDS COURT ADIEU

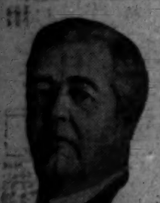
BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 5.—[Special.]—Justice William M. Farmer, the "Grand Old Man" of the Illinois Supreme court, celebrated his 78th birthday at Vandalia today, after bidding an official farewell to his colleagues on the bench this week at the Supreme court building. His resignation takes effect July 1.



WM. M. FARMER.

A quarter of a century on the Supreme court, 34 years as a judge of various courts, and a full half century in public service is the record of the venerable jurist. For the last three days he has been receiving greetings from old associates and friends, and messages of congratulation frm bench and bar, as part of his birthday celebration. Wednesday he participated in the conference work of the Supreme court, the place where the other judges say they will miss his experience and wisdom the most.

Many Friends Call on Him.

Among those who called upon the veteran judge in his chambers, before his return to Vandalia, were George A. Cooke of Aledo, former chief justice; Judge Norman L. Jones of Carrollton, who is regarded as likely to succeed to the vacancy on the bench, and leaders of both houses and state officers. The chambers were banked in flowers.

Justice Farmer during the greetings remarked that June has been quite an eventful month in his career. He was born in June; he was admitted to the bar 55 years ago on June 9; he was elected to the Circuit bench 34 years ago in June and he was elected to the Supreme court 25 years ago, June 4, 1906.

Justice Farmer's resignation was submitted May 19 to Gov. L. L. Emmerson on the ground that the judge was unwilling to let his physical impairment hinder the work of the court. His exhibition of stamina and will in keeping up with his cases despite disability has led his admirers to refer to him as the "spartan of the bench."

Opinions Ready on Time.

For five years, despite his physical handicap, Judge Farmer, working in his library at Vandalia, has kept his cases right up to schedule. Cases coming into the Supreme court are dealt out in rotation, each justice thus getting one-seventh of the cases filed. Working at his home, Judge Farmer has had his quota of opinions ready on the dot, never behind in his work, and his admirers also point out that he has been opposed to the appointment of two commissioners to help the court and that not one of his cases ever has been referred to a commissioner.

A special election has been set for Monday, Aug. 31, by Gov. Emmerson, in the second supreme judicial district.

YOUNG THIEVES PLEAD GUILTY; GET 1 TO 10 YEARS

Anthony Coglianese, 18 years old, and Daniel Marr, 19, pleaded guilty yesterday to grand larceny and were sentenced to one to ten years in the Pontiac reformatory by Joseph B. David in the Criminal court.

The youths pleaded guilty by arrangement with George S. Lavin, assistant state's attorney, who agreed to waive a robbery charge in view of the fact that Coglianese had been revealed as a violator of probation on a previous robbery charge and would be returned to prison for that offense after serving the grand larceny sentence.

The Chicago Crime commission disclosed the previous robbery record of Coglianese after the police department had failed to discover his earlier offense.

Franklin N. Wood, Former Chicago Attorney, Is Dead

Franklin N. Wood, former Chicago attorney, died yesterday of heart disease in Daytona, Fla., where he went to make his home several years ago. He was 54 years old. After moving to Florida Mr. Wood was appointed state poet laureate. He was a native of Brooklyn, N. Y.

RANGE FUND FOR ARTILLERY MAY PASS TO STATE

Legal Objections to Rockford Site.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 5.—[Special.]—Illinois will have an additional $600,000 in its general revenue fund on July 1 if, as appears probable, Gov. Emmerson does not allow the money to be spent for a National Guard artillery range at Camp Grant.

DAVID HUNTER JR.

A survey of the situation today shows that several legal objections stand in the way of the range, which is vigorously opposed by the citizens of Rockford. Of these, the provision that the state cannot purchase land from a general assemblyman seems sufficient to balk the expenditure. The legislator is Senator Charles W. Baker [Rep., Monroe Center], and his farm is well within the boundaries of the 4,000 acre tract four miles northwest of the city.

Objections to Range.

Removal of the Baker land from the range site would leave the firing field a little more than three miles long. It has been contended by Representatives Le Roy M. Green and David Hunter of Rockford, who have consistently opposed the project, that to shoot high powered cannons this limited distance would be extremely dangerous. Mr. Hunter served as an army captain during the war.

Another objection which has been presented by farmers whose land adjoins the site is based on a recent decision of the Illinois Court of Claims, which held that the state is not obligated to pay property damages inflicted by its guardsmen. If a shell should go askew and strike a farm building, the owner would have to stand the loss.

Regarded as Extravagance.

It would also be necessary to remove a high tension line which crosses the site diagonally, and the cost of this has been estimated at $35,000.

The $600,000 appropriation was passed by the last assembly in 1929 over the strong protests of Mr. Green and Mr. Hunter. They brought delegations before the house to give the attitude of Rockford citizens and presented arguments against expenditure of such a sum for an improvement that would only be used a few weeks each year.

DOCTORS TO SEEK COMPROMISE ON COUNTY HOSPITAL

President Emmett Wheelan of the county board yesterday appointed a committee of physicians to try to arrange a compromise on the plans submitted for the reorganization of the County hospital by the Chicago Medical society and those presented by the hospital staff.

Led by Dr. Karl A. Meyer, medical superintendent of the hospital, the staff members had protested against the medical society's suggestion that control of the hospital be vested in an executive committee representing the county board, the medical society, the hospital staff and representatives of the medical schools of Northwestern and Loyola universities, the University of Chicago and the University of Illinois.

The members of the compromise committee are Drs. Frederick Tice, Vernon David, Philip Kreuscher, and Raymond McNealy, with four others to be appointed later by the deans of the four medical schools.

House at Springfield Pays Tribute to Sigmund Zeisler

The resolution was offered by Representative Robert M. Woodward. Mr. Zeisler lived at 5000 East End avenue. Funeral services will be held at 9:30 this morning at the chapel at 936 East 47th street. Burial will be at Oakwoods cemetery.

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—Removal from the air of station KTNT, at Muscatine, Ia., operated by Norman Baker, was ordered today by the federal radio commission.

In taking this summary action the commission sustained the recommendation of its chief examiner, Ellis A. Yost, who found that Baker used the station as a "private mouthpiece" in promoting a number of business interests in which he was engaged, and in attacking the medical profession, and other individuals and organizations. The station was ordered off the air immediately because of "failure to serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity."

Baker, the commission brought out, is the owner of about 12 different enterprises in Muscatine, including a newspaper, a mail order business, and the Baker institute, a hospital for the treatment of cancer, goiter, rheumatism, and other diseases.

4 HURT, FIFTEEN JOLTED AS AUTO HITS STREET CAR

Four persons were injured, four seriously, and fifteen passengers were jolted in a headon collision last night between an automobile and a street car in Waukegan. The auto driver, Oscar La Follette, 310 South Sheridan road, Waukegan, was arrested for driving while intoxicated. Those hurt, all in his machine, were Angeline Graham, 18 years old, and Leona Kretschmer, 20, both of North Chicago, and Charles Pitz, and Jerry Murtin, both of Waukegan. Miss Graham was internally injured.

No auto deaths were reported yesterday in Cook county, the 1930 toll remaining 486.

Three men riding in an automobile, supposedly stolen, fled on foot after crashing into another car at Cicero avenue and 100th street, Oak Lawn, last evening. Three colored men riding in the other care were slightly injured. The stolen automobile in which the three were riding sped south after the accident, but overturned as its driver attempted to turn into 103d street at a high rate of speed.

Mrs. Harry Berg, 65 years old, of 1052 Sheridan road, was killed yesterday and her husband was slightly injured when their automobile was struck by another car near Perham, Minn. Berg had stopped his car on the side of the road to repair a tire when another auto, swerving to avoid a collision with a third car, crashed into his machine.

The date is observed by gatherings of former marines throughout the country.

SUIT TESTS RADIO CORPORATION'S LICENSE POWER

Injunction Against Commission Asked.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—First steps toward the settlement of a question of high importance to the radio industry were taken today when the National Broadcasting company, the R. C. A.-Victor company, R. C. A. Communications, Inc., and the Radiomarine corporation petitioned the District of Columbia Supreme court for injunctions to restrain the federal radio commission from denying their applications for radio frequency and renewal licenses.

The suit thus instituted will be a test case to decide whether the Radio Corporation of America and its subsidiaries are subject to a loss of their licenses because of their violation of the Clayton anti-trust act, as determined in the recent De Forest patent licensing cases. At stake are the millions invested in the Radio corporation, its subsidiary corporations and its chains of stations.

Eventually to Supreme Court.

Already two stations belonging to Radio corporation subsidiaries have been denied renewals and are operating on temporary licenses pending a final decision of the case. Eventually, it is expected, the suit begun today will go to the United States Supreme court for a final opinion as to whether or not a violation of the Clayton act found in a civil suit such as the De Forest litigation, constitutes a violation of the anti-trust laws within the meaning of section 13 of the federal radio act.

"The licensing authority is hereby directed to refuse a station license or the permit hereinafter required for the construction of a station to any person, firm, company, or corporation, or any subsidiary thereof, which has been finally adudged guilty by a federal court of unlawfully monopolizing or attempting unlawfully to monopolize, after this act takes effect, radio communication, directly or indirectly, through the control of the manufacture or sale of radio apparatus, through exclusive traffic arrangements, or by any other means, or to have been using unfair methods of competition."

Originates in Patent Clause.

The origin of the case lies in the suit brought by the De Forest Radio company, which charged that the Radio corporation's licensing contracts violated the anti-trust laws. By a clause in the patent licenses granted 25 manufacturers, the corporation reserved the right to supply the vacuum tubes for all sets manufactured.

A decision of the District court for the district of Delaware held this clause violative of section 3 of the Clayton act, and this decision was subsequently upheld by the Circuit court of Appeals for the third circuit.

WITHDRAWAL OF MARINES FROM NICARAGUA ENDED

Washington, D. C., June 5.—(AP)—Completion of the 1931 program of withdrawing United States marines from Nicaragua was announced today by Secretary of State Stimson. A skeleton force of less than 300 men, Mr. Stimson said, now remains in the Latin American republic. Under the present plans, he said, they will remain until after elections there.

Last February Secretary Stimson reported that under definite plans completed for withdrawing the marines, only 500 men would remain. He said this would mean a reduction from more than 5,000 there in 1929.

The secretary said today there had been no change in this plan, but that the estimate of 500 men was erroneously announced and that this total would reach 800.

TWO HOLD UP 10 IN OFFICE, TAKE $1,200 PAY ROLL

Two robbers held up 12 employes of John Lucas & Co., paint manufacturers, at 1362 West 37th street yesterday afternoon and escaped with a $1,200 pay roll.

The pay holl money had just been withdrawn from the Central Manufacturing District bank when the two robbers entered the offices of the paint company. Armed with pistols, they ordered ten women and two men to lie down on the floor while they took the money.

As the robbers fled Miss Margaret Maros, 4319 North Campbell avenue, rushed to a window and obtained the license number of their automobile, which had been rented from an agency. J. P. Morrison, sales manager, and O. W. Klewer, branch manager of the paint company, were among the holdup victims.

TODAY, graceful curves are necessary to look well in the new modes. And most women can achieve these by wise dieting.

But avoid starvation menus. No doubt you know girls who complain of dizziness while dieting. Of headaches, listlessness.

When reducing diets lack sufficient roughage, improper elimination is inevitable.

It can be prevented so easily. Just add two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to the diet daily. It is not fattening. Relief is guaranteed.

In addition, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN helps prevent dietary anemia. It contains iron which brings rich color to the complexion. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

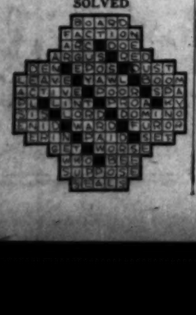
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



DROUGHT GROWS ACUTE IN WHEAT AREA OF CANADA

Prices Spurt Here on Bullish News.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Drought conditions in the Canadian northwest, which are said to be almost as serious as those which prevailed in the Ohio valley and in Arkansas in 1930 and resulted in practical destruction of the crops, may force a radical readjustment of ideas as to the world's wheat situation unless rain is received within the next 10 days. Prices swept upward yesterday in Chicago on strength of bullish crop reports.

For nearly two years rainfall over a large part of the three Canadian provinces has been below normal, and a report issued by the wheat pool at Winnipeg yesterday placed the condition of the spring wheat crop at only 75 per cent of normal, the lowest condition at this season in years, comparing with 90 last year and 96 in 1928.

Need Generous Rains.

According to the pool report, there are 13,000,000 acres of wheat, or 80 per cent of the total in the western provinces in the drought area. The rainfall during the months of April and May in Saskatchewan was only 31 per cent of normal; while in Alberta it was 44 per cent and in Manitoba 84 per cent.

"Unless generous rains are received over a wide area in the next 10 days," said the report, "a disastrous crop situation will exist. Should, however, copious rains come forthwith there would be a general improvement in the situation and an improvement in our conditional figures, having due regard for the recuperative powers of the wheat plant. High and drying winds have damaged crops in all parts of the west and as a result there will be an important reduction in the wheat acreage."

Look for Small Wheat Crop.

While the pool report failed to make any estimate on the crop, messages from Winnipeg claimed the trade there was guessing around 250,000,000 bu for the three provinces in case rain was received within a week, compared with 310,000,000 bu harvested last year, while without rain enthusiastic bulls were inclined to predict only 200,000,000 bu. The latter figure is less than half of the five year average.

Because of the pool report, combined with the forecast for generally hot weather, resulted in a rush of buying of wheat futures here and at Winnipeg that swept the September option up from the early low to 60¼c, the highest figure since May 20. Shorts and commission houses were the buyers on the way up, with stop loss orders uncovered, and the close was within a fraction of the top. No attention was paid to the late easiness in the stock and cotton markets. Final prices were at net gains of 1@1¼c for the week, with July closing at 59⅞@60c, or 5c under the September, while the December was 61⅝@62¾c.

Winnipeg Leads Advance.

Winnipeg wheat market led the advance, although the local element were inclined to fight the upturn, and closed 1⅝@1⅞c higher, with the July at 52c and the October at 64¾c, the latter being 4⅛c over Chicago, the widest difference so far. Chicago bears were active buyers of October in the Canadian market against sales in the local pit, on the belief that if Canada has a small crop the difference will widen materially. Liverpool was stronger on the unfavorable crop reports from the Canadian northwest and closed ⅝@1¼d higher with July at 52½c.

The American trade paid little attention to the generally favorable crop reports from the winter wheat belt, although a sale of new Texas red winter was made to a Dallas mill at 55c per bu delivered. An Oklahoma City message to J. E. Bennett & Co. said that rains in the western part of the state figured new wheat would start to move at a price of around 50c per bu to farmers, while oats would bring 12@15c.

Despite the extreme drought in the Canadian provinces, the Chicago trade was by no means unanimously bullish after the close last night, expressing the belief that the bulge of 4¾c in the September from the low of Wednesday and the high of yesterday had been due largely to short covering weakening the technical position to such an extent that a natural reaction was to be expected regardless of whether rain was received in the spring wheat territory or not.

Wheat Trade Enlarges.

As a result of the development of a new factor in the world's wheat situation there has been a material enlargement in the speculative interest in the market on the Chicago Board of Trade. Total purchases of futures on Thursday were officially reported at 31,614,000 bu, the largest since Nov. 10, when the turnover was 36,919,000 bu.

Corn market was unsettled, with the trade acting tight at times and closed ⅛@¼c higher at 57¼@57⅝c, while the deferred futures were ⅛@½c lower, December closing at 53¼c and December 47c. Weather and crop reports from the west were generally favorable.

Oats failed to fully reflect the strength in wheat and little attention was also paid to decidedly unfavorable crop comments from Canada. Futures closed ¼@⅝c higher, with July 27⅝c, September 29⅝c, and December 30¼c. Oats were dull and ⅛@¼c lower, with July finishing at 26⅝c and September at 27¼c.

Postal Tel. & Cable Corp. Reports 1st Quarter Loss

The Postal Telegraph and Cable corporation reported a net loss of $285, after the first quarter of 1931, against a profit of $143,283 or 47 cents a share of preferred in the comparable period of 1930.

"Don't Worry About the Future," Vauclain Advises

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, June 5.—Declaring every panic had been followed by a period of prosperity, Samuel M. Vauclain, chairman of the board of the Baldwin Locomotive works, addressing a convention of the American Railway Magazine Editors' association here today, urged confidence in a future which he said would bring "greater prosperity than ever before."

SAMUEL VAUCLAIN.

Mr. Vauclain criticised persons whom he described as "supposed politicians," who are conducting attacks upon public utilities. These, he said, contribute to the present economic depression. While he did not name Gov. Pinchot as one of the politicians he described, he criticized the governor later in his address for his "attacks" against Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Blames "Supposed Politicians."

"Don't worry about the future," advised Mr. Vauclain. "Cheer up and shake hands with your neighbors. Have confidence in the people with whom you do business, for all that is wrong in this nation is lack of confidence."

He said the lack of confidence of one person in another, and one industry in another, was caused in part by the "supposed politicians."

"These," he said, "and they are not even good politicians, who are ranting up and down the length of the country with their violent attacks, denouncing all interests, including railroads and other industries in which people have their money invested, have helped to bring about this lack of confidence."

He pointed to the building program of the Penunsylvania railroad as an example of confidence in the future.

Predicts Auto Upturn.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 5.—The automobile industry can look for better business in the autumn, Alvin Macauley, president of the Packard Motor Car company and head of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, told members at the annual meeting here today.

Mr. Macauley's remarks, although restrained to some extent, were recorded as a favorable omen for the industry, inasmuch as he has consistently refused up to the present to comment on the outlook for business.

"We have gone through the spring selling season without an upturn of more than usual proportions," he said. "We can hope that it may become evident in the fall." The meeting was closed, but summaries of speeches were distributed.

Cites Trade Practices.

"Prudence suggests a conservative operation of our business," Mr. Macauley continued. "The depression is proving dangerous to our business, not only because of the hardships it imposes, but because of the wicked and destructive trade practices which have crept in as a result of the buyers' market which exists.

"Our problem is to keep our distributor and dealer organizations strong enough so that they will emerge from the depression with unimpaired vitality. The unexpected protraction of this depression is making that object constantly more difficult."

Mr. Macauley said there should be little concern that the manufacturing division will be able to survive the depression. He said the volume of automobile business being transacted is sufficient to support the industry's merchandising organization if all sales are being made on good business lines.

Trade On Even Keel.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 5.—"Certain factors kept business on a fairly even keel during the first part of the year and give some indication of what may be expected to develop during the next few months," states S. H. Logan, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

"In April the drop in the production of steel was relatively smaller than from March to April, 1930, although sufficient to bring it down to the level of 1927. Automobile production more than doubled between January and April to a point about 25 per cent below the normal rate, but a decrease will probably be shown for May. Operations of the newsprint industry have expanded each month since February, until in April the mills were working at 64 per cent of capacity."

OVER SIX BILLIONS ARE SUBSCRIBED FOR $800,000,000 U.S. ISSUE

Washington, D. C., June 5.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon tonight announced that total subscription for the $800,000,000 issue of 3⅛ per cent bonds announced Monday was $6,315,524,500.

He said that of the total holders of treasury certificates had submitted offers for $572,006,500, and that $325,000,000 of the bonds had been allotted to such subscribers.

The secretary did not announce the total of the subscription that would be accepted, but it had been indicated this would be approximately $800,000,000. He said that the subscriptions by districts would be announced when they were received from the federal reserve banks.

The bond issue, which will be dated June 15 and mature in 1949, is callable in 1946 and is the first move by the treasury to reduce its short term securities, which now total approximately $3,400,000,000.

Subscriptions in amounts not exceeding $10,000 for any one subscriber were allotted 30 per cent of the total accepted, but not less than $50 for any one subscriber; subscription between $10,000 and $100,000, 20 per cent, but not less than $3,000 for one subscriber; between $100,000 and $1,000,000, 10 per cent, but not less than $20,000 for any one subscriber; between $1,000,000 and $25,000,000, 7 per cent, but not less than $100,000 for any one subscriber; between $25,000,000 and $100,000,000, 4 per cent, but not less than $1,750,000 for any one subscriber, and subscriptions in amounts over $100,000,000, 3 per cent, but not less than $4,000,000 for any one subscriber.

Loop Parking Ban Helps Building Owners Pay Taxes

BY SCRUTATOR.

Prohibition of curb parking in the loop three years ago rendered more acute the problem of finding places for storing cars.

To meet the increased demand new garages were built. A survey made by the bureau of streets showed that in the central district bounded by Grand avenue, the Chicago river, Roosevelt road and the lake and including a strip between the river and Des Plaines street fifteen storage garages were built between 1927 and 1930.

The number of open air parking lots grew even more rapidly. In 1927 there were 34 such lots; in 1930 there were 64 and several have been opened since then.

Owners of loop real estate became interested. Many who had old buildings that were being run at a loss found that it paid them to tear down the buildings, level off the lots and rent them to parking lot operators. Taxes on the buildings were saved and the land produced some revenue.

Reduces Tax Bill.

The amount received in rent from the parking lot proprietor does not cover the owner's entire tax bill, but it reduces considerably the amount of his yearly expenditures.

Wrecking the building usually costs little, for the material salvaged covers a large part of the cost of tearing down the structure.

In 1930 there were in the central district facilities for storing 20,181 cars; 8,140 in parking lots and 12,041 in garage buildings. This was a 52 per cent increase over the 1927 storage capacity.

Rates charged vary according to the location of the parking lot. The usual charge is 50 cents for two to six hours maximum or 60 to 75 cents for twelve hours. Some lots sell monthly tickets with in and out privileges for $12.50, making the cost per day about 50 cents for each working day.

The operator of one chain of parking lots says, however, that the bulk of the business is confined to persons parking two to four hours and that on the average the lots are filled about three times in a day. Comparatively few monthly tickets are sold, loop workers largely parking either in free spaces or in garage buildings.

The motorist who pays for parking not only buys convenience but insurance against property damage or theft. In the absence of estimates showing the damage to cars parked in gutters and free spaces he does not know exactly what proportion of his storage charge represents insurance.

Checkups have shown that motor cars entering the loop average an occupancy of about two persons, and various estimates place the average cost of running a small four cylinder car at around six cents per mile and that of a heavy six at about ten cents per mile.

Assuming that those figure are fair, with two people riding in a car the cost per person for a daily trip from a home five miles out to the loop and back each day would be 30 cents for a small four cylinder car parked in a free space and 55 cents per person including a 50 cent parking fee.

Round Trip 75 Cents.

The round trip cost per person for the same distance in a heavy six would average 50 cents with no parking charge and 75 cents including storage in a parking lot.

In a taxicab the cost per person for a like round trip would be something above $1.25, depending on the stops, if two people rode in the cab, or something more than $2.50 for one passenger.

On a street car the daily round trip would cost 14 cents and on a bus or elevated train 20 cents.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 5.—Further progress was made by a majority of stocks today in spite of an apparently irresistible urge—pardonable surely under the circumstances—to rake off profits against the week-end. Railroad shares made the best showing again, the net gains among them averaging from 1 to 5 points. Oil shares continued to advance on the improved outlook for the industry, and the tobacco shares kept faith with the faithful along with numerous specialties scattered throughout the list.

Pivotal issues, however, finished mostly lower. United States Steel was off fractionally, American Can showed a loss of more than a point, and such stocks as Radio corporation, General Electric, General Motors, and Consolidated Gas all showed the effects of heavy realizing. Utility shares went off in group formation.

The news was no worse, nor better, than it has been, and obviously cut little ice in the situation at all. Brokerage house letters have been warning for two days that the advance was going too fast to go far without a setback, and apparently the idea is beginning to take hold.

Noteworthy Recovery.

At the peak of today's price movements the market, as measured by a standard index of ninety active stocks, had recovered in less than three trading days more than 35 per cent of the ground lost in over three months of persistent decline. Old traders agreed that such things could not—or should not—be in these uncertain times. It was too much of a good thing, they said. Better take in sail until the advance had stabilized itself. By the time the trimming was over the recovery had been brought to an effective if irregular halt and the day's top gains cut down substantially and in numerous outstanding cases substituted with losses.

Motor shares were among the first groups to turn backward. Up to noon these issues had been unusually active. Turnover in General Motors was increased by several sales that made the eyes of tape-watchers blink, one of the bundles being for 10,000 shares. Chrysler was a feature for strength, springing ahead more than

RAIL CHIEFS TO PUSH PLANS FOR RATE INCREASE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 5.—Plans to unite railroads in all sections of the country in support of a petition for a general increase in freight rates were furthered at a meeting of executives today. A committee of eastern presidents formed to push plans for the proposed increases conferred with representatives of a similar committee appointed by the western lines, and agreed on means to bring the southern roads into the movement.

A representative of the eastern group, who will explain the principle on which the eastern and western lines have agreed, will attend a meeting of traffic officers of the southern railroads in Washington on Tuesday. A meeting of presidents from all three sections will follow at the Biltmore hotel on Thursday.

Clyde Brown, counsel for the New York Central lines and a member of the legal subcommittee of the eastern rate committee, read a draft of a petition for increased rates which it is hoped will be presented to the interstate commerce commission within a week after Thursday's meeting. The petition will set forth the reasons for the railroads' decision to ask for increased rates at this time, the gist of which is that current revenues are running at a rate which eventually would make impossible the payment of interest on funded debt, and hence precipitate receiverships.

Empire Steel Receiver Will Continue Operation

Cleveland, O., June 5.—(AP)—Orders to continue operation of the Empire Steel corporation plants at Mansfield, Niles and Cleveland was given by Federal Judge Samuel H. West today to C. H. Henkel, president of the corporation, who was recently named receiver. At the same time the corporation's four largest creditors waived priority of their claims.

FIRESTONE TIRE 6 MOS. NET A MILLION ABOVE LAST YEAR'S EARNINGS

Akron, O., June 5.—(AP)—Firestone Tire and Rubber company for the six months ended April 30 had net profit which amounted to $1,367,519 more than that for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31 last.

An announcement by Harvey S. Firestone, president, after the board meeting today, said net profit for the company and all subsidiaries, including Firestone Service stores, for the six months ended April 30 was $2,908,553. This compares with $1,541,034 reported for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1930.

"The profit for the first six months of the current fiscal year," Mr. Firestone said, "provides for the regular dividends on the 6 per cent sumulative preferred stock, and also gives 56 cents a share, or more than the dividend requirements for the six months, on all the outstanding common stock."

Mr. Firestone added that with raw materials, finished product, and commitments inventories at market prices at the beginning of the fiscal year, "and with subsequent purchases made at favorable prices, no further inventory adjustments were considered necessary."

Finds All Meats Now Selling at Low Levels

Armour & Co., in its review of general packing house trade conditions, says:

"Further easiness in prices was the rule in the principal meat lines this week. All meats are now wholesaling at price levels so low as to afford the buyer for the family an opportunity to secure real bargains in food value for each dollar spent.

"Beef, lamb, veal, and fresh pork all showed a tendency toward easiness on rather slow markets. Smoked meats, with the opening of the summer season, did fairly well."

Warns Against No Profit Prices in Steel Trade

WITHDRAWALS FORCE CLOSING OF FULLERTON STATE

The Fullerton State bank, 1423 Fullerton avenue, was closed yesterday by State Auditor Oscar Nelson. The action was taken at the request of the board of directors, Mr. Nelson stated, and was made necessary because of the withdrawals of depositors over a long period of time. The withdrawals had exhausted the cash resources of the institution, it was stated. The bank had capital of $250,000, surplus of $75,000 and deposits of approximately $1,400,000. The deposits of the institution in 1929 exceeded $3,000,000.

Chesapeake and Ohio Will Push West Virginia Plan

Washington, D. C., June 5.—(AP)—The Chesapeake and Ohio railroad has laid before the interstate commerce commission plans for completing its development of the Piney creek section of West Virginia, started many years ago. It has sought permission to acquire 17 miles of line in Mercer and Raleigh counties for $166,000.

The section being developed is a lumbering and coal mining area.

Ten Years Ago in Finance

Railway traffic during May, 1931, was less than in May, 1920, and slightly under the April figures. Western roads operating out of Chicago show an average decrease of 11 per cent for the month.

Chicago bank clearings for the week total $450,819,990, a decrease of $10,196,419 from the preceding week.

April figures for 197 railroads show net operating income of more than $27,560,000 for the month.

Walgreen Sales Increase 3.6 Per Cent During May

The Walgreen company reports sales for May, 1931, as $4,657,500 against $4,493,610—a gain of $163,890 or 3.6 per cent. For the first five months of 1931 sales totaled $22,419,787 against $21,634,960 last year—a gain of $784,827 or 3.6 per cent. The firm had 446 stores in its chain as of May 31.

Nickel Plate 5½s of 1974.

Will you kindly advise me your opinion on the investment qualities of New York, Chicago and St. Louis railway 5½ per cent bonds, due 1974?—F. C. M.

Due to the location of New York Chicago and St. Louis Railroad company lines and type of traffic it handles its prosperity has tended to fluctuate with industrial activity, especially in the automobile centers of Ohio and Michigan.

For the seven years through 1929 annual bond interest charges were covered on the average of 2.24 times. Reflecting conditions which have proved unsatisfactory to most railroads in 1930 fixed charges were earned 1.56 times, against 2.19 times in 1929, 2.03 times in 1928, and 2.14 times in 1927.

Net operating income for the first quarter of 1931 was $806,505, slightly more than half the $1,574,051 reported for the first quarter of 1930.

Pyrene Manufacturing.

Kindly send me particulars of Pyrene company common, listed on the New York curb. Your immediate attention will be appreciated.—W. H. P.

Pyrene Manufacturing company was incorporated in 1909. It manufactures fire extinguishers, automobile tire chains, etc.

Net income showed an upward trend for the three years through 1929, but declined in 1930. Net for 1930 was $262,351, or $1.19 per share, against $33,869, or $1.52 per share for 1929. For 1928 net income was $218,527 and for 1927, $191,539 [including $38,812 derived from the sale of land].

On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $1,892,625, and current liabilities were $62,735. Working capital was $1,829,890, against $1,659,722 the year before.

Capitalization consists solely of 219,470 shares [par $10]. It is on an annual dividend basis of 80 cents per share.

American Can.

It has been noticed that some of the New York stock market reports refer to the par value of American Can as $100, while $25 seems to be the correct figure. Am I correct or has it been changed?—J. J. O.

The par value of American Can company common stock is $25. The preferred has a par value of $100.

EXCHANGE HERE ASKS REPORTS ON SHORT SALES

Action Follows Drive on Insull Issues.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Members of the Chicago Stock exchange have been notified to furnish a detailed report on their short positions in the market as of the close of business yesterday to the business conduct committee of the exchange.

The information must be in the hands of the committee by June 9 with an additional day being granted to members whose offices are more than a day's distance by mail from Chicago. Members must continue to furnish daily reports until further notice.

The action comes as an aftermath of the determined bear drive which has been launched against the Insull utility stocks in the last ten days on the Chicago market and follows the similar step taken by the New York Stock exchange.

Seeks Full Information.

The questionnaire requests the names and number of shares of stock borrowed by members, a list of all stock loaned, a statement on intra-office borrowings, and a list of all stocks which they have failed to deliver which are listed on the exchange.

The action of the exchange was regarded as significant in view of the possibility that the listing fight between the exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade may be renewed. The latter organization is now attempting to take the teeth out of the agreement it entered into in 1929 with the Chicago Stock exchange and is reported to be anxious to trade in a number of securities now listed on the exchange, but from which it is restrained by the 1929 agreement. At least one conference of the committees representing the two organizations has been held but no intimation of what transpired at the meeting given by the membership of the committee.

While the recent hammering against the Insull stocks has had a telling effect on prices of those securities the raiding has lacked the viciousness which characterised the attacks made on the pivotal stocks in New York.

Commonwealth Edison Off 11.

The pressure on the Insull group was easier yesterday but Commonwealth Edison tumbled 12½ points, then rallied slightly to finish down 11 points net. The stock is now selling at 204 and is the last of the prominent shares which hold above the 200 mark. One by one the big timers have fallen through that mythical resistence point. One of the last to go was Peoples Gas, which broke through last week and is now quoted on the big board around 197.

There was some uncertainty early in yesterday's trading, but the previous day's advance carried through generally until shortly before the close. In the last hour profit clinching by traders brought about moderate reaction and closing prices were irregular in a narrow range. One of the features was the further advance in Insull utility debentures, which rose 3½ points to 82 on a turnover representing securities of a par value of $70,000.

Merchants and Manufacturers "A" stock was strong on the strength of the declaration of its regular quarterly dividend and the favorable reports on current earnings.

PROFIT TAKING REDUCES SPEED OF STOCK MART

Railway Issues Do Well in Choppy Trade.

ten points. The closing gong, however, found Nash and Studebaker on the minus side of the column, with the group leader, Auburn, down 15 points on the day.

Eastman Kodak Down.

Miscellaneous stocks were juggled around all day. Eastman Kodak sold off more than 2 points, but Vanadium and National Cash Register were better fitted. Case blew alternately hot and cold, finishing with a fractional loss. Ingersoll-Rand and International Business Machine, which have come to figure among the fast movers of the list when there is anything of importance stirring, both suffered losses.

Motion priced rails were favored in the carrier division, Northern Pacific, Rock and Western, and Pennsylvania railroad rising 1¼ to more than 2 points. Union Pacific again distinguished itself with a 6 point jump and added after springing ahead for some 8 points was forced to ease back to around 148, which left it with a net gain of some 2 points on the day. Westinghouse, long a vulnerable issue lately, made a good showing in its earlier trading, but was cut down with the rest of the list toward the close.

Little Outside Buying.

This fair, according to replies to queries made to a number of larger commission houses, there has been little in the way of outside buying since the market turned. In fact, one of the bigger wire houses reported it has been actually a seller on balance yesterday and that through the first half of today's session its position was not clear. The average broker just now finds himself forced to listen to the lamentations of traders who missed the turn after waiting patiently for its arrival, and perhaps having experienced the displeasure of having quite "heated," in the parlance of the street, on the several false starts made by the market in the last few weeks.

Top yesterday, $9.50; average, $8.25.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 2,000; hogs, 6,000; sheep, 7,000.

Hogs scored another upturn on small receipts yesterday, the top going up to $6.50, against $6.20 at the low time last week, while the general average moved up 10c more at $6.15, being 40c above the low spot last Thursday. The clearance was the best in recent weeks, only 2,000 remaining in the pens at the close.

Small packers and city butchers bought more freely and outsiders obtained about 5,000. Prices have been moving higher in spite of the narrow outlet for fresh meats. Fresh pork loins are closing lower than a week ago.

Hog Futures Slow.

Trading in hog futures continued slow. June lights were bid $6.25, while bids of $6.40 were made on July and August lightweights. September lights were offered at $7.50 and bid $7.00. Mediums for next September were offered at $7.50 and bid $7.10. Heavy grades for the same delivery were offered at $7.40 and bid $7.10.

Medium and heavy steers slipped down again yesterday and stock exceeding 1,100 lbs in weight, lacking finish, showed rather sharp reductions in some instances. These kinds have lost a good deal of the gain scored earlier in the week, but yearlings and light steers of finished quality are still selling 50c to $1.00 above the close of last week. Good 1,010 lb yearlings reached $8.25, while nine averaging 872 lbs brought $8.50.

Butcher stock brought mostly steady prices, yearling heifers going at $8.00. Best calves were firm and others weak. Stockers and feeders remained quiet. Cattle receipts have been light during the week and the undertone shows some improvement, although yesterday's trade indicated that the market is still very sensitive to supplies. This week's receipts at seven markets, with one exception, are smallest of the year and 20 per cent under the average for the last six weeks.

Sheep Sell Low.

The market for aged sheep sank to lower levels on yesterday's market and some sales were about as low as any time on record. Old heavy ewes were sold for slaughter at $1.50@2.00, with top light weights at $2.25.

Lambs were subjected to severe sorting at weak to 25c lower prices, strong weight natives going at $8.75@9.50, with culls at $6.00@7.00. Yearlings were weak to 25c lower again, selling at $7.50 and below.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 200 cattle, 6,000 hogs, and 7,000 sheep, against 264 cattle, 4,464 hogs, and 3,271 sheep, the previous Saturday, and 737 cattle, 10,523 hogs, and 5,053 sheep a year ago.

Pool Influence Wanes in Western Canada

Farmer members of the Canadian wheat pool in Alberta and Saskatchewan have launched a determined drive for a return of their rights to market grain with private companies, according to Winnipeg messages. Their demands are for privileges granted members of the Manitoba pool under the new marketing plan inaugurated June 1, the only restriction there being that pool members are still required to deliver their grain to the pool elevator system. Canadian bankers, it is said, have insisted upon the changed form of marketing, refusing to finance grain movements in the future unless crops have been properly hedged.

REORGANIZATION OF 3 APARTMENT HOUSES STARTED

Bondholders to Be Given New 5% Issues.

Preliminary steps were taken yesterday in the reorganization of three apartment house properties on which defaults of $500,000 in bonds are pending, for the benefit of bondholders. All three properties involve the Brothers company issues. In addition the Garfield Manor corporation transferred title to the 16 apartment building at the southwest corner of Hamlin avenue and Garfield boulevard to Adolph Fisher.

The other two deals Max Goldberg transferred title to Mr. Fisher. The latter was that of the Dromio properties at 7041-43 Bennett avenue and 7040-42 Euclid avenue and the other was that of the Goldmore apartments at 7045-49 Bennett avenue and 7044 Euclid avenue. Both are two-story flat buildings.

Issue Trust Bonds.

The arrangement provides for the issuance of trust bonds payable in ten years at 5 per cent, based on the present forced values of the properties involved. In addition bondholders will be given participating certificates giving a share in the equities as well as a half the common stock. Pritzker & Pritzker were attorneys.

The store and apartment property at the southeast corner of Damen and Fullerton avenues, with frontage on Fullerton avenue, irregular in shape, has been sold by Harry Gordon to Irving A. Revitz. A. J. Cohn was attorney.

Moving Day Figures.

May 1 no longer is the city's biggest moving day, according to the Chicago Home Economic council, which reports that on this day this year only 1,500 families changed unfurnished flats. This is about twenty per cent of the number of families who moved to new homes on May 1, 1923, when the movement to alleviate the May 1 and Oct. 1 moving congestion was in its infancy.

During the entire month of May, however, some 14,346 families changed their residences. In April of this year 24,107 families moved, as against 63,007 in April, 1924. There are between 70,000 and 75,000 apartment leases expiring on June 30, according to the council. During the entire year 1930, 203,000 families moved, of which 38,192 occupied houses in January and December.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw sugar barely easier and prices advanced a point or a cent to the basis of 3.25c to test duty paid, with a better inquiry for refined, while offerings were comparatively light.

Trading in the firmer spot market and reports of increased withdrawals of refined as a result of the warmer weather, futures were lifted, closing with net gains of 4 to 5 points. Approximate sales, 48,000 tons.

HUDSON COACH. We sincerely believe this is the best Hudson buy in Chicago. The original finish is very attractive and the upholstery appears unworn. Very fully equipd. Was $525. Now, $145.

STEARNS-KNIGHT SEDAN. A 7-pass. that will make an ideal car for a large family. The motor runs smoothly and quietly. Upholstery is luxurious and there are a number of valuable extras. Reduced from $295 to $125.

CADILLAC SEDAN. You cannot duplicate this Cadillac any place else at anywhere near our price. It runs fine and looks as though it's worth what $500. 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, trunk, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Reduced from $400 to $195.

WILLYS-KNIGHT SEDAN. This car is a real beauty. We can truthfully say that it looks and runs as though it were almost new. Has 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Excellent rubber. Reduced from $400 to $195.

DODGE SEDAN. This Dodge will satisfy the most exacting buyers. The motor is A-1 and the appearance is unusually attractive. 4 whl. brakes and many extras. Tires are almost new. Reduced from $395 to $195.
